Begin Study of College Athletics

District Attorney Is Ready To Cross Examine Kelly

Man on Trial for Shooting Mrs. McHugh Tells of Being Depressed and Resorting to Life of Drinking When Romance Broke

Edward H. Kelly remained on the stand throughout the morning session of County court and at 12:35 when a recess was taken until 2 o'clock the direct testimony had been concluded. District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn was prepared to begin cross examination after the noon recess.

Kelly during the morning told at great detail the numerous times he and Mrs. McHugh had quarreled, made up and then made plans to marry only to have subsequent quarrels prevent the plan from being carried out.

He told of continuing depression of mind, of his inability to devote himself to his real estate business and of times when he was so depressed that he took to drink to quiet his mind. He said at times he did not know what he was doing and wandered around or drove his car day and night.

Kelly said he did not recall threatening Mrs. McHugh or her family.

He said the marriage date had been put off until the summer of 1950 after plans to marry in Florida in 1949 had not materialized.

Kelly said he recalled when Mrs. McHugh had police officers come to the house to put him out. He said he did not know what he had done to cause this.

On the weekend prior to the shooting on May 22, 1950, Kelly said he had been wandering around, did not recall what he was doing and had no recollection of the morning of the shooting until after the shooting and then found himself on his hands and knees on the pavement.

On the previous Friday evening he said he told Scheib that he wanted to borrow his car to track a woman who he had been going out with and who he suspected with now going out with someone else. He said he could not recall telling Scheib that he wanted to track a man who owed him money.

He told of having "dreams" in which he wandered around and "imagined" the state police were after him, and it was during one of these spells that he put the deer rifle in the car. Kelly said he did not recall meeting Scheib on the morning of the shooting and borrowing his car.

On Friday he recalled making plans to borrow the car but forgot it Sunday and did not get the car. He never recalled the actual borrowing of the car.

"I never had any intention of killing Mrs. McHugh," said Kelly.

"I was very much in love with her and I tried to do everything to marry her," he continued.

"I would gladly give up my life if I could bring Mrs. McHugh to life," he concluded.

Throughout his morning testimony Kelly stated he had become confused and had no recollection of calling Mrs. McHugh or threatening her or her family as was charged when Mrs. McHugh swore out a warrant for his arrest early in May 1950.

Kelly took the witness stand Monday afternoon in County court and recited his life history, his various occupations and jobs and then told of his associations with Mrs. Eloise McHugh, for whose murder he now faces the court.

Kelly told a story of numerous conflicts with Mrs. McHugh over a period of years while he and she were acquainted. Over this period he said they had alternately planned to get married and then had broken off relationships following quarrels.

His story was one of frequent quarrels, usually over her attention to other men, and of how her inability to make up her mind and marry him had finally caused him to become discouraged, moody and downhearted.

Born August 31, 1899, in Rensselaer, Kelly lived in High Bridge, Albany and Poughkeepsie during

Hunt Is Started For Alleged Killer; May Be in State

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP)—A widespread manhunt was in progress today for a man accused of slaying his estranged wife and wounding another woman in a burst of pistol fire on a crowded street.

Police identified the fugitive as Paul J. Lunny, Jr., 32. An alarm for his arrest warned that he is armed. It was broadcast throughout Connecticut and neighboring states by state police at the request of the local department.

Were Leaving Plant

Mrs. Beatrice Lunny, 29, was killed, and Mrs. Evelyn Hayes, 22, was wounded, though not critically, in the shooting, which occurred late yesterday in front of the Underwood Corporation as employes were leaving the plant.

Medical reports said Mrs. Lunny died of four bullet wounds in the body.

Capt. Washburn said Lunny only recently had been discharged from the county jail where he served six months as a result of firing two shots in the direction of his wife's automobile. Lunny had threatened his wife with death at that time, the captain said.

To Probe Waterfront

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and the State Crime Commission meet here today in a conference reported to be the preliminary step to a full-scale probe of the turbulent New York waterfront. It is believed that New Jersey might join in any waterfront inquiry by the New York state commission. The port of New York, the world's greatest harbor, includes hundreds of miles of piers in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Staten Island and New Jersey.

Quinn Is Elected

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Board of Elections announced officially today that T. Vincent Quinn, Democratic candidate for district attorney of Queens, was elected on Nov. 6 by a plurality of 490 votes over his Republican opponent, George W. Herz. A spokesman for the board said a certificate of election will be issued to Congressman Quinn as a result of an official canvass. The Board of Elections reported that Quinn received 139,499 votes and Herz, 139,009.

College Leaders Hit Streit's Accusation; Several Sentenced

'Fixer' Gets 8 to 16 Years; Players Are Sent to Prison for Their Roles

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Some college athletic leaders were quick today to dispute a New York judge's accusation that football and basketball are sordid big business deals.

But a committee of seven college presidents, meeting in Washington, agreed "something must be done" to remove whatever evils are in the intercollegiate athletic program.

And in Chicago, Hugh Willett, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said a substantial majority of the organization's 320 members supported a 12-point program for tighter controls on college athletics.

Basketball and football came under the fire of General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit in a 41-page statement issued yesterday shortly before the jurist sentenced a basketball fixer and five former players from three New York universities to prison terms and gave nine other ex-players suspended sentences.

Judge Streit sentenced Salvatore Sollazzo, "fixer" of a number of Madison Square Garden games, to eight to 16 years.

Calls Him Weasel

The judge termed him "a cool, calculating and cunning weasel, who preys on the gullible and unsuspecting."

An indeterminate sentence up to three years was ordered for Edward Gard, former Long Island University player and a Sollazzo lieutenant.

Other players sentenced to jail: Sherman White, of LIU, one year; Edward Warner and Alvin Roth, of City College of New York, and Harvey "Connie" Schaff of New York University, six months each.

Sentence was suspended in the cases of Adolf Biggs, Richard Feurtado, Nathan Miller and Le-

DebateHeld Up at Paris By 2 Nations

Request Is Made

Several Powers Plead for End of Differences of East and West

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—Britain and Russia, jockeying for the star speaking position, forced a suspension of debate today on western disarmament proposals before the United Nations political committee.

Both British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky want to speak last in the discussion opened yesterday by U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

A British spokesman also said he believed that the "very profound impression" created in the 60-member committee by Acheson made Vishinsky hesitate to answer too quickly. According to this view, the Russians do not want to appear before the world as spurning the western plan without considerable thought.

Despite pleas from committee chairman Finn Moe of Norway for speakers, the group adjourned until tomorrow after brief talks by Brazil, Peru, Haiti and Iran asking the big powers to compose their differences in order to reduce the burden of armaments on the world.

Small Powers' Request

Meanwhile a welter of unconfirmed rumors of small power "mediation efforts" swept through the corridors of the Palais de Chaillot. Countries prominently mentioned as trying to find a way of breaking the east-west deadlock were Argentina, Canada, India and Israel.

(In New Delhi sources close to the Indian foreign office said India, Israel and Canada are seeking a compromise disarmament formula, with India asking for abolition of the atomic bomb along with reduction of conventional armaments.)

The UN's special political committee, set up to handle this overflow of work from the regular political committee, heard an optimistic report today on the situation in Greece.

Greek Delegate John Politis told the group his country's fight to put down Communist guerrillas had been successful and asked the UN to end the six-year-old special committee on the Balkans (UNSCOB) which has been watching the situation.

'Work Well Done'

Britain's Sig Gladwyn Jebb said the committee's success was "an example of work well done" and he was pleased that it was "now no longer necessary."

Britain, the U.S., France, Greece and Mexico, however, asked the committee to set up a new sub-committee of the UN's peace observation group to observe the Greek situation from UN headquarters in New York. UNSCOB worked on the scene.

UN committee work is expected to be interrupted Friday for a plenary session at which three members of the Security Council will be elected.

156th Non-Coms Show How National Guard Functions

It was enlisted man's night, Monday, at the 156th Field Artillery armory, where the National Guardsmen put on an impressive and entertaining show, featured by a review.

Every phase of training was demonstrated in the large drill shed at the end of Manor avenue, and a social program with dancing and refreshments followed.

Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps had an important part in the activities, playing martial airs for the troops and putting on the drill that has made the organization famous throughout the east.

The officers took a back seat for the affair attended by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and other invited guests, including President Alwin Feuerstein of the Lions Club and their ladies.

To demonstrate that his non-commissioned officers were in full charge, Lt. Col. Frank W. Harkin assumed the role of a clown and went through a routine that would have brought credit to any of the great professionals of the big top.

The early arrivals roared laughing as he peeled potatoes, swept the floor and went round and round on roller skates pushing a large stable broom.

No 'Brass' Section

He helped fill in between maneuvers by shining shoes, dusting off visitors and winking at the ladies.

Last night's program was truly democracy at work, according to one observer, who was amazed at the manner in which Col. Harkin literally tuned out the brass section completely.

And, the demonstration he arranged was a clear picture of the functions carried on by the National Guard.

Trained for Action

In expressing his thanks to those who attended last night's affair, Col. Harkin paid high tribute to his non-commissioned men and the staff of officers who train the 156th.

"What you've seen here is a true picture of your National Guard, and I want to assure you we're ready to go into action whenever called for any emergency," the commander said.

Howitzer sections rolled into the spacious drill hall and set up in firing positions under Sgts. Kenneth N. Houghtaling, Charles J. Morano and Vernon H. Maguire. Spectators marveled at the speedy action of the men from A, B and C batteries.

Quick Phone Service

Communications lines were set up in a jiffy by wire men from the same batteries, and in minutes the armory was covered by a radio and telephone system that visitors were invited to use for conversing.

Three sergeants, were in charge, Ellwood H. Harper, Edward J. Aiello and Gibert F. Brewster. Sgt. William F. Cuthbert of Headquarters Battery climbed a special

Newsprint Essential, NPA Will Declare

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Newsprint paper will shortly be declared essential, clearing the way for a 250,000 ton expansion of producing capacity in this country, it was reported today.

Arthur R. Treanor, retiring as director of the Printing and Publishing Division of the National Production Authority (NPA), said the ruling he has sought for months "undoubtedly will be favorable" and may come this week.

Treanor foresaw a slight improvement ahead in newsprint supply and a probability that it will not be necessary to impose a rationing system like that under which newspapers worked during World War 2.

Allies Seize Hill at Dawn From Chinese

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 20 (AP)—Allied infantrymen recaptured a hill at dawn today a few hours after losing it to 600 attacking Chinese.

The fight west of Yonchon was the only action reported on the western Korean front.

In the east, allied infantrymen hacked out gains of 800 yards as they pushed forward along the ridges northwest of the Punch Bowl.

In the Yonchon hill fight, an estimated Red battalion charged up the slopes about 3 a. m. Flashes of gunfire lit up the night as allied infantrymen pulled back slowly before the assault.

Two hours after the battle began, the UN infantrymen counterattacked. Most of the Reds got out of the way. The allies were challenged only by a few rounds of rifle and artillery fire, and soon were back in their original positions.

The Eighth Army said that aside from the Yonchon and Punchbowl fights there was "no other significant action" along the entire front.

No Enemy in Sky

UN jet pilots swept North Korean skies without finding a trace of Red MIG jets up to noon, the Fifth Air Force reported.

However, allied fighter-bombers and B-29s found a harvest of targets as they pushed their attacks on Red traffic and front lines through the night.

The Fifth Air Force said B-26 bombers and marine fighters bombed or strafed about 1,500 trucks and two supply trains. Explosions from trucks and trains lit up the night.

Superforts blasted frontline positions while other B-26s attacked camouflaged supply concentrations hidden in the ruins of a chemical plant and a steel mill.

The navy reported the cruiser Los Angeles, shelling Red troops at the eastern end of the front, fired the 3,000th round from her main batteries in Korean action.

Anastasia Is in 'Spot'

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—An underworld court has placed Albert Anastasia, reputed "lord high executioner" of Murder, Inc., "on the spot," the New York City Anti-crime Committee reported today. A committee spokesman said the "court" ordered Anastasia to get out of town or be rubbed out by gangland's guns. Anastasia, a Brooklyn waterfront boss, was accused of working a "double cross"—gangdom's highest crime—with Willie Moretti. Moretti was slain Oct. 4 in a Ciffside Park, N. J., restaurant by gunfire. The spokesman said he knew the nature of the "double cross" but could not reveal it at present. Anastasia is taking the first of the two choices offered him and is making arrangements to go to Hot Springs, Ark., the spokesman told newsmen.

Disease Hits Swiss

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 20 (AP)—Swiss authorities said today more than 2,000 head of cattle, sheep and pigs have been destroyed in the past four weeks in this country's severest outbreak of foot and mouth disease since 1938. The loss thus far was estimated at more than $230,000. The government pays 80 per cent of the animal's value to the raiser when he agrees to destroy it.

Oswego Will Be Switched To 34th Congressional Unit

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP)—Republican leaders plan to shift Oswego county from the 35th Congressional District to a revamped 34th when New York State's House seats are reapportioned.

State Chairman William L. Pfeiffer said last night GOP chiefs from the eight counties affected had agreed, but not unanimously, to add Oswego county to the 34th Distict and transfer Lewis and Herkimer counties from the 34th to join Oneida in the new 35th.

The redistricting plan calls for:

1. Oswego, Jefferson, St. Lawrence and Franklin counties to constitute a reshaped 34th District.

2. Oneida, Lewis, Herkimer and Madison counties to make up a revised 35th District.

The 35th now comprises Oswego and Oneida (Utica). The 34th now takes in Jefferson, St. Lawrence, Franklin, Herkimer and Lewis. Madison county is in the 37th, with Broome and Chenango counties.

The district numbers probably will be changed in the final reapportioning of New York's 45 House seats into 43.

Governor Dewey will call the Republican-controlled Legislature into special session soon to enact a reapportionment law.

Meanwhile, in New York city, State Democratic Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick termed the reapportionment issue "all important"

Big Parade Held

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two major foes of Britain's policy in the Middle East—Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Egypt's Prime Minister Mustapha el Nahas Pasha—met here today for the first time.

Tens of thousands of Egyptians paraded with anti-British and anti-American slogans to welcome the aged Iranian, stopping here for a four-day official visit after a month in the United States.

Mossadegh's government already has kicked Britain's oil men out of Iran. Nahas Pasha's regime has ordered the British out of the Suez Canal and the Sudan, but Britain's troops so far still hold military control of both.

Crowds at Farouk Airport shouted "long live the enemy of the British" as Mossadegh, en route home from the United States, arrived this morning for a four-day official visit.

Busbey Assails Political Junket

Says Democrats Should Pay for Trip From Key West Not U. S. Public

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Rep. Busbey (R-Ill.) said today President Truman's flying trip here from Key West is a "political junket" and ought to be paid for by the Democratic National Committee instead of the air force. He estimated the cost of the round trip at $2,280.

Noting that Mr. Truman is making the trip to address the Women's National Democratic Club tonight, Busbey said in a statement.

"It cannot be said, by the wildest stretch of anyone's imagination, that Mr. Truman's trip has any connection with official business. The purpose of the trip is politics and nothing but politics. Why Mr. Truman should have the free use of a plane that is paid for out of the air force's funds is beyond me. It is, at best, another example of the arrogant attitude that characterizes the present administration."

Cost $285 Per Hour

Busbey estimated it costs $285 an hour to operate the President's plane, the Independence, and calculated the round trip would take eight hours. He said he hopes the secretary of defense sends the bill to the Democratic committee, adding that the committee reported it had $213,894 on hand last Sept. 14.

Busbey said this "tremendous bankroll certainly should be

365 Bodies Recovered; Deny Story

Communists Accuse UN Units of Slaying Sino, Korean Prisoners in Korea

Truce Talks Set Aside One Day to Give Reds Study Time

Tokyo, Nov. 20 (AP)—Allied headquarters said today there is "considerable evidence" that about 6,000 American soldiers died in Red atrocity killings although bodies of only 365 have been recovered.

The statement from Gen. Mathew B. Ridgway's headquarters made no mention of Communist countercharges of allied atrocities.

Each side accused the other of atrocities in Korea while the Panmunjom circus tent truce talks were in a one-day recess asked by the Communists. The Reds wanted time to study a United Nations proposal for a tentative cease-fire.

General headquarters of the UN command made it clear the report of wholesale Red atrocities issued last week by Col. James M. Hanley did not involve an increase in the known American dead in the Korean War.

"Of the 10,836 persons (Americans) still carried as missing in action," the report said, "there is no conclusive proof as to the number of dead, though there is considerable evidence to justify presumption of death by atrocity of a large number which may approximate 6,000."

Report Is Denied

Broadcasts from Red radios in Pyongyang and Peiping conceded some American prisoners of war had died in prison camps but denied the report issued by Colonel Hanley of the Eighth Army's legal section as an "absured lie," and a "slander."

Red radios in turn accused the allies of (1) killing 17,000 Chinese and Korean Red prisoners of war or allowing them to starve to death, (2) killing or injuring 14,500 North Korean civilians in bomb raids, and (3) shipping out 1,000 Korean and Indochinese Reds for use in atomic tests.

A UN command spokesman called the atom story "pure fabrication."

Simultaneously top level Reds made an abrupt switch in their truce aims.

Red radios gave no indication whether Communist armistice negotiators would advance this new pattern when truce talks resume at Panmunjom at 11 a. m. Wednesday (9 p. m. Tuesday, EST).

Could Set Talks Back

The new high level Red statements could set truce talks back to where they were when they started four months ago. The North Korean foreign minister proposed injecting punishment for war crimes—against Koreans. Red China's foreign minister endorsed the truce plan of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky including an immediate cease-fire, a buffer zone along the 38th parallel and immediate withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

UN command negotiators have turned all these points down and indicated they would do so again, if the Reds raise them. Communist negotiators themselves long since abandoned these points and switched to talking about a cease-fire along the battle line.

The Communists have promised to reply at the next meeting to the newest UN truce plan aimed at a Korean armistice within 30 days.

Might Reject Plan

Views aired by Red radios in Peiping and Pyongyang suggested the Communist negotiators might reject the plan. At the UN command's truce camp in Munsan it was speculated the Communists might come in with a new plan of their own, or revisions to the allied proposal that would lead to lengthy argument.

The allied plan, advanced Saturday, would fix a tentative cease-

Calls Him Weasel

The judge termed him "a cool, calculating and cunning weasel, who preys on the gullible and unsuspecting."

An indeterminate sentence up to three years was ordered for Edward Gard, former Long Island University player and a Sollazzo lieutenant.

Other players sentenced to jail: Sherman White, of LIU, one year; Edward Warner and Alvin Roth, of City College of New York, and Harvey "Connie" Schaff of New York University, six months each.

Sentence was suspended in the cases of Adolf Biggs, Richard Feurtado, Nathan Miller and Le-

Several Powers Plead for End of Differences of East and West

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—Britain and Russia, jockeying for the star speaking position, forced a suspension of debate today on western disarmament proposals before the United Nations political committee.

Both British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky want to speak last in the discussion opened yesterday by U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

A British spokesman also said he believed that the "very profound impression" created in the 60-member committee by Acheson made Vishinsky hesitate to answer too quickly. According to this view, the Russians do not want to appear before the world as spurning the western plan without considerable thought.

Despite pleas from committee chairman Finn Moe of Norway for speakers, the group adjourned until tomorrow after brief talks by Brazil, Peru, Haiti and Iran asking the big powers to compose their differences in order to reduce the burden of armaments on the world.

Small Powers' Request

Meanwhile a welter of unconfirmed rumors of small power "mediation efforts" swept through the corridors of the Palais de Chaillot. Countries prominently mentioned as trying to find a way of breaking the east-west deadlock were Argentina, Canada, India and Israel.

(In New Delhi sources close to the Indian foreign office said India, Israel and Canada are seeking a compromise disarmament formula, with India asking for abolition of the atomic bomb along with reduction of conventional armaments.)

The UN's special political committee, set up to handle this overflow of work from the regular political committee, heard an optimistic report today on the situation in Greece.

Greek Delegate John Politis told the group his country's fight to put down Communist guerrillas had been successful and asked the UN to end the six-year-old special committee on the Balkans (UNSCOB) which has been watching the situation.

'Work Well Done'

Britain's Sig Gladwyn Jebb said the committee's success was "an example of work well done" and he was pleased that it was "now no longer necessary."

Britain, the U.S., France, Greece and Mexico, however, asked the committee to set up a new sub-committee of the UN's peace observation group to observe the Greek situation from UN headquarters in New York. UNSCOB worked on the scene.

UN committee work is expected to be interrupted Friday for a plenary session at which three members of the Security Council will be elected.

156th Non-Coms Show How National Guard Functions

It was enlisted man's night, Monday, at the 156th Field Artillery armory, where the National Guardsmen put on an impressive and entertaining show, featured by a review.

Every phase of training was demonstrated in the large drill shed at the end of Manor avenue, and a social program with dancing and refreshments followed.

Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps had an important part in the activities, playing martial airs for the troops and putting on the drill that has made the organization famous throughout the east.

The officers took a back seat for the affair attended by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and other invited guests, including President Alwin Feuerstein of the Lions Club and their ladies.

To demonstrate that his non-commissioned officers were in full charge, Lt. Col. Frank W. Harkin assumed the role of a clown and went through a routine that would have brought credit to any of the great professionals of the big top.

The early arrivals roared laughing as he peeled potatoes, swept the floor and went round and round on roller skates pushing a large stable broom.

No 'Brass' Section

He helped fill in between maneuvers by shining shoes, dusting off visitors and winking at the ladies.

Last night's program was truly democracy at work, according to one observer, who was amazed at the manner in which Col. Harkin literally tuned out the brass section completely.

And, the demonstration he arranged was a clear picture of the functions carried on by the National Guard.

Trained for Action

In expressing his thanks to those who attended last night's affair, Col. Harkin paid high tribute to his non-commissioned men and the staff of officers who train the 156th.

"What you've seen here is a true picture of your National Guard, and I want to assure you we're ready to go into action whenever called for any emergency," the commander said.

Howitzer sections rolled into the spacious drill hall and set up in firing positions under Sgts. Kenneth N. Houghtaling, Charles J. Morano and Vernon H. Maguire. Spectators marveled at the speedy action of the men from A, B and C batteries.

Quick Phone Service

Communications lines were set up in a jiffy by wire men from the same batteries, and in minutes the armory was covered by a radio and telephone system that visitors were invited to use for conversing.

Three sergeants, were in charge, Ellwood H. Harper, Edward J. Aiello and Gibert F. Brewster. Sgt. William F. Cuthbert of Headquarters Battery climbed a special

Newsprint Essential, NPA Will Declare

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Newsprint paper will shortly be declared essential, clearing the way for a 250,000 ton expansion of producing capacity in this country, it was reported today.

Arthur R. Treanor, retiring as director of the Printing and Publishing Division of the National Production Authority (NPA), said the ruling he has sought for months "undoubtedly will be favorable" and may come this week.

Treanor foresaw a slight improvement ahead in newsprint supply and a probability that it will not be necessary to impose a rationing system like that under which newspapers worked during World War 2.

Allies Seize Hill at Dawn From Chinese

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 20 (AP)—Allied infantrymen recaptured a hill at dawn today a few hours after losing it to 600 attacking Chinese.

The fight west of Yonchon was the only action reported on the western Korean front.

In the east, allied infantrymen hacked out gains of 800 yards as they pushed forward along the ridges northwest of the Punch Bowl.

In the Yonchon hill fight, an estimated Red battalion charged up the slopes about 3 a. m. Flashes of gunfire lit up the night as allied infantrymen pulled back slowly before the assault.

Two hours after the battle began, the UN infantrymen counter-attacked. Most of the Reds got out of the way. The allies were challenged only by a few rounds of rifle and artillery fire, and soon were back in their original positions.

The Eighth Army said that aside from the Yonchon and Punchbowl fights there was "no other significant action" along the entire front.

No Enemy in Sky

UN jet pilots swept North Korean skies without finding a trace of Red MIG jets up to noon, the Fifth Air Force reported.

However, allied fighter-bombers and B-29s found a harvest of targets as they pushed their attacks on Red traffic and front lines through the night.

The Fifth Air Force said B-26 bombers and marine fighters bombed or strafed about 1,500 trucks and two supply trains. Explosions from trucks and trains lit up the night.

Superforts blasted frontline positions while other B-26s attacked camouflaged supply concentrations hidden in the ruins of a chemical plant and a steel mill.

The navy reported the cruiser Los Angeles, shelling Red troops at the eastern end of the front, fired the 3,000th round from her main batteries in Korean action.

Anastasia Is in 'Spot'

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—An underworld court has placed Albert Anastasia, reputed "lord high executioner" of Murder, Inc., "on the spot," the New York City Anti-crime Committee reported today. A committee spokesman said the "court" ordered Anastasia to get out of town or be rubbed out by gangland's guns. Anastasia, a Brooklyn waterfront boss, was accused of working a "double cross"—gangdom's highest crime—with Willie Moretti. Moretti was slain Oct. 4 in a Ciffside Park, N. J., restaurant by gunfire. The spokesman said he knew the nature of the "double cross" but could not reveal it at present. Anastasia is taking the first of the two choices offered him and is making arrangements to go to Hot Springs, Ark., the spokesman told newsmen.

Disease Hits Swiss

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 20 (AP)—Swiss authorities said today more than 2,000 head of cattle, sheep and pigs have been destroyed in the past four weeks in this country's severest outbreak of foot and mouth disease since 1938. The loss thus far was estimated at more than $230,000. The government pays 80 per cent of the animal's value to the raiser when he agrees to destroy it.

Allies Declare Evidence Had On Red Killings

New Proposal

Communists Accuse UN Units of Slaying Sino, Korean Prisoners in Korea

Truce Talks Set Aside One Day to Give Reds Study Time

Tokyo, Nov. 20 (AP)—Allied headquarters said today there is "considerable evidence" that about 6,000 American soldiers died in Red atrocity killings although bodies of only 365 have been recovered.

The statement from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters made no mention of Communist countercharges of allied atrocities.

Each side accused the other of atrocities in Korea while the Panmunjom circus tent truce talks were in a one-day recess asked by the Communists. The Reds wanted time to study a United Nations proposal for a tentative cease-fire.

General headquarters of the UN command made it clear the report of wholesale Red atrocities issued last week by Col. James M. Hanley did not involve an increase in the known American dead in the Korean War.

"Of the 10,836 persons (Americans) still carried as missing in action," the report said, "there is no conclusive proof as to the number of dead, though there is considerable evidence to justify presumption of death by atrocity of a large number which may approximate 6,000."

Report Is Denied

Broadcasts from Red radios in Pyongyang and Peiping conceded some American prisoners of war had died in prison camps but denied the report issued by Colonel Hanley of the Eighth Army's legal section as an "absured lie," and a "slander."

Red radios in turn accused the allies of (1) killing 17,000 Chinese and Korean Red prisoners of war or allowing them to starve to death, (2) killing or injuring 14,500 North Korean civilians in bomb raids, and (3) shipping out 1,000 Korean and Indochinese Reds for use in atomic tests.

A UN command spokesman called the atom story "pure fabrication."

Simultaneously top level Reds made an abrupt switch in their truce aims.

Red radios gave no indication whether Communist armistice negotiators would advance this new pattern when truce talks resume at Panmunjom at 11 a. m. Wednesday (9 p. m. Tuesday, EST).

Could Set Talks Back

The new high level Red statements could set truce talks back to where they were when they started four months ago. The North Korean foreign minister proposed injecting punishment for war crimes—against Koreans. Red China's foreign minister endorsed the truce plan of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky including an immediate cease-fire, a buffer zone along the 38th parallel and immediate withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

UN command negotiators have turned all these points down and indicated they would do so again, if the Reds raise them. Communist negotiators themselves long since abandoned these points and switched to talking about a cease-fire along the battle line.

The Communists have promised to reply at the next meeting to the newest UN truce plan aimed at a Korean armistice within 30 days.

Might Reject Plan

Views aired by Red radios in Peiping and Pyongyang suggested the Communist negotiators might reject the plan. At the UN command's truce camp in Munsan it was speculated the Communists might come in with a new plan of their own, or revisions to the allied proposal that would lead to lengthy argument.

The allied plan, advanced Saturday, would fix a tentative cease-

Big Parade Held

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two major foes of Britain's policy in the Middle East—Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Egypt's Prime Minister Mustapha el Nahas Pasha—met here today for the first time.

Tens of thousands of Egyptians paraded with anti-British and anti-American slogans to welcome the aged Iranian, stopping here for a four-day official visit after a month in the United States.

Mossadegh's government already has kicked Britain's oil men out of Iran. Nahas Pasha's regime has ordered the British out of the Suez Canal and the Sudan, but Britain's troops so far still hold military control of both.

Crowds at Farouk Airport shouted "long live the enemy of the British" as Mossadegh, en route home from the United States, arrived this morning for a four-day official visit.

Busbey Assails Political Junket

Says Democrats Should Pay for Trip From Key West Not U. S. Public

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Rep. Busbey (R-Ill.) said today President Truman's flying trip here from Key West is a "political junket" and ought to be paid for by the Democratic National Committee instead of the air force. He estimated the cost of the round trip at $2,280.

Noting that Mr. Truman is making the trip to address the Women's National Democratic Club tonight, Busbey said in a statement.

"It cannot be said, by the wildest stretch of anyone's imagination, that Mr. Truman's trip has any connection with official business. The purpose of the trip is politics and nothing but politics. Why Mr. Truman should have the free use of a plane that is paid for out of the air force's funds is beyond me. It is, at best, another example of the arrogant attitude that characterizes the present administration."

Cost $285 Per Hour

Busbey estimated it costs $285 an hour to operate the President's plane, the Independence, and calculated the round trip would take eight hours. He said he hopes the secretary of defense sends the bill to the Democratic committee, adding that the committee reported it had $213,894 on hand last Sept. 14.

Busbey said this "tremendous bankroll certainly should be

Oswego Will Be Switched To 34th Congressional Unit

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP)—Republican leaders plan to shift Oswego county from the 35th Congressional District to a revamped 34th when New York State's House seats are reapportioned.

State Chairman William L. Pfeiffer said last night GOP chiefs from the eight counties affected had agreed, but not unanimously, to add Oswego county to the 34th Distict and transfer Lewis and Herkimer counties from the 34th to join Oneida in the new 35th.

The redistricting plan calls for:

1. Oswego, Jefferson, St. Lawrence and Franklin counties to constitute a reshaped 34th District.
2. Oneida, Lewis, Herkimer and Madison counties to make up a revised 35th District.

The 35th now comprises Oswego and Oneida (Utica). The 34th now takes in Jefferson, St. Lawrence, Franklin, Herkimer and Lewis. Madison county is in the 37th, with Broome and Chenango counties.

The district numbers probably will be changed in the final reapportioning of New York's 45 House seats into 43.

Governor Dewey will call the Republican-controlled Legislature into special session soon to enact a reapportionment law.

Meanwhile, in New York city, State Democratic Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick termed the reapportionment issue "all important"

Mother, Daughter Hurt in Accident

Mrs. Ruth Avery, 24, of Shokan, and her daughter, Frances, were injured slightly in a three-vehicle collision at West Hurley early this afternoon.

Mrs. Avery was taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment of bruises of the chest, back and neck and a scalp laceration and her daughter was treated at Shokan by a doctor for lacerations of the face and hands, state police said.

The trailer truck, sedan and lighter truck involved, police said, were all headed east on Route 28. The trailer operated by Edward Carroll, 30, of Rahway, N. J., was in the right lane, the light truck operated by James B. McAuliffe, 58, of West Hurley, was in the center ahead of the heavier vehicle, and the sedan, driven by Mrs. Avery was passing at the time of the mishap, the report said.

The sedan came upon the McAuliffe truck and swerved into the path of the other vehicle, an investigating state trooper said.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—In a quiet and uninteresting manner, the stock market today declined moderately.

The volume of business never reached the stage where it could be said that selling pressure was evident.

Nevertheless prices were down by fractions to a little more than a point among leaders. There were plus signs, but they were scattered widely.

Depressed most were rails, motors, coppers, chemicals, and rubbers. There was no single major group that could be placed in the upside list, but utilities and steels were steady.

American Telephone suffered a fractional loss in several short bursts of trading.

Studebaker held steady despite company plans to lay off employes in the first quarter next year because of reduced motor production and a disappointing amount of military work.

Sears Roebuck on the big board and Kaiser-Frazer on the curb exchange was steady against the down trend. They announced plans for Kaiser to make and Sears to market a car called the All-State that looks like the Henry J.

About the Folks

William Bence, 18, who was injured in an automobile accident last Saturday, is still at the Benedictine Hospital.

District Attorney Is Ready . . .

his childhood while his father worked for the New York Central railroad. His later years were spent in Kingston where he had an ambition to become a locomotive engineer but after working in the round house he left the railroad about the time he was married at the age of 22 and became a truck driver, taxi driver, salesman and finally a real estate broker.

Wife Left Him in 1940

His wife left him in 1940 when he assigned a Hurley farm to her and she took custody of an adopted son.

Kelly said he met Mrs. McHugh in 1941 through her sister and there followed years of friendship which were complicated with quarrels, fights and periods of peaceful calm when they planned to be married.

During the period Kelly's wife, who was in the WACS during the war, returned to Kingston and took custody of the boy. Kelly said he visited her home at times to see the boy and on those occasions Mrs. McHugh became jealous and accused him of paying attention to his former wife who had secured a Florida divorce. This attention he denied.

Didn't Keep Promise

There were times when Mrs. McHugh refused to see Kelly and went out with other men. Kelly testified she had been out with George Gardinier and he had watched her return home and accused her of going out with him. She denied it. He told of later calling the Gardinier home and ascertaining that Gardinier was married and when he told Mrs. McHugh this she promised not to see him again. She did not keep that promise, Kelly said, but continued to see him and also a Ralph Glendenning, who was a salesman from Vermont and who was in this area for a time.

At times the quarrels were of such heat that Mrs. McHugh called the police and at one time her father struck Kelly over the head with a piece of wood, cutting his head. He said he left the McHugh home and secured a room elsewhere.

Kelly told of watching the McHugh house and seeing Mrs. McHugh come home at 2 a. m. when she had told him she was not feeling well and had gone to bed. He told of her appearing at 6 a. m. one day. He called the Gardinier home that time and learned Gardinier had come home at 6:15 a. m.

From 1947 to 1949 they were on relatively friendly terms and had but slight arguments. He said they resumed plans to get married but there were some slight quarrels over his former wife. These caused them both to become upset but they usually made up in a day or two and resumed their friendship.

Shortly after the death of Mrs. McHugh's mother at Ossining, Kelly said there was an argument when he failed to attend the funeral and after he had accused Mrs. McHugh of not being at Ossining when she said she was there. He said he had phoned and had learned she was not in Ossining at a time when she told him she had been there for a couple of days. About this time Mrs. McHugh said she was confused and asked him to leave her house until she could get her mind straightened out and see what she wanted to do. Later she told him she was through with all men and he left and took up residence at the Hurley Hotel.

Going Out With Man

It was in the spring of 1949 this took place and he said later he found her going out with Glendenning. He said the Vermont man once came to the house and told him he was leaving Mrs. McHugh. Mrs. McHugh said Glendenning was drinking and she was giving him up. Kelly told of several telephone calls from the Vermont man telling him he had something to say about Mrs. McHugh. Kelly said he refused to discuss the matter except in front of Mrs. McHugh.

Kelly said all of these things upset him and he at one time left the house at 4 a. m. and drove around in his car until 7 a. m.

At this point the direct examination was halted and a recess was taken until 9:30 a. m. today.

Bares Atrocities

Col. James M. Hanley (above), head of the U.S. 8th Army's legal section caused a world stir recently with his sensational revelation that nearly 6,000 prisoners of war in Korea had been slain by Reds. Col. Hanley, shown at his desk in Pusan, said he divulged the "wanton murder" to let boys at the front know what they are up against.

Late Bulletins

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 20 (AP)—The U. S. embassy reported tonight an American plane was fired on twice by Hungarian and Romanian border guards and is now lost over Yugoslavia.

The plane is a military cargo craft which carried a crew of four. The C-47 transport, en route from Bavaria, Germany, to Belgrade, vanished yesterday. U. S. authorities in Frankfurt announced mammoth air search had been organized to comb the northern Adriatic Sea area, where it had been reported.

A dispatch from Budapest, Hungary, said the American legation there was informed by telegram from U. S. embassy in belgrade that the plane was seen twice by Yugoslav border guards, once near the Romanian and once near the Hungarian border. The Hungarian government said it knew nothing about any missing American plane.

Albany, Nov. 20 (AP)—Governor Dewey probably will call the Legislature into special session Dec. 5 to adopt a congressional reapportionment bill, reliable sources predicted today.

The Republican-controlled Senate and Assembly are expected to complete the action in one day, or two at the most.

The extraordinary session originally was planned for August. Then, because of delays in obtaining federal census figures, it was moved to October.

Later Nov. 12 was tentatively set as a date at one time. Recently it had been reported as Nov. 26 or Dec. 3.

Debate Held Up

sure of election, but a fight is expected between Greece, supported by the U. S., and a candidate from the Soviet bloc, possibly White Russia.

The western disarmament plan was formally introduced in the assembly political committee yesterday. If its path toward adoption follows the tortuous course of past assembly measures, it may draw demands for amendment, revision, and rewording, and may even have to contend with counter resolutions. The western powers believe, however, the veto-free assembly will finally approve their proposal.

Mother, Daughter Hurt in Accident

Mrs. Ruth Avery, 24, of Shokan, and her daughter, Frances, were injured slightly in a three-vehicle collision at West Hurley early this afternoon.

Mrs. Avery was taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment of bruises of the chest, back and neck and a scalp laceration and her daughter was treated at Shokan by a doctor for lacerations of the face and hands, state police said.

The trailer truck, sedan and lighter truck involved, police said, were all headed east on Route 28. The trailer operated by Edward Carroll, 30, of Rahway, N. J., was in the right lane, the light truck operated by James B. McAuliffe, 58, of West Hurley, was in the center ahead of the heavier vehicle, and the sedan, driven by Mrs. Avery was passing at the time of the mishap, the report said.

The sedan came upon the McAuliffe truck and swerved into the path of the other vehicle, an investigating state trooper said.

MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Grace Jansen, who passed away 2 years ago today, November 20, 1949.

From this world of pain and sorrow
To the land of peace and rest.
God has taken you dear loved one.
Where you have found eternal rest.

Signed
Children and Grandchildren

Memoriam

In memory of our loving mother Mrs. Lillian D. Rorrick, who passed away 14 years ago today, November 20, 1937.

At night the silent stars shine down,
On a grave not far from here.
Where sleeps the one we can't forget,
And always loved so dear.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

Memoriam

In loving memory of Maude Stokes, who passed away one year ago today, Nov. 20, 1950.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories, she left behind.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—In a quiet and uninteresting manner, the stock market today declined moderately.

The volume of business never reached the stage where it could be said that selling pressure was evident.

Nevertheless prices were down by fractions to a little more than a point among leaders. There were plus signs, but they were scattered widely.

Depressed most were rails, motors, coppers, chemicals, and rubbers. There was no single major group that could be placed in the upside list, but utilities and steels were steady.

American Telephone suffered a fractional loss in several short bursts of trading.

Studebaker held steady despite company plans to lay off employes in the first quarter next year because of reduced motor production and a disappointing amount of military work.

Sears Roebuck on the big board and Kaiser-Frazer on the curb exchange was steady against the down trend. They announced plans for Kaiser to make and Sears to market a car called the All-State that looks like the Henry J.

About the Folks

District Attorney Is Ready . . .

his childhood while his father worked for the New York Central railroad. His later years were spent in Kingston where he had an ambition to become a locomotive engineer but after working in the round house he left the railroad about the time he was married at the age of 22 and became a truck driver, taxi driver, salesman and finally a real estate broker.

Wife Left Him in 1940

His wife left him in 1940 when he assigned a Hurley farm to her and she took custody of an adopted son.

Kelly said he met Mrs. McHugh in 1941 through her sister and there followed years of friendship which were complicated with quarrels, fights and periods of peaceful calm when they planned to be married.

During the period Kelly's wife, who was in the WACS during the war, returned to Kingston and took custody of the boy. Kelly said he visited her home at times to see the boy and on those occasions Mrs. McHugh became jealous and accused him of paying attention to his former wife who had secured a Florida divorce. This attention he denied.

Didn't Keep Promise

There were times when Mrs. McHugh refused to see Kelly and went out with other men. Kelly testified she had been out with George Gardinier and he had watched her return home and accused her of going out with him. She denied it. He told of later calling the Gardinier home and ascertaining that Gardinier was married and when he told Mrs. McHugh this she promised not to see him again. She did not keep that promise, Kelly said, but continued to see him and also a Ralph Glendenning, who was a salesman from Vermont and who was in this area for a time.

At times the quarrels were of such heat that Mrs. McHugh called the police and at one time her father struck Kelly over the head with a piece of wood, cutting his head. He said he left the McHugh home and secured a room elsewhere.

Kelly told of watching the McHugh house and seeing Mrs. McHugh come home at 2 a. m. when she had told him she was not feeling well and had gone to bed. He told of her appearing at 6 a. m. one day. He called the Gardinier home that time and learned Gardinier had come home at 6:15 a. m.

From 1947 to 1949 they were on relatively friendly terms and had but slight arguments. He said they resumed plans to get married but there were some slight quarrels over his former wife. These caused them both to become upset but they usually made up in a day or two and resumed their friendship.

Shortly after the death of Mrs. McHugh's mother at Ossining, Kelly said there was an argument when he failed to attend the funeral and after he had accused Mrs. McHugh of not being at Ossining when she said she was there. He said he had phoned and had learned she was not in Ossining at a time when she told him she had been there for a couple of days. About this time Mrs. McHugh said she was confused and asked him to leave her house until she could get her mind straightened out and see what she wanted to do. Later she told him she was through with all men and he left and took up residence at the Hurley Hotel.

Going Out With Man

It was in the spring of 1949 this took place and he said later he found her going out with Glendenning. He said the Vermont man once came to the house and told him he was leaving Mrs. McHugh. Mrs. McHugh said Glendenning was drinking and she was giving him up. Kelly told of several telephone calls from the Vermont man telling him he had something to say about Mrs. McHugh. Kelly said he refused to discuss the matter except in front of Mrs. McHugh.

Kelly said all of these things upset him and he at one time left the house at 4 a. m. and drove around in his car until 7 a. m.

At this point the direct examination was halted and a recess was taken until 9:30 a. m. today.

Bares Atrocities

Col. James M. Hanley (above), head of the U.S. 8th Army's legal section caused a world stir recently with his sensational revelation that nearly 6,000 prisoners of war in Korea had been slain by Reds. Col. Hanley, shown at his desk in Pusan, said he divulged the "wanton murder" to let boys at the front know what they are up against.

Late Bulletins

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 20 (AP)—The U. S. embassy reported tonight an American plane was fired on twice by Hungarian and Romanian border guards and is now lost over Yugoslavia.

The plane is a military cargo craft which carried a crew of four. The C-47 transport, en route from Bavaria, Germany, to Belgrade, vanished yesterday. U. S. authorities in Frankfurt announced mammoth air search had been organized to comb the northern Adriatic Sea area, where it had been reported.

A dispatch from Budapest, Hungary, said the American legation there was informed by telegram from U. S. embassy in belgrade that the plane was seen twice by Yugoslav border guards, once near the Romanian and once near the Hungarian border. The Hungarian government said it knew nothing about any missing American plane.

Albany, Nov. 20 (AP)—Governor Dewey probably will call the Legislature into special session Dec. 5 to adopt a congressional reapportionment bill, reliable sources predicted today.

The Republican-controlled Senate and Assembly are expected to complete the action in one day, or two at the most.

The extraordinary session originally was planned for August. Then, because of delays in obtaining federal census figures, it was moved to October.

Later Nov. 12 was tentatively set as a date at one time. Recently it had been reported as Nov. 26 or Dec. 3.

sure of election, but a fight is expected between Greece, supported by the U. S., and a candidate from the Soviet bloc, possibly White Russia.

The western disarmament plan was formally introduced in the assembly political committee yesterday. If its path toward adoption follows the tortuous course of past assembly measures, it may draw demands for amendment, revision, and rewording, and may even have to contend with counter resolutions. The western powers believe, however, the veto-free assembly will finally approve their proposal.

Farmers Called To Do Their Share In Scrap Drive

Farmers in Ulster county have been called upon by the Agricultural Mobilization Committee to cooperate in every way possible with the nation's drive to gather all available scrap for steel production, so essential in defense mobilization.

Chairman John S. Geary advises that steel is made from approximately one-half scrap and one-half pig iron. Scrap adds to the quality of steel, helps keep production costs down, and this in turn helps the farmer, Geary points out.

Scrap prices are comparatively good right now, it was pointed out. Generally, farmers can count on getting higher prices than they received for scrap during World War 2.

Items Listed

Farmers are urged to round up farm scrap and sell it to scrap dealers. A partial list of items to look for: plow points and shares, cultivator shovels and sweeps, other broken machine parts, horse drawn equipment replaced by a tractor, old electric wire and cable, worn-out storage batteries, windmill and watertank towers replaced by modern pressure system. Wire and screening may be included as this lighter scrap is in demand since more steel products are made in lighter weights today.

Iron and steel scrap is wanted especially. There has been no call for lighter metals such as aluminum, or for such other materials as scrap rubber or paper.

Girl Shot to Death

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—A 15-year-old high school girl was shot to death in a Bronx parking lot shanty on her way to classes yesterday, and a 19-year-old youth later was arrested on a homicide charge. Authorities quoted John Rosenthal as saying he cocked a rifle in the shack and that it went off when he put it down. The bullet struck and killed Joan Buddenklepper, police said. The other 'teen age boys in the shanty at the time were questioned and released. The shooting occurred at a parking lot owned by Rosenthal's father.

Question Is Asked: Why Blood Plasma Goes to Argentine

New London, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Rep. Seely-Brown (R.-Conn.) has asked the State and Defense Departments and the American Red Cross whether or not a news story reporting the arrival of a ton of blood plasma in Buenos Aires is true.

The story, a special dispatch to the New York Sunday News, was brought to Seely-Brown's attention, he said, yesterday by an employe of the Electric Boat Company. She said she and fellow workers at the submarine shipyard were disturbed by the report because they have relatives in the armed forces.

Seely-Brown, in telegrams to the two departments and the Red Cross, said that if the dispatch is true an explanation should be made why plasma was being sent to Argentina "when it is needed for our fighting men in Korea."

He noted that Argentina has not contributed to the UN forces now engaged in Korea.

Called as Witness

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The widow of Abe (Kid Twist) Reles has been called as a witness before the Brooklyn grand jury investigating her husband's death 10 years ago while in police protective custody. Mrs. Reles was questioned for two hours yesterday. Chief Assistant District Attorney Edward S. Silver said she will go before the panel again this morning. The widow testified after the jury completed its examination of former Deputy Police Commissioner Frank C. Bals, who, as a police captain, was in charge of the detail guarding Reles. Reles died in a six-story plunge from a Coney Island hotel. His guards reportedly were in the next room. He had been a prosecution witness in trials of his associates in the Murder, Inc., mob.

STEERING THE UN

When the steering committee of the United Nations General Assembly voted against Assembly debate on the representation of China, it was taking a new step in the development of the organization. It was the first time that the committee had voted to keep a major issue off the Assembly floor.

The logic of its decision is immediately apparent. The Assembly, the Security Council and other UN groups have many times debated the question of whether Chinese seats should be occupied by delegates from the Nationalist government on Formosa or the Communst regime at Peiping. In every case the decision has been to continue to recognize the Nationalist representatives and to ignore the Peiping regime. There has been no change in the attitude of the various nations on the subject, nor can any be expected while Chinese Communists fight against the UN in Korea. It would therefore be a waste of time to consider the question.

If the UN is to survive as an effective world organization, acquiring more and more real control over world affairs, ways will have to be found to keep its forums open for the discussion of vital matters, and to prevent one nation or a minority group of nations from blocking action. This can be done only by a steering committee which really steers, and whose decisions must be ratified by the Assembly. It is noteworthy that the committee has, for the first time, taken up the responsibility for decisive action on a controversial issue.

SIGNIFICANT KAESONG

Relatively few Americans had heard of Kaesong before that city, as site of the Korean truce talks, became the subject of international interest and debate. Historians have pointed out, however, that the significance of Kaesong to Koreans is not a modern innovation. The city has played many important roles in the troubled history of Korea, and was the capital from 917 to 1360. Economically it is a center of the ginseng root industry and of the manufacture of porcelain ware.

The historical significance of the city may have entered into the Communist choice of it for the site of the truce talks as much as the fact that it was the only important city of South Korea which was in Red hands. The Communist leaders of both North Korea and China would be well aware of the meaning of Kaesong, and they have exploited it to the full.

In present times the story of Kaesong's part in the truce negotiations will doubtless overshadow past history, for Koreans as well as for others. Yet after a few years of peace the traditions will be remembered again. It is no wonder that the possession of Kaesong has become such a bitterly contended issue. The durability of peace might well hinge on such a matter.

While it does no good to cry over spilled milk, it is very useful to remember how the milk came to be spilled.

AUSTERITY FOR BRITAIN

The new Conservative government is taking Great Britain another stride along the pathway which led to defeat for the Labor government — the way of austerity. The term came into use during the war to denote the paring down of the material comforts of life to bare essentials in order to concentrate national energy on the test of war. Because of the ceonomic situation, austerity continued after the war, and a chief element in the Labor government's program was the unsuccessful attempt to relieve it.

The British may have thought they were down to bare essentials, but apparently the essentials can become even more bare. The government will further reduce imports, cut out some non-rationed foods, tax profits more heavily, and restrict building and travel more sharply.

The Conservatives already flirt with political disaster. It must be that they pin their hopes on another part of the economic program, a new effort to increase production by British industry. If they can be successful in this, where the Laborites failed, they might be able to put an end to austerity before facing a new election.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE RIGHTS OF FRANK SINATRA

Every American is entitled to the privacy of his own life, if he craves it. Frank Sinatra apparently craves it. He dislikes newspaper publicity. He resents being photographed with or without his wife. He literally hates newspaper photographers, calis them foul names, and threatens to break their cameras. He prides himself on his physical prowess.

Earl Wilson, the columnist, reports that Mrs. Sinatra, formerly known as Ava Gardner, told him:

"Frank's had this for years. He's very ingenious at lousing up newspapermen now. He has one idea. He wants to stick chewing gum in some camera. Instead of a picture, they will get a big blob of gum."

He could be arrested in some states for mayhem on cameras, but surely that does not matter to a Sinatra in search of privacy.

When a man resents having his picture taken, it should not be taken. Suppose Frank Sinatra's picture never appeared in any newspaper in the United States; suppose not one word were ever published about him or his singing or his escapades, or his divorce or marriage, would it be like an earthquake or a tidal wave or maybe an atom bomb falling upon millions? If the name, Sinatra, never appeared in a single newspaper, would the world sink back into Stygian blankness?

Yet, methinks he ought to have his way. If instead of newspaper cameramen struggling through crowds to snap a picture of Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner, they avoided both of them, saved their film for some serious purpose—would the reading public really miss something?

If such a course were followed say for six months, Sinatra would have his wish. He would enjoy complete privacy. Nobody would know he exists.

Surely a man is entitled to oblivion if he wants to live that way. Sinatra could then sing to himself, if that is what he believes he does. He could also sing to his wife, and nobody would know about it. Because this is true about him and many others; if the newspapers were to omit them, the public surely would forget them.

Sometimes, I wonder why newspaper photographers are so courteous? They are engaged in a very important reportorial function, namely, they provide a graphic presentation of the news. Often, their photographs are a more accurate and more understandable account of an incident than other reports that are written. They have to be intelligent workers or the camera would foul them up badly.

The camera-reporters, if I may coin such a phrase, the news reporters and the columnists take such a person as Frank Sinatra and give him a build-up because for some reason it is a habit in this business to assume that the public is vitally interested in what actors do even if they spit in the eye of a lady reporter.

When these theatrical folk are on the make, they curry favor and seek notices and hire publicity men to spread interesting and exciting tales about them, true or untrue. Then they often try the gag of seeking privacy, which some believe is of human interest.

I was told by an actress who was so dumb that her agent feared that if she spoke anything but lines written for her by an author, she would be a sure giveaway. So they told her to be natural and say nothing. For some reason, her refusal to speak became a newsworthy item and was so widely publicized that it became her trademark.

It seems to me sound that Frank Sinatra's trademark ought to be that he wants to avoid the public eye. If that is what he wants, he should be kept out of the public eye permanently. It would be mutually beneficial; he would have his privacy; the newspapers would save expensive newsprint; the photographers would save costly film and light bulbs and everybody would be happy.

Perhaps the day might come when Frank Sinatra would like to be remembered. He could accomplish that by beating up a reporter or he might in some manner humiliate a woman reporter. However, it is possible that by then, even such antics on his part would no longer attract attention because the practitioner of them would be so obscure.

This therapy might be tried on others who forget that no newspaperman, whether a camera reporter or a word reporter, enjoys chasing after a crumb. He only does it because it seems, for some reason, to be his duty.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

DISTURBANCES OF GROWTH

When parents find that their youngster does not seem to be growing as he should and is underweight as compared with other children of the same age, they cannot understand it. They are of normal or average height and weight and were so as children.

In Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. Joseph A. Johnston, Pediatrician-in-Chief, Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, states that of 140 children brought by parents because of abnormality of growth and development, the great majority were really of normal growth, weight and development, the parents failing to realize that there can be wide differences within normal range. "Commonly, a comparison of their child with a neighbor's of similar age led to the parents' concern about their child."

For years, most physicians have been using the age, height and weight tables as issued by insurance and other organizations, but allowing for the different types or kinds of physique or build — average, slender, stocky. These tables serve their purpose in a general way but when there is a definite defect, deficiency or retardation of the child's growth and development, there are several other factors which may enter into the situation.

Dr. Johnston states that the solution of the problem of retarded growth involves a consideration of the following major factors: heredity, diet, infection, congenital defects (at birth), the major systems of the body (central nervous, heart and lungs, genito-urinary), stomach and intestines, muscles and bones, and the endocrine glands (thyroid, pituitary, adrenal, sex).

As to heredity, it can be seen that the child usually resembles in physique the family of one or both parents. If he fails to follow this pattern, one of the other factors, above mentioned, may be the cause.

As to diet, we have made such progress that an all-round diet — meat, vegetables, fruit — to which vitamins and minerals are sometimes added, makes for growth and bone and muscle development.

As to infection, it is pointed out how infection drains all the body's reserves and so interferes with growth development. The removal of infected teeth and tonsils often gives the youngster a new start in growth.

While some defects which occur at birth are difficult to correct, requiring careful feeding, injections of iron and liver extract, and more outdoor life, other defects due to inactivity or glands (thyroid, sex, adrenal) can be corrected to a considerable extent by use of gland extracts.

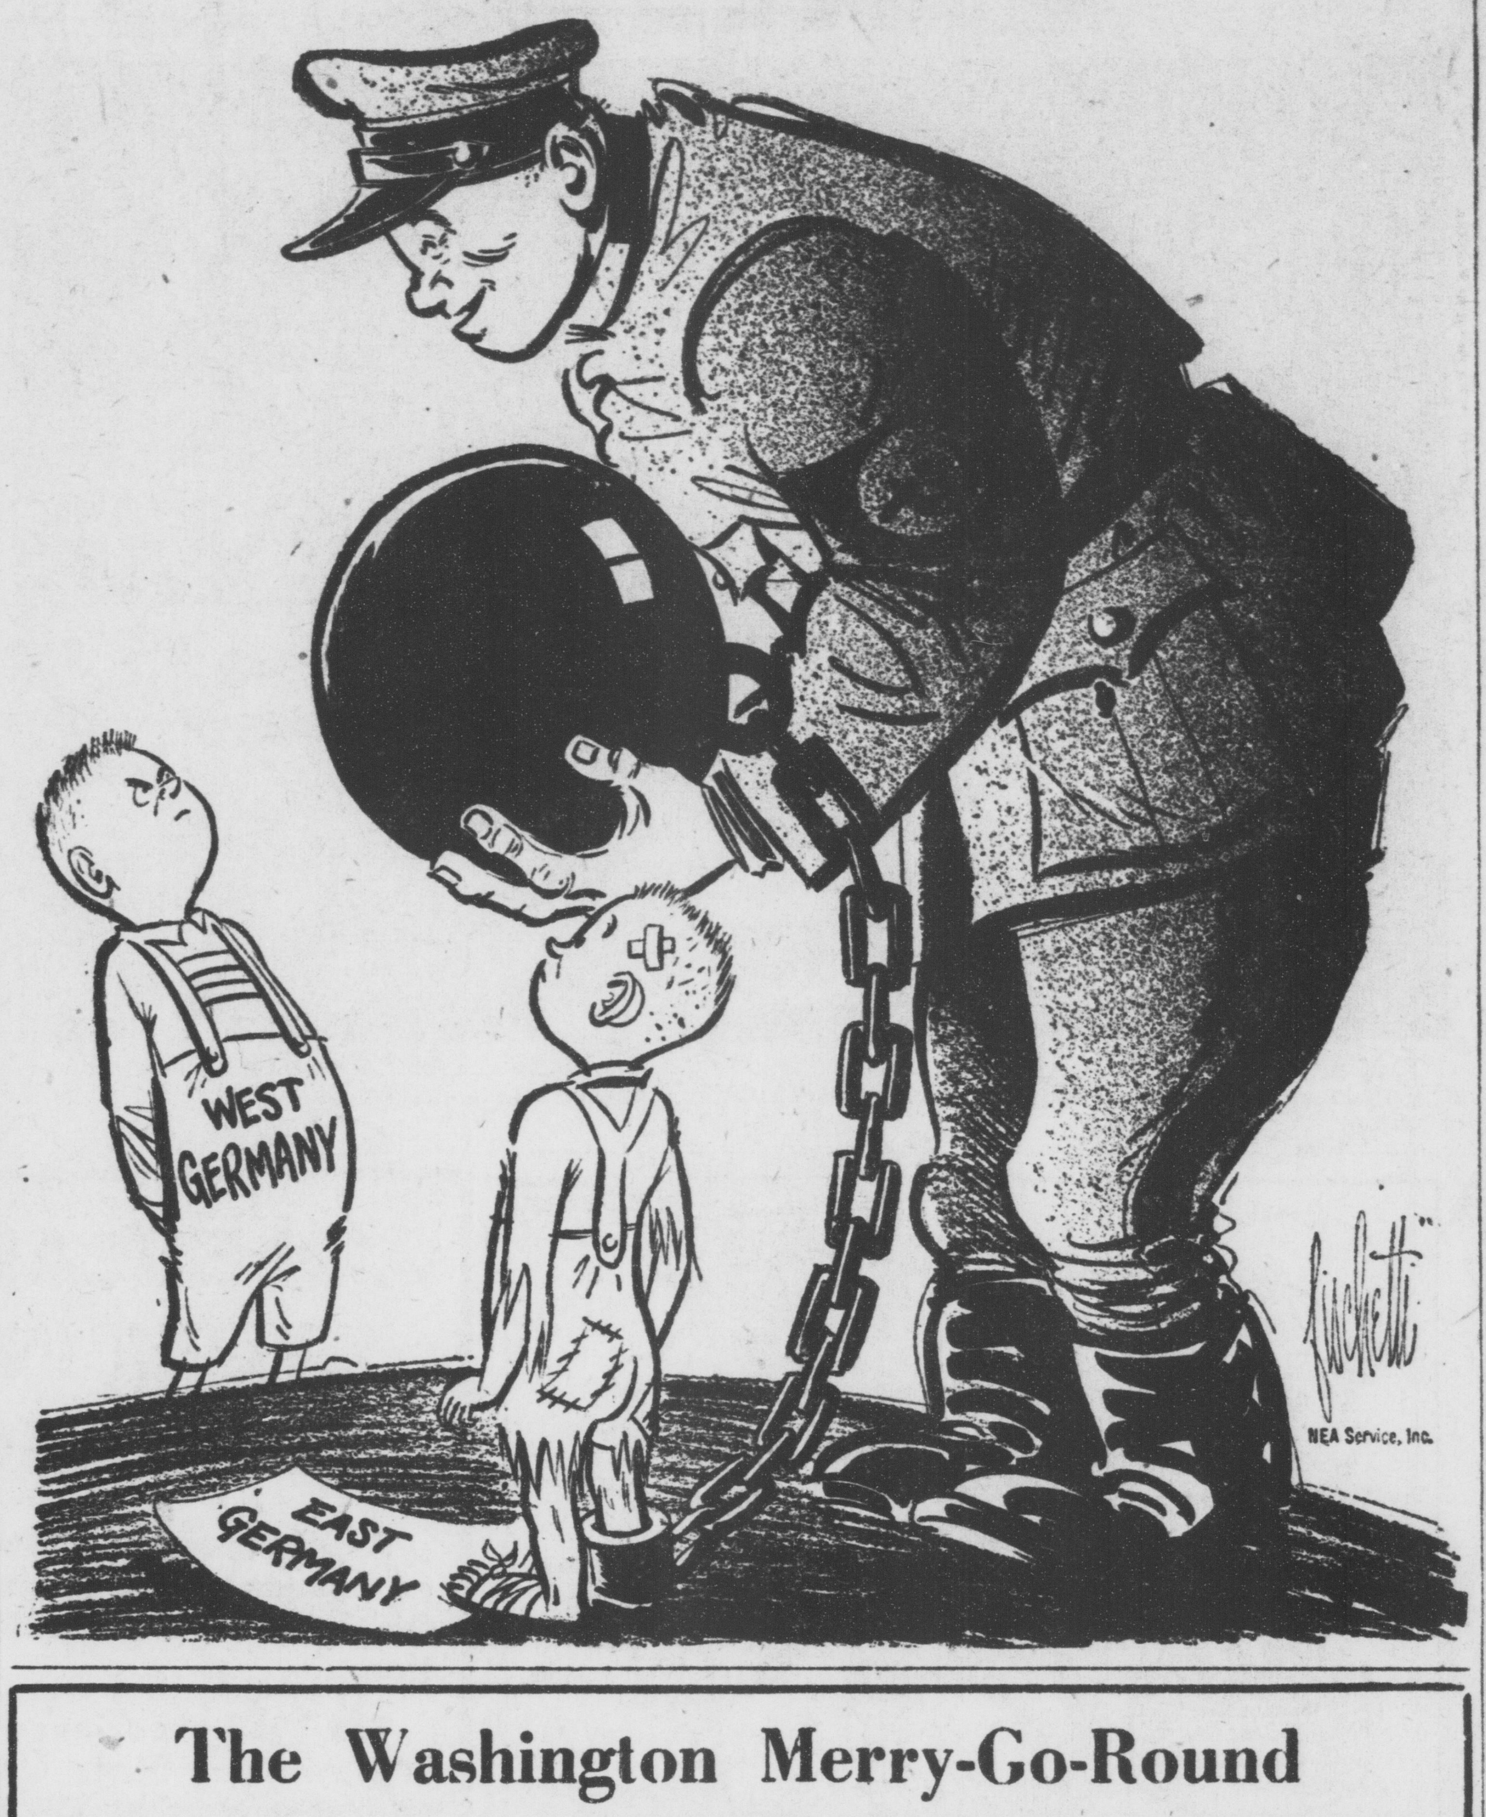
"Why Don't You Play Ball With Him?"



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Two of the nation's top newspapers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Providence, R. I., Bulletin last week published a story regarding the Ripps-Mitchell income-tax case in Mobile, Ala., charging Assistant Attorney General Lamar Caudle with failure to prosecute.

Both these papers have done notable jobs in exposing corruption, but since I had something to do with the conviction of these two income-tax evaders, perhaps the inside story of what happened is worth telling—for two reasons: 1. To illustrate how tax cases sometimes get stymied; 2. In fairness to Mr. Caudle, who has been kicked around a lot and who, though indiscreet in his choice of friends, in my opinion is honest.

Much of the story was told in a column dated Dec. 16, 1949, when the Washington Merry-go-Round two years ago began calling attention to shocking and then little-noticed income-tax scandals.

Sam Ripps and Joe Mitchell had made a fortune selling millions of dollars worth of jewelry to Army PX's during the war, following which treasury agents caught them keeping two sets of books, claimed they owed at least $700,000 in taxes and recommended criminal prosecution. The column of Dec. 16, '49 then proceeds:

"Ripps and Mitchell immediately began to pull every political wire south or north of the Mason-Dixon line. First they tried to hire Joe Nunan, former commissioner of internal revenue. Then they negotiated with Martin Sweaber, a good friend of Nunan's. Then they retained William Nicholson of Charlotte, N. C., former law partner of Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division.

"Caudle phoned his former partner, asked him to withdraw from the case. He did so.

Law Partner Got Fee

"Finally, however, Mitchell and Ripps approached Will Walter Bankhead of Alabama's politically powerful Bankhead family, and through him retained Ben Leader, former law partner of the U. S. attorney in Birmingham, John Hill. Significantly, it was Hill who was to try the case.

"That case, however, has never been tried," continued the Merry-Go-Round on Dec. 16, 1949. "It was sent by the Justice Department (Caudle) to Hill for prosecution, but that was as far as it got. U. S. Attorney Hill held a conference with justice and treasury men in Birmingham at which he contended he did not have sufficient evidence. In the end, and with their concurrence, the prosecution of jewelry profiteers Ripps and Mitchell was sent back to Washington as closed.

"Meanwhile, this column, probing the tax fraud, unearthed some interesting facts. Ben Leader, when questioned, admitted he was Hill's former law partner; also admitted he received a fee of $12,000."

At this point it appeared that the Ripps-Mitchell case was stopped cold. It looked to me as if it had about as much chance of reaching prosecution as a freight train of crossing the Great Divide without an engine.

The column of Dec. 16, 1949, continued with other details. But here are some background facts I did not publish. Jack Anderson, the Merry-Go-Round reporter whom I sent to Mobile and Birmingham to button up the story, brought back what looked to me like new evidence, and I arranged an appointment at the Justice Department with Lamar Caudle, Turner Smith, in charge of the criminal section of the tax division, and John Mitchell, the Justice Department attorney who had gone to Birmingham to confer with Hill and who had concurred that the case should not be prosecuted.

Phony Bookkeeping

Mr. Anderson and I made a full presentation of what we considered shocking facts. These included a bookkeeping system whereby Ripps and Mitchell let their small checks and cash accumulate. Then, when a big check came in, they deposited the accumulated small checks and cash to the same amount as the big check, in order to make it appear that the big check had been cashed. Actually the big check was converted into a cashier's check, then sent by a roundabout way through the Jefferson Investment Co., of St. Louis, controlled by Mitchell, to the Paramount Check Cashing Service in New York.

During our conference, Caudle several times remarked that there certainly ought to be enough evidence to prosecute, and immediately thereafter, he sent John Mitchell (no relation to Joe Mitchell) to Mobile to reopen the entire case. The two tax defrauders were then indicted, pleaded guilty and are now in jail.

Honest T-Men

There were some other interesting angles to the Ripps-Mitchell case. One was that at Christmas 1946 Sam Ripps sent presents to the Treasury agents who had been working on the case. The packages were returned unopened. Also a defense lawyer sent to Mobile from New York hinted to T-Men that they weren't paid enough by the government and could make more money on the outside. The T-Men did not take the hint.

At a time when internal revenue is under heavy fire, I should like to repeat that my own investigation of this and many other cases convinces me that the great majority of T-Men are honest.

Real hero of the Ripps-Mitchell prosecution, incidentally, was Robert Cox, the Mobile T-Man who handled the case, and who kept at it despite great discouragement.

I reported in December, 1949, that Congressman Frank Boykin had gone to Joe Mitchell's defense, as he had in various other scrapes. I also heard, but could not confirm, that Ripps and Mitchell had made a heavy contribution to the Democratic National Committee.

I suspected, but could not prove, that someone in Washington was not enthusiastic about prosecuting the Ripps-Mitchell case. But I am convinced it was not Caudle. Caudle had sent the case to Birmingham with a recommendation for criminal prosecution long before I began looking into it. And after I talked to him, he exhibited the greatest determination and enthusiasm for prying the case loose from its stymie and getting a conviction.

An Aquatic Touchdown

Ed Cook, playing left halfback on the Sooner team, actually swam to a touchdown in a game played with the Aggies at Island Park, Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 6, 1904. The Sooners had pushed the ball down to the Aggie 6-inch line, and then lost it. The Aggie fullback dropped back, received the ball and punted almost straight in the air. A strong wind caught the ball and blew it back 20 yards into deep Cottonwood creek. In those days a loose punt was the property of the recovering team, no matter how far out of bounds. In the wild scramble, Cook was the only one who could hold the elusive pigskin long enough to swim ashore, and the touchdown was his as he waded out and touched the ball to the bank.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

London — The political group called Americans for Democratic Action is actually a Marxian Socialist organization generally identical with the so-called Labor Party in Great Britain, which is now frankly known as the Socialist Party. The British Fabian Socialists realized that Marx and socialism were "bad" political words and therefore adopted the appealing alias of "Labor." Marx was a foreigner and a German at that and Marxism is not only socialism but is pre-communism, too. If the Attlee party of Marxists had honestly adopted the name of socialism, they would have taken on the onus of many failures in Britain, the United States and continental countries. So they called their brand of Marx "Labor" and this ruse helped them rise to a season of power which has finally and hopelessly done for capitalism and free society in the British Isles. That is flat. Churchill can't save them.

It would be futile to try to teach Americans a hurry-course in the history of Americans for Democratic Action under a London dateline a few of us punditi of the American press have exposed it fitfully since it sneaked into the scene in 1947. But it still is an unknown and an almost unheard-of quantity. Walter White, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, claims that he was the one who needled Truman to appoint a committee largely composed of fellow-travelers to bring in the notorious "Civil Rights" report demanding compulsory racial congeniality in the American South. But the real master-mind in this job was Americans for Democratic Action and the report, written by members of the A.D.A. under the guidance of a committee counsel who admits having been a Communist, was ballyhooed with a gala display in the official Communist book store in New York.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, of Minnesota, a nominal Democrat, just as many British Socialist-Communists disguise themselves as "Laborites," is a founding father of A.D.A. Chester Bowles, the old-time Park avenue high-pitch man who served one term as governor of Connecticut, is another power in the conspiracy. He has been sent to India as ambassador. This means that Truman, now a prisoner of the Socialist-Communist forces, has given the Marxian movement an important post of great power in the American politico-diplomatic service. Frank Graham, who was defeated for the Senate on the straight issue of communism, was rewarded with a lame-duck appointment to lead a "mission" to India to cooperate with politicians of similar hue while bearing credentials from the State Department. Graham is a leader of A.D.A.

Senator William Benton, of Connecticut, formerly Bowles's partner in the advertising firm which made them rich, is now represented in the British Isles by a special agent named John Howe, formerly of the University of Chicago. Howe's ideology generally gees with that of A.D.A., although he says he is not a member and insists that Benton is not. Howe is the organizer in charge of Benton's attempt to smear Senator Joe McCarthy for exposing Communists in the State Department. He admits that this effort is foredoomed but says it will be worthwhile in its total smear-effect on McCarthy whom Benton has charged with smearing Communists, fellow-travelers and homosexuals. Howe claims that he wrote Truman's first speech as President and recently remarked that on the completion of some mission in Europe last year, he telephoned his "report" to the State Department from one of the luxurious British "Queen" boats at a cost of about $300 "to you taxpayers."

The covert relation between A.D.A. and the British Socialist-Communist "Labor Party" is a stealthy political development which may only be revealed a piece at a time. But the conspirators could have carried on secretly much further if they were not so fond of boasting.

Thus, A.D.A. ballyhooed the reign of the British Marxists, which has now come to disaster, advocating the same system for the United States, when it might better have kept quiet, and boasted that its representatives in London were collaborating with the Attlee group. This was the first public intimation that the A.D.A. had branched out overseas. John Walton, a press relations man for the British Trades Union Congress, said he had known David C. Williams, formerly the acknowledged representative, who went back to New York to be "director of education and training." Mr. Walton also knew several other such agents. The British Marxians are much bolder about their foreign intrusions than the American socialists. They frankly assume a mission as political guerrillas in league with unofficial political organizations on the continent to put down "communism" there although their own ism is not easily distinguished from the Russian. What the difference amounts to is that they are against Stalin, the iron curtain and such superficial details. David Dubinsky and Walter Reuther are similarly engaged on the continent where Dubinsky's chief political agent, one Irving Brown, threatened to organize a violent "counter-terror" against French Communist rioters, according to David J. Dallin, a leading advocate of international meddling by American unions.

The American unions have absolutely no authority from anyone to interfere in the domestic affairs of European countries. Indeed, this program violates the rules of the State Department laid down for law-abiding citizens going abroad. The A.D.A. is similarly situated.

Health for All

Visiting the TB Patient

The friend or relative who visits a patient in a tuberculosis hospital can be a great help both to the patient and to members of the hospital staff who are doing all they can to help the sick person regain his health.

There are several ways in which the visitor can be helpful. First of all, he should go to see the patient as often as possible—on the proper days and during the hours set aside by the hospital for that purpose. Frequent visits at the right time will assure the patient that he is not forgotten, help him while away the many hours of rest necessary for his cure, and counteract the loneliness he might feel in being away from home.

The wise visitor brings the patient the more heartening news from home, although he does not sacrifice truth just to make the patient feel better. The sick person is usually quick to notice evasiveness and a deceptive statement will make him imagine things worse than they really are. On the other hand, the visitor can steer conversation into cheerful channels, emphasizing the happy and humorous side of the news from home, the community, or the job.

There are also diplomatic ways of helping the patient build his confidence in himself, his treatment, and the hospital staff. When the opportunity arises, the visitor can remind the patient that those at the hospital know what is best for him, whether it be in the matter of rest, privileges, food, special medicines, or anything else that pertains to his illness and its treatment.

On this score, the visitor sometimes has a chance to do the patient a great service by encouraging the sick person to stay at the hospital until the doctor says he is ready to leave.

There are times when his long hospital stay and prolonged separation from his family make the tuberculosis patient restless and eager to get back to routine living, before the doctor feels it is safe for him to do so. When this happens, a visitor who has the sick person's best interests at heart will urge the patient to complete his cure at the hospital in order to give himself the best chance of getting well and staying well.

In short, the visitor cannot only brighten a patient's day, but also help him accept his treatment. The visitor should also bear in mind that hospital rules were made for the good of all patients, including the one he visits, and abide by them.

Dye at Home

An item under 4½ pounds can be dyed successfully in the washing machine advises a home economics bureau. The dye is dissolved in a quart jar or pitcher of very hot water, using a wooden stick or spoon to stir. The solution is then poured into an automatic washing machine after enough water has come in to completely cover the article. The article should not be wrung out after dyeing. Just squeeze out excess water gently and hang article in the shade — indoors or out.

Safety First

If lights are desired in windows during the holiday season, never use candles. Keep curtains and other flammable material pulled back at least six inches from any electric light. Use non-inflammable decorations of glass or metal. After Christmas presents have been opened, remove all gift wrappings and packing material from your living room and dispose of them.

STEERING THE UN

When the steering committee of the United Nations General Assembly voted against Assembly debate on the representation of China, it was taking a new step in the development of the organization. It was the first time that the committee had voted to keep a major issue off the Assembly floor.

The logic of its decision is immediately apparent. The Assembly, the Security Council and other UN groups have many times debated the question of whether Chinese seats should be occupied by delegates from the Nationalist government on Formosa or the Communst regime at Peiping. In every case the decision has been to continue to recognize the Nationalist representatives and to ignore the Peiping regime. There has been no change in the attitude of the various nations on the subject, nor can any be expected while Chinese Communists fight against the UN in Korea. It would therefore be a waste of time to consider the question.

If the UN is to survive as an effective world organization, acquiring more and more real control over world affairs, ways will have to be found to keep its forums open for the discussion of vital matters, and to prevent one nation or a minority group of nations from blocking action. This can be done only by a steering committee which really steers, and whose decisions must be ratified by the Assembly. It is noteworthy that the committee has, for the first time, taken up the responsibility for decisive action on a controversial issue.

SIGNIFICANT KAESONG

Relatively few Americans had heard of Kaesong before that city, as site of the Korean truce talks, became the subject of international interest and debate. Historians have pointed out, however, that the significance of Kaesong to Koreans is not a modern innovation. The city has played many important roles in the troubled history of Korea, and was the capital from 917 to 1360. Economically it is a center of the ginseng root industry and of the manufacture of porcelain ware.

The historical significance of the city may have entered into the Communist choice of it for the site of the truce talks as much as the fact that it was the only important city of South Korea which was in Red hands. The Communist leaders of both North Korea and China would be well aware of the meaning of Kaesong, and they have exploited it to the full.

In present times the story of Kaesong's part in the truce negotiations will doubtless overshadow past history, for Koreans as well as for others. Yet after a few years of peace the traditions will be remembered again. It is no wonder that the possession of Kaesong has become such a bitterly contended issue. The durability of peace might well hinge on such a matter.

While it does no good to cry over spilled milk, it is very useful to remember how the milk came to be spilled.

AUSTERITY FOR BRITAIN

The new Conservative government is taking Great Britain another stride along the pathway which led to defeat for the Labor government — the way of austerity. The term came into use during the war to denote the paring down of the material comforts of life to bare essentials in order to concentrate national energy on the test of war. Because of the ceonomic situation, austerity continued after the war, and a chief element in the Labor government's program was the unsuccessful attempt to relieve it.

The British may have thought they were down to bare essentials, but apparently the essentials can become even more bare. The government will further reduce imports, cut out some non-rationed foods, tax profits more heavily, and restrict building and travel more sharply.

The Conservatives already flirt with political disaster. It must be that they pin their hopes on another part of the economic program, a new effort to increase production by British industry. If they can be successful in this, where the Laborites failed, they might be able to put an end to austerity before facing a new election.

'These Days'

THE RIGHTS OF FRANK SINATRA

Every American is entitled to the privacy of his own life, if he craves it. Frank Sinatra apparently craves it. He dislikes newspaper publicity. He resents being photographed with or without his wife. He literally hates newspaper photographers, calls them foul names, and threatens to break their cameras. He prides himself on his physical prowess.

Earl Wilson, the columnist, reports that Mrs. Sinatra, formerly known as Ava Gardner, told him:

"Frank's had this for years. He's very ingenious at lousing up newspapermen now. He has one idea. He wants to stick chewing gum in some camera. Instead of a picture, they will get a big blob of gum."

He could be arrested in some states for mayhem on cameras, but surely that does not matter to a Sinatra in search of privacy.

When a man resents having his picture taken, it should not be taken. Suppose Frank Sinatra's picture never appeared in any newspaper in the United States; suppose not one word were ever published about him or his singing or his escapades, or his divorce or marriage, would it be like an earthquake or a tidal wave or maybe an atom bomb falling upon millions? If the name, Sinatra, never appeared in a single newspaper, would the world sink back into Stygian blankness?

Yet, methinks he ought to have his way. If instead of newspaper cameramen struggling through crowds to snap a picture of Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner, they avoided both of them, saved their film for some serious purpose—would the reading public really miss something?

If such a course were followed say for six months, Sinatra would have his wish. He would enjoy complete privacy. Nobody would know he exists.

Surely a man is entitled to oblivion if he wants to live that way. Sinatra could then sing to himself, if that is what he believes he does. He could also sing to his wife, and nobody would know about it. Because this is true about him and many others; if the newspapers were to omit them, the public surely would forget them.

Sometimes, I wonder why newspaper photographers are so courteous? They are engaged in a very important reportorial function, namely, they provide a graphic presentation of the news. Often, their photographs are a more accurate and more understandable account of an incident than other reports that are written. They have to be intelligent workers or the camera would foul them up badly.

The camera-reporters, if I may coin such a phrase, the news reporters and the columnists take such a person as Frank Sinatra and give him a build-up because for some reason it is a habit in this business to assume that the public is vitally interested in what actors do even if they spit in the eye of a lady reporter.

When these theatrical folk are on the make, they curry favor and seek notices and hire publicity men to spread interesting and exciting tales about them, true or untrue. Then they often try the gag of seeking privacy, which some believe is of human interest.

I was told by an actress who was so dumb that her agent feared that if she spoke anything but lines written for her by an author, she would be a sure giveaway. So they told her to be natural and say nothing. For some reason, her refusal to speak became a newsworthy item and was so widely publicized that it became her trademark.

It seems to me sound that Frank Sinatra's trademark ought to be that he wants to avoid the public eye. If that is what he wants, he should be kept out of the public eye permanently. It would be mutually beneficial; he would have his privacy; the newspapers would save expensive newsprint; the photographers would save costly film and light bulbs and everybody would be happy.

Perhaps the day might come when Frank Sinatra would like to be remembered. He could accomplish that by beating up a reporter or he might in some manner humiliate a woman reporter. However, it is possible that by then, even such antics on his part would no longer attract attention because the practitioner of them would be so obscure.

This therapy might be tried on others who forget that no newspaperman, whether a camera reporter or a word reporter, enjoys chasing after a crumb. He only does it because it seems, for some reason, to be his duty.

That Body of Yours

DISTURBANCES OF GROWTH

When parents find that their youngster does not seem to be growing as he should and is underweight as compared with other children of the same age, they cannot understand it. They are of normal or average height and weight and were so as children.

In Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. Joseph A. Johnston, Pediatrician-in-Chief, Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, states that of 140 children brought by parents because of abnormality of growth and development, the great majority were really of normal growth, weight and development, the parents failing to realize that there can be wide differences within normal range. "Commonly, a comparison of their child with a neighbor's of similar age led to the parents' concern about their child."

For years, most physicians have been using the age, height and weight tables as issued by insurance and other organizations, but allowing for the different types or kinds of physique or build — average, slender, stocky. These tables serve their purpose in a general way but when there is a definite defect, deficiency or retardation of the child's growth and development, there are several other factors which may enter into the situation.

Dr. Johnston states that the solution of the problem of retarded growth involves a consideration of the following major factors: heredity, diet, infection, congenital defects (at birth), the major systems of the body (central nervous, heart and lungs, genito-urinary), stomach and intestines, muscles and bones, and the endocrine glands (thyroid, pituitary, adrenal, sex).

As to heredity, it can be seen that the child usually resembles in physique the family of one or both parents. If he fails to follow this pattern, one of the other factors, above mentioned, may be the cause.

As to diet, we have made such progress that an all-round diet — meat, vegetables, fruit — to which vitamins and minerals are sometimes added, makes for growth and bone and muscle development.

As to infection, it is pointed out how infection drains all the body's reserves and so interferes with growth development. The removal of infected teeth and tonsils often gives the youngster a new start in growth.

While some defects which occur at birth are difficult to correct, requiring careful feeding, injections of iron and liver extract, and more outdoor life, other defects due to inactivity or glands (thyroid, sex, adrenal) can be corrected to a considerable extent by use of gland extracts.

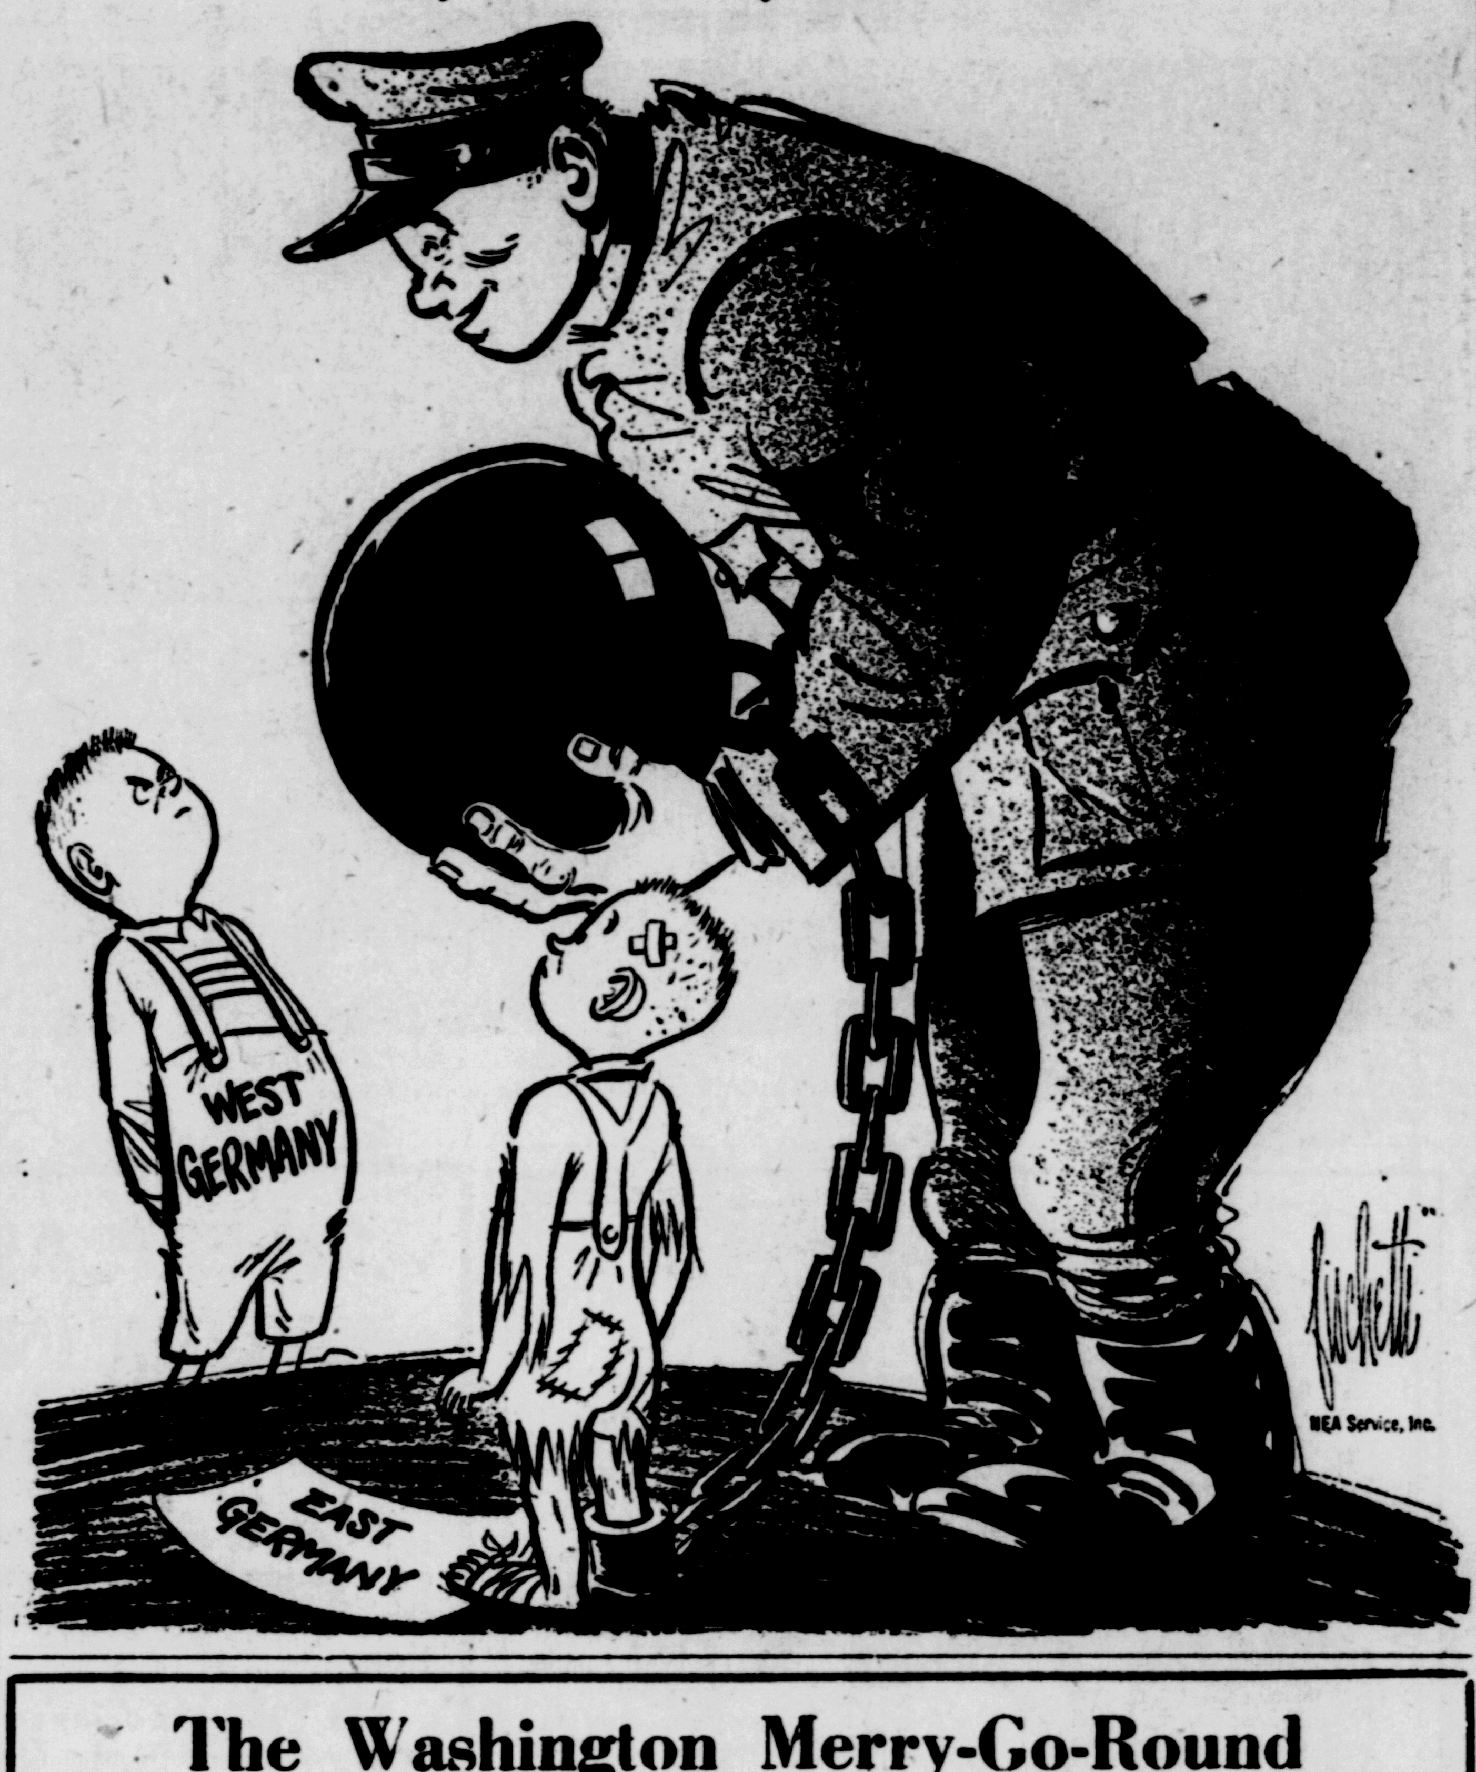
"Why Don't You Play Ball With Him?"



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Two of the nation's top newspapers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Providence, R. I., Bulletin last week published a story regarding the Ripps-Mitchell income-tax case in Mobile, Ala., charging Assistant Attorney General Lamar Caudle with failure to prosecute.

Both these papers have done notable jobs in exposing corruption, but since I had something to do with the conviction of these two income-tax evaders, perhaps the inside story of what happened is worth telling—for two reasons: 1. To illustrate how tax cases sometimes get stymied; 2. In fairness to Mr. Caudle, who has been kicked around a lot and who, though indiscreet in his choice of friends, in my opinion is honest.

Much of the story was told in a column dated Dec. 16, 1949, when the Washington Merry-go-Round two years ago began calling attention to shocking and then little-noticed income-tax scandals.

Sam Ripps and Joe Mitchell had made a fortune selling millions of dollars worth of jewelry to Army PX's during the war, following which treasury agents caught them keeping two sets of books, claimed they owed at least $700,000 in taxes and recommended criminal prosecution. The column of Dec. 16, '49 then proceeds:

"Ripps and Mitchell immediately began to pull every political wire south or north of the Mason-Dixon line. First they tried to hire Joe Nunan, former commissioner of internal revenue. Then they negotiated with Martin Sweaber, a good friend of Nunan's. Then they retained William Nicholson of Charlotte, N. C., former law partner of Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division.

"Caudle phoned his former partner, asked him to withdraw from the case. He did so.

Law Partner Got Fee

"Finally, however, Mitchell and Ripps approached Will Walter Bankhead of Alabama's politically powerful Bankhead family, and through him retained Ben Leader, former law partner of the U. S. attorney in Birmingham, John Hill. Significantly, it was Hill who was to try the case.

"That case, however, has never been tried," continued the Merry-Go-Round on Dec. 16, 1949. "It was sent by the Justice Department (Caudle) to Hill for prosecution, but that was as far as it got. U. S. Attorney Hill held a conference with justice and treasury men in Birmingham at which he contended he did not have sufficient evidence. In the end, and with their concurrence, the prosecution of jewelry profiteers Ripps and Mitchell was sent back to Washington as closed.

"Meanwhile, this column, probing the tax fraud, unearthed some interesting facts. Ben Leader, when questioned, admitted he was Hill's former law partner; also admitted he received a fee of $12,000."

At this point it appeared that the Ripps-Mitchell case was stopped cold. It looked to me as if it had about as much chance of reaching prosecution as a freight train of crossing the Great Divide without an engine.

The column of Dec. 16, 1949, continued with other details. But here are some background facts I did not publish. Jack Anderson, the Merry-Go-Round reporter whom I sent to Mobile and Birmingham to button up the story, brought back what looked to me like new evidence, and I arranged an appointment at the Justice Department with Lamar Caudle, Turner Smith, in charge of the criminal section of the tax division, and John Mitchell, the Justice Department attorney who had gone to Birmingham to confer with Hill and who had concurred that the case should not be prosecuted.

Phony Bookkeeping

Mr. Anderson and I made a full presentation of what we considered shocking facts. These included a bookkeeping system whereby Ripps and Mitchell let their small checks and cash accumulate. Then, when a big check came in, they deposited the accumulated small checks and cash to the same amount as the big check, in order to make it appear that the big check had been cashed. Actually the big check was converted into a cashier's check, then sent by a roundabout way through the Jefferson Investment Co., of St. Louis, controlled by Mitchell, to the Paramount Check Cashing Service in New York.

During our conference, Caudle several times remarked that there certainly ought to be enough evidence to prosecute, and immediately thereafter, he sent John Mitchell (no relation to Joe Mitchell) to Mobile to reopen the entire case. The two tax defrauders were then indicted, pleaded guilty and are now in jail.

Honest T-Men

There were some other interesting angles to the Ripps-Mitchell case. One was that at Christmas 1946 Sam Ripps sent presents to the Treasury agents who had been working on the case. The packages were returned unopened. Also a defense lawyer sent to Mobile from New York hinted to T-Men that they weren't paid enough by the government and could make more money on the outside. The T-Men did not take the hint.

At a time when internal revenue is under heavy fire, I should like to repeat that my own investigation of this and many other cases convinces me that the great majority of T-Men are honest.

Real hero of the Ripps-Mitchell prosecution, incidentally, was Robert Cox, the Mobile T-Man who handled the case, and who kept at it despite great discouragement.

I reported in December, 1949, that Congressman Frank Boykin had gone to Joe Mitchell's defense, as he had in various other scrapes. I also heard, but could not confirm, that Ripps and Mitchell had made a heavy contribution to the Democratic National Committee.

I suspected, but could not prove, that someone in Washington was not enthusiastic about prosecuting the Ripps-Mitchell case. But I am convinced it was not Caudle. Caudle had sent the case to Birmingham with a recommendation for criminal prosecution long before I began looking into it. And after I talked to him, he exhibited the greatest determination and enthusiasm for prying the case loose from its stymie and getting a conviction.

E. COOK - Oklahoma University halfback - SWAM TO A TOUCHDOWN!
A BLOCKED KICK FELL INTO A RIVER BEHIND THE GOAL POSTS AND COOK DOVE IN AND SWAM THE BALL BACK FOR A TOUCHDOWN (Guthrie, Okla. Nov. 6, 1904)

An Aquatic Touchdown

Ed Cook, playing left halfback on the Sooner team, actually swam to a touchdown in a game played with the Aggies at Island Park, Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 6, 1904. The Sooners had pushed the ball down to the Aggie 6-inch line, and then lost it. The Aggie fullback dropped back, received the ball and punted almost straight in the air. A strong wind caught the ball and blew it back 20 yards into deep Cottonwood creek. In those days a loose punt was the property of the recovering team, no matter how far out of bounds. In the wild scramble, Cook was the only one who could hold the elusive pigskin long enough to swim ashore, and the touchdown was his as he waded out and touched the ball to the bank.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

London — The political group called Americans for Democratic Action is actually a Marxian Socialist organization generally identical with the so-called Labor Party in Great Britain, which is now frankly known as the Socialist Party. The British Fabian Socialists realized that Marx and socialism were "bad" political words and therefore adopted the appealing alias of "Labor." Marx was a foreigner and a German at that and Marxism is not only socialism but is pre-communism, too. If the Attlee party of Marxists had honestly adopted the name of socialism, they would have taken on the onus of many failures in Britain, the United States and continental countries. So they called their brand of Marx "Labor" and this ruse helped them rise to a season of power which has finally and hopelessly done for capitalism and free society in the British Isles. That is flat. Churchill can't save them.

It would be futile to try to teach Americans a hurry-course in the history of Americans for Democratic Action under a London dateline a few of us punditi of the American press have exposed it fitfully since it sneaked into the scene in 1947. But it still is an unknown and an almost unheard-of quantity. Walter White, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, claims that he was the one who needled Truman to appoint a committee largely composed of fellow-travelers to bring in the notorious "Civil Rights" report demanding compulsory racial congeniality in the American South. But the real master-mind in this job was Americans for Democratic Action and the report, written by members of the A.D.A. under the guidance of a committee counsel who admits having been a Communist, was ballyhooed with a gala display in the official Communist book store in New York.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, of Minnesota, a nominal Democrat, just as many British Socialist-Communists disguise themselves as "Laborites," is a founding father of A.D.A. Chester Bowles, the old-time Park avenue high-pitch man who served one term as governor of Connecticut, is another power in the conspiracy. He has been sent to India as ambassador. This means that Truman, now a prisoner of the Socialist-Communist forces, has given the Marxian movement an important post of great power in the American politico-diplomatic service. Frank Graham, who was defeated for the Senate on the straight issue of communism, was rewarded with a lame-duck appointment to lead a "mission" to India to cooperate with politicians of similar hue while bearing credentials from the State Department. Graham is a leader of A.D.A.

Senator William Benton, of Connecticut, formerly Bowles's partner in the advertising firm which made them rich, is now represented in the British Isles by a special agent named John Howe, formerly of the University of Chicago. Howe's ideology generally gees with that of A.D.A., although he says he is not a member and insists that Benton is not. Howe is the organizer in charge of Benton's attempt to smear Senator Joe McCarthy for exposing Communists in the State Department. He admits that this effort is foredoomed but says it will be worthwhile in its total smear-effect on McCarthy whom Benton has charged with smearing Communists, fellow-travelers and homosexuals. Howe claims that he wrote Truman's first speech as President and recently remarked that on the completion of some mission in Europe last year, he telephoned his "report" to the State Department from one of the luxurious British "Queen" boats at a cost of about $300 "to you taxpayers."

The covert relation between A.D.A. and the British Socialist-Communist "Labor Party" is a stealthy political development which may only be revealed a piece at a time. But the conspirators could have carried on secretly much further if they were not so fond of boasting.

Thus, A.D.A. ballyhooed the reign of the British Marxists, which has now come to disaster, advocating the same system for the United States, when it might better have kept quiet, and boasted that its representatives in London were collaborating with the Attlee group. This was the first public intimation that the A.D.A. had branched out overseas. John Walton, a press relations man for the British Trades Union Congress, said he had known David C. Williams, formerly the acknowledged representative, who went back to New York to be "director of education and training." Mr. Walton also knew several other such agents. The British Marxians are much bolder about their foreign intrusions than the American socialists. They frankly assume a mission as political guerrillas in league with unofficial political organizations on the continent to put down "communism" there although their own ism is not easily distinguished from the Russian. What the difference amounts to is that they are against Stalin, the iron curtain and such superficial details. David Dubinsky and Walter Reuther are similarly engaged on the continent where Dubinsky's chief political agent, one Irving Brown, threatened to organize a violent "counter-terror" against French Communist rioters, according to David J. Dallin, a leading advocate of international meddling by American unions.

The American unions have absolutely no authority from anyone to interfere in the domestic affairs of European countries. Indeed, this program violates the rules of the State Department laid down for law-abiding citizens going abroad. The A.D.A. is similarly situated.

Health for All

Visiting the TB Patient

The friend or relative who visits a patient in a tuberculosis hospital can be a great help both to the patient and to members of the hospital staff who are doing all they can to help the sick person regain his health.

There are several ways in which the visitor can be helpful. First of all, he should go to see the patient as often as possible—on the proper days and during the hours set aside by the hospital for that purpose. Frequent visits at the right time will assure the patient that he is not forgotten, help him while away the many hours of rest necessary for his cure, and counteract the loneliness he might feel in being away from home.

The wise visitor brings the patient the more heartening news from home, although he does not sacrifice truth just to make the patient feel better. The sick person is usually quick to notice evasiveness and a deceptive statement will make him imagine things worse than they really are. On the other hand, the visitor can steer conversation into cheerful channels, emphasizing the happy and humorous side of the news from home, the community, or the job.

There are also diplomatic ways of helping the patient build his confidence in himself, his treatment, and the hospital staff. When the opportunity arises, the visitor can remind the patient that those at the hospital know what is best for him, whether it be in the matter of rest, privileges, food, special medicines, or anything else that pertains to his illness and its treatment.

On this score, the visitor sometimes has a chance to do the patient a great service by encouraging the sick person to stay at the hospital until the doctor says he is ready to leave.

There are times when his long hospital stay and prolonged separation from his family make the tuberculosis patient restless and eager to get back to routine living, before the doctor feels it is safe for him to do so. When this happens, a visitor who has the sick person's best interests at heart will urge the patient to complete his cure at the hospital in order to give himself the best chance of getting well and staying well.

In short, the visitor cannot only brighten a patient's day, but also help him accept his treatment. The visitor should also bear in mind that hospital rules were made for the good of all patients, including the one he visits, and abide by them.

Dye at Home

An item under 4½ pounds can be dyed successfully in the washing machine advises a home economics bureau. The dye is dissolved in a quart jar or pitcher of very hot water, using a wooden stick or spoon to stir. The solution is then poured into an automatic washing machine after enough water has come in to completely cover the article. The article should not be wrung out after dyeing. Just squeeze out excess water gently and hang article in the shade — indoors or out.

Safety First

If lights are desired in windows during the holiday season, never use candles. Keep curtains and other flammable material pulled back at least six inches from any electric light. Use non-inflammable decorations of glass or metal. After Christmas presents have been opened, remove all gift wrappings and packing material from your living room and dispose of them.

Unknown Designer

The designer of the Cologne cathedral in Germany is unknown. There is a tradition that a nameless youth bartered his soul to Satan for the design and a promise of everlasting fame.

So They Say...

We have been endlessly speaking of human rights, as though there was nothing except man in the universe. . . . May it not be that these rights have of late been disturbed or disregarded precisely because man . . . has ceased to stand in fear and awe before that which is above him?
—Charles Malik, Lebanon delegate to UN.

Eastern States Are To Continue Cold

(By The Associated Press)

November's cold snap appeared slow to loosen its grip over most of the eastern half of the nation today.

Some warmer air had moved into the Great Plains, sending temperatures above normal marks. There were prospects of some warming in midwest areas, But the forecast was for continued cold in most of the eastern and southern states.

It was below freezing over much of the south again today, except in Florida. It was subfreezing in New Orleans and the low at Birmingham, Ala., early today was 26 above. At the same time it was 50 above at Miami.

No sub-zero readings were reported as compared to below zero marks in the midwest yesterday morning. Early morning lows included 12 above at Gladwin, Mich., and Wausau, Wis. It was 26 in Boston, 29 in Washington and 40 in Denver. Temperatures were near normal from the Rockies westward to the Pacific coast.

Snow flurries fell in the eastern Great Lakes area and in the Appalachian region. Showers hit parts of the middle Pacific states. Fair weather was reported in other parts of the country.

Eight Minute Phone Call Is Enough for Tragedy

New Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov 20 (AP)—It took Mrs. Kathleen Wunderlich just eight minutes to go to a corner store yesterday and make a phone call.

But in that time flames gutted her home and took the lives of three of her four children.

The frantic mother was burned and cut trying to enter the house after she returned to find it ablaze.

Richard and Kathleen Wunderlich, three-year-old twins, had taken refuge under a bed. They died of burns later in a hospital. Their sister, Mary Ann, 5, died on the way to the hospital.

Authorities said they could not explain the blaze. Mrs. Wunderlich said the three children had remained home because all were ill. She said she had telephoned to ask her sister to help her.

The father, John Wunderlich, a bricklayer, was at work. Their fourth child, George, 8, was at school.

Club Is Announced

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 20 (AP)—Malcolm Forbes, associate publisher of Forbes magazines of business, today announced formation of "The New Jersey Republicans-for-Eisenhower Club." Forbes, elected Nov. 6 as a state senator from Somerset county, said the club would seek "thousands of signers to petitions in support of the general for the Republican presidential nomination." Forbes said he talked to U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R-Mass.) and Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey about formation of the club.

Tail Winds Speed Britain-Bound Planes

Prestwick, Scotland, Nov. 20 (AP)—Freak tail winds of up to 166 miles an hour boosted Britain bound airliners from the United States and Canada along at record speeds today.

Passenger planes were arriving here several hours ahead of schedule. A BOAC Stratocruiser (British) flew the 2,000 miles from Gander, Nfld., in four hours, 23 minutes, clipping five minutes off the record held by a KLM plane (Dutch) since Dec. 17, 1949.

Another BOAC plane made the direct hop from New York in just under 10 hours, and reported tail winds of 166 miles an hour.

Oswego Will . . .

and demanded public hearings on it.

Rapping the GOP leaders, he said in a statement that "this is about as high-minded and irresponsible a situation as has faced the state in many years."

"It will be a decade or more before another reapportionment is held," Fitzpatrick stated, "yet, now, only two weeks before the Legislature is to meet on this all-important issue, there has not been a single public discussion on it."

Pfeiffer and 18 Republican legislators and county chairmen conferred for several hours yesterday. Pfeiffer told newsmen:

"While the recommendation (affecting the 34th and 35th Districts) is not unanimous, I agreed to give their thinking on the plan to the chairman of the joint legislative committee on reapportionment."

Senator Pliny W. Williamson, Westchester Republican, is chairman of the joint committee, which is redrawing New York's Congressional districts.

Fractures Wrist

John King, 18, of 42 Howland avenue received a fractured right wrist in an automobile accident at High Falls at 12:30 a. m. Monday, according to a sheriff's office report. King told Deputy Sheriff James Marano he was driving on the Cottekill road toward Stone Ridge when his vehicle hit an icy spot on the road and landed in the ditch. The entire left side and the right rear fender of the automobile was damaged.

Next to swear words, violence was the thing that shocked Mrs. Smith most. When she encountered two small boys fighting on the street she did her best to break it up.

Mrs. Smith—Here, you on top. You musn't hit that other boy when he's down.

Tough Kid—No? What do you think I got him down for?

Herbie—What does a volcano do with its lava?

Dad—Give it up.

Herbie—Aw, somebody told you.

Man—How's your insomnia?

Friend—Worse and worse. I can't even sleep when it's time to get up.

A soldier sought shelter in the cook's tent during a dust storm that swept over the camp during war maneuvers. He noticed that the lid of the soup kettle was awry, permitting dust to blow into the soup, and undertook to call the cook's attention to it.

Soldier—If you'd put the lid more firmly on that kettle we wouldn't get so much dust and dirt with our soup.

Cook—See here, my lad. Your business is to serve your country.

Soldier—Quite right. My business is to serve my country, but not to eat it.

Cowboy—When I left the ranch, I was a three-letter man.

Girl Friend—Did they have a football team?

Cowboy—No, I sat on the branding iron.

A psychologist is a fellow who watches everybody else when a good-looking girl walks into the room.

"There's a limit to all things," said a henpecked husband. "I don't mind washing the dishes; I don't mind feeding the cat; I don't mind mending my own clothes. But I'll be durned if I wear pink ribbons in my night shirt to fool the baby."

Native—I drink about fifty cups of coffee a day.

Visitor—My goodness. Doesn't that keep you awake?

Native—It helps.

Boss—Have you had any experience as an office-boy?

Applicant—I should say I had, mister; I'm a dummy director in three mining companies now.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Holdridges Chosen As Real American Family for Holiday

Woodstock, Nov. 20 — The search for a typical American family in a typical American town was completed by Sonny Fox, of the Voice of America, Monday afternoon when the State Department's sound recording truck pulled up in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holdridge on Tinker street. The choice of the Holdridge home as the scene of a typical American Thanksgiving day, with the family presenting to the world an account of what might occur in an American home on this, one of the country's most American holidays, came about through a mutual friend of both Joseph Holdridge and Mr. Fox. When Fox, in talking to the friend, said that he was looking for such a family, the friend for whom Holdridge had done some work a couple of years ago exclaimed:

"I know the typical American family. They are right here in Woodstock—the Holdridges."

While the recording, which will be broadcast all over the world—Europe, Asia and South America—at noon Thanksgiving day as a part of the regular "American Journal Series," was in progress the Holdridge living room and kitchen hummed with the activity of the preparation of the Thanksgiving dinner and each member of the family gave his own particular expression of thanks. In addition the rooms bristled with mikes trailing long black cords while two technicians handled the equipment.

Nothing Prepared

There was no prepared script; this was simply Joe Holdridge, as he is known throughout the village, talking about his family, his ideals, his home and his work. With Holdridge and his son, 25-year-old Joseph, Jr., who are in the housepainting business together, settled in the living room, Fox opened the program with the comment that "this is Thanksgiving in Woodstock, N. Y. It is a town of 3,000 people, neatly kept and nestled comfortably in a valley. Around the town loom the hills — the beautiful Catskill Mountains. About the people of Woodstock—well Joe Holdridge is one of them—suppose I let him tell us."

"Woodstock," said Joe, "as I know it is the nicest town I have ever been in. In Woodstock you can find a mind to match your own, whether you're a writer, artist, deep thinker or anything else. To me Woodstock has been the most wonderful place in the world. I came here completely unknown five years ago." Holdridge went on to describe the natural beauties of the village, the Dutch Reformed Church and spoke of his friend the Rev. Harvey I. Todd, minister of the church, who has lived here for 25 years.

Proud of New School

After a brief account of the climate here, Holdridge said: "In the summers here the natives cease completely to own the town, because thousands of city people flock to the village, bringing the population up to about 9,000 during those months." He also pointed with pride to the new Woodstock school and of its benefits to the village children.

Fox them moved with the mike into the kitchen where he encountered Mrs. Holdridge, Sr., and her daughter-in-law, the former Virginia Hastie, a native Woodstocker, preparing the Thanksgiving dinner. The rattle of kitchen utensils was injected and Fox reported for the world to hear that it was "a bright cold, clear day and the wind has a bite in it that makes you turn up your collar as you walk down the street. Inside, however, the kitchen is warm and the windows are steamed."

Mrs. Holdridge gave a detailed description of her kitchen. She stated that she does all her own housework but also finds time for outside activities. She spoke of her work with Home Bureau projects, the church and the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Holdridge, Jr., was called away from her ministrations to the turkey and she gave an account of her life, her marriage of 14 months, her new home which they have recently built, which she described as "sunny and cheerful, a house in an open field."

"On Thanksgiving," she summed up her thoughts, "I always think how thankful we are to be together, to enjoy the meal together and pray that things will be the same next year."

Once more the "mike" was returned to father and son in the living room, where Holdridge enlarged upon his daily activities, his work, his social life, his liking for bowling and fishing.

His ambition he said, speaking through the Voice of America, "is to live a good and decent life, support myself and my family. I don't want to get rich and I don't want to be poor, I only ask the ability to work."

Also receiving their share of comment were the family pets, Penny and Tippy, their big friendly cats and Jackie the dog.

True Picture of U. S. Living

The program concluded with the announcement of dinner, with Holdridge saying grace and the family sitting down to dinner.

Although the actual recording of the program took from about 45 minutes to an hour, it will be condensed into a 15-minute spot for broadcast.

Before the U. S. Government truck returned to New York late Monday afternoon, Fox explained to those who had witnessed the recording that "You've got to go to the country to find a typical American family and that is why we have come 120 miles. We wanted to present the family in their home to convince the world that what we are telling them is the truth. Only this way may we convince listeners that it is not staged but a part of the actual life here within the home."

Plans Underway For Yule Program

Woodstock, Nov. 20 — The Woodstock Business Association held a husband and wife dinner last week at Deanie's. It was announced that a letter had been received from John E. Egan, attorney, that incorporation of the association would be completed in about a week or 10 days.

Information also had been received that William Murphy, of the Woodstock Sanitation Department, had donated a wire refuse basket which will be placed on the village green. Murphy will empty the basket gratis daily as his contribution towards keeping the village clean.

A committee was appointed to work with the Masonic Square Club in connection with the club's annual program, for the week before Christmas and on Christmas Eve. Leon Carey made an inspiring plea for villagers to invite friends from neighboring communities to share in the township's holiday celebration. He explained before the association that this was a good opportunity to show surrounding towns how the residents of this village lived in harmony and good will with their neighbors. He went on to say that he had seen the Christmas celebration here grow from a small beginning to the present time where perhaps more than 500 children would be entertained Christmas Eve. It was a source of great satisfaction, Carey said, that more than a dozen organizations had banded together to work as a group to help make the Christmas celebration a success.

William Hand, president, reported that he had suggested that in addition to the installation of a public address system on the village green the week prior to Christmas that the system be installed in several stores and that Christmas carols be softly played.

A suggestion also was offered by Bonnie McManus that members of the association place small Christmas trees in the curb flag holders which are to be found at intervals on the main street.

The next meeting of the association will be held Wednesday, Dec. 5, at the White Horse Inn, probably another husband and wife dinner. Members have been asked to extend invitations to other business men in the community, who are not yet members, to join the association. The following committee for new members was appointed: J. L. Deutsch, chairman, Harry Alpern and William Hand.

Thanksgiving Service

Woodstock, Nov. 20—The Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church will hold a service of thanksgiving and worship from 10 to 10:30 a. m. Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 22. The ladies of the church will hold a turkey supper Thursday, Nov. 29, with an apron sale. Supper servings will be from 5:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. in the basement of the church.

Special Holiday Show

Woodstock, Nov. 20—The Ganso Gallery group in New York at the gallery, 125 East 57th street, between Park and Lexington avenues, will present along with Santa a parade of the animals, new ceramics by Carl Walters, from Nov. 26 to Dec. 26. In addition there will be five big paintings by Edward Chavez, Herman Cherry, Ethel Magafan, Howard Mandel, Joseph Meert and sculpture by Charles Stevens. There also will be paintings for the Christmas tree by guest artists.

Food Dollar Stressed At Home Bureau Parley

Woodstock, Nov. 20—The Woodstock unit of the Home Bureau had a lively day Tuesday at the Methodist Church hall. During the all-day meeting on homemaking, the objectives discussed were how to get the most value for your dollar and how to keep the family properly fed. Members of the local unit participated in the preparation of the food under the able direction of Miss Therese Kessel. The food was served at the luncheon which followed the meeting and was enjoyed by all members present.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Albert Montgomery presided at the organization's regular business meeting. Further activities were discussed and plans were made for the annual Christmas party.

Mrs. Harry Kutzschbach reported that the membership quota had been reached.

Brilliant Surgeon Not a Physician

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Canadian Navy prepared today to discharge an American who posed as a Canadian doctor and served brilliantly as a surgeon in Korea. The man's father doubts he ever went to medical school.

The navy announced yesterday that the man they enlisted as Dr. Joseph Cyr of New Brunswick is in reality 29-year-old Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., formerly of Lawrence, Mass.

The navy's "Dr. Cyr" won considerable fame for a series of major operations he performed on wounded South Koreans. The elder Demara said as far as he knows the only previous medical experience his son had was as an orderly in a Boston eye and ear infirmary. The father said he hadn't seen his son since about 1943. He described him as "bright to the point of genius" and said he once studied in a Trappist monastery.

New Brunswick's only Dr. Joseph Cyr, of Grand Falls, reported his medical identification papers disappeared last winter. Newspaper accounts of the navy man's surgical exploits aroused comment in New Brunswick and resulted in Demara's return to Canada for investigation.

The navy announced Demara would be discharged in "due course" for fraudulent entry into the service. Canadian immigration authorities also are investigating whether he entered the country illegally. Demara's father and mother are on their way to Esquimalt, B. C., where their son is being held.

Princess Visits Paris

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—Britain's Princess Margaret arrived by air today for a four-day "private" visit to the French capital. She was accompanied by the Duchess of Kent. The princess will meet some of the younger set of the embassy at a small cocktail party tonight. She will attend a charity ball for the Hertford British Hospital tomorrow and also is expected to lunch with France's President Vincent Auriol.

Aiding Cancer Patients

The group which makes pads and bandages for cancer patients at Rosary Hill Hospital will not work this Wednesday, it being the day before Thanksgiving. Work will be resumed on Wednesday, November 28.

Holdridges Chosen As Real American Family for Holiday

Woodstock, Nov. 20 — The search for a typical American family in a typical American town was completed by Sonny Fox, of the Voice of America, Monday afternoon when the State Department's sound recording truck pulled up in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holdridge on Tinker street. The choice of the Holdridge home as the scene of a typical American Thanksgiving day, with the family presenting to the world an account of what might occur in an American home on this, one of the country's most American holidays, came about through a mutual friend of both Joseph Holdridge and Mr. Fox. When Fox, in talking to the friend, said that he was looking for such a family, the friend for whom Holdridge had done some work a couple of years ago exclaimed:

"I know the typical American family. They are right here in Woodstock—the Holdridges."

While the recording, which will be broadcast all over the world—Europe, Asia and South America—at noon Thanksgiving day as a part of the regular "American Journal Series," was in progress the Holdridge living room and kitchen hummed with the activity of the preparation of the Thanksgiving dinner and each member of the family gave his own particular expression of thanks. In addition the rooms bristled with mikes trailing long black cords while two technicians handled the equipment.

Nothing Prepared

There was no prepared script; this was simply Joe Holdridge, as he is known throughout the village, talking about his family, his ideals, his home and his work. With Holdridge and his son, 25-year-old Joseph, Jr., who are in the housepainting business together, settled in the living room, Fox opened the program with the comment that "this is Thanksgiving in Woodstock, N. Y. It is a town of 3,000 people, neatly kept and nestled comfortably in a valley. Around the town loom the hills — the beautiful Catskill Mountains. About the people of Woodstock—well Joe Holdridge is one of them—suppose I let him tell us."

"Woodstock," said Joe, "as I know it is the nicest town I have ever been in. In Woodstock you can find a mind to match your own, whether you're a writer, artist, deep thinker or anything else. To me Woodstock has been the most wonderful place in the world. I came here completely unknown five years ago." Holdridge went on to describe the natural beauties of the village, the Dutch Reformed Church and spoke of his friend the Rev. Harvey I. Todd, minister of the church, who has lived here for 25 years.

Proud of New School

After a brief account of the climate here, Holdridge said: "In the summers here the natives cease completely to own the town, because thousands of city people flock to the village, bringing the population up to about 9,000 during those months." He also pointed with pride to the new Woodstock school and of its benefits to the village children.

Fox them moved with the mike into the kitchen where he encountered Mrs. Holdridge, Sr., and her daughter-in-law, the former Virginia Hastie, a native Woodstocker, preparing the Thanksgiving dinner. The rattle of kitchen utensils was injected and Fox reported for the world to hear that it was "a bright cold, clear day and the wind has a bite in it that makes you turn up your collar as you walk down the street. Inside, however, the kitchen is warm and the windows are steamed."

Mrs. Holdridge gave a detailed description of her kitchen. She stated that she does all her own housework but also finds time for outside activities. She spoke of her work with Home Bureau projects, the church and the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Holdridge, Jr., was called away from her ministrations to the turkey and she gave an account of her life, her marriage of 14 months, her new home which they have recently built, which she described as "sunny and cheerful, a house in an open field."

"On Thanksgiving," she summed up her thoughts, "I always think how thankful we are to be together, to enjoy the meal together and pray that things will be the same next year."

Once more the "mike" was returned to father and son in the living room, where Holdridge enlarged upon his daily activities, his work, his social life, his liking for bowling and fishing.

His ambition he said, speaking through the Voice of America, "is to live a good and decent life, support myself and my family. I don't want to get rich and I don't want to be poor, I only ask the ability to work."

Also receiving their share of comment were the family pets, Penny and Tippy, their big friendly cats and Jackie the dog.

True Picture of U. S. Living

The program concluded with the announcement of dinner, with Holdridge saying grace and the family sitting down to dinner.

Although the actual recording of the program took from about 45 minutes to an hour, it will be condensed into a 15-minute spot for broadcast.

Before the U. S. Government truck returned to New York late Monday afternoon, Fox explained to those who had witnessed the recording that "You've got to go to the country to find a typical American family and that is why we have come 120 miles. We wanted to present the family in their home to convince the world that what we are telling them is the truth. Only this way may we convince listeners that it is not staged but a part of the actual life here within the home."

Plans Underway For Yule Program

Woodstock, Nov. 20 — The Woodstock Business Association held a husband and wife dinner last week at Deanie's. It was announced that a letter had been received from John E. Egan, attorney, that incorporation of the association would be completed in about a week or 10 days.

Information also had been received that William Murphy, of the Woodstock Sanitation Department, had donated a wire refuse basket which will be placed on the village green. Murphy will empty the basket gratis daily as his contribution towards keeping the village clean.

A committee was appointed to work with the Masonic Square Club in connection with the club's annual program, for the week before Christmas and on Christmas Eve. Leon Carey made an inspiring plea for villagers to invite friends from neighboring communities to share in the township's holiday celebration. He explained before the association that this was a good opportunity to show surrounding towns how the residents of this village lived in harmony and good will with their neighbors. He went on to say that he had seen the Christmas celebration here grow from a small beginning to the present time where perhaps more than 500 children would be entertained Christmas Eve. It was a source of great satisfaction, Carey said, that more than a dozen organizations had banded together to work as a group to help make the Christmas celebration a success.

William Hand, president, reported that he had suggested that in addition to the installation of a public address system on the village green the week prior to Christmas that the system be installed in several stores and that Christmas carols be softly played.

A suggestion also was offered by Bonnie McManus that members of the association place small Christmas trees in the curb flag holders which are to be found at intervals on the main street.

The next meeting of the association will be held Wednesday, Dec. 5, at the White Horse Inn, probably another husband and wife dinner. Members have been asked to extend invitations to other business men in the community, who are not yet members, to join the association. The following committee for new members was appointed: J. L. Deutsch, chairman, Harry Alpern and William Hand.

Thanksgiving Service

Woodstock, Nov. 20—The Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church will hold a service of thanksgiving and worship from 10 to 10:30 a. m. Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 22. The ladies of the church will hold a turkey supper Thursday, Nov. 29, with an apron sale. Supper servings will be from 5:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. in the basement of the church.

Special Holiday Show

Woodstock, Nov. 20—The Ganso Gallery group in New York at the gallery, 125 East 57th street, between Park and Lexington avenues, will present along with Santa a parade of the animals, new ceramics by Carl Walters, from Nov. 26 to Dec. 26. In addition there will be five big paintings by Edward Chavez, Herman Cherry, Ethel Magafan, Howard Mandel, Joseph Meert and sculpture by Charles Stevens. There also will be paintings for the Christmas tree by guest artists.

Food Dollar Stressed At Home Bureau Parley

Woodstock, Nov. 20—The Woodstock unit of the Home Bureau had a lively day Tuesday at the Methodist Church hall. During the all-day meeting on homemaking, the objectives discussed were how to get the most value for your dollar and how to keep the family properly fed. Members of the local unit participated in the preparation of the food under the able direction of Miss Therese Kessel. The food was served at the luncheon which followed the meeting and was enjoyed by all members present.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Albert Montgomery presided at the organization's regular business meeting. Further activities were discussed and plans were made for the annual Christmas party.

ECONOMIC METEOROLOGY

Recently on a transcontinental trip our DC-6 flew at an altitude of around 16,000 feet for hundreds of miles. Mountains of clouds were banked in around us. Finally, we go on top of all the fleecy masses.

My chance companion was a meteorologist. To pass the time away, occasionally I would call his attention to some gorgeously beautiful cloud arrays that, against the brilliant sun, would inspire any poet. He could see that I was fascinated by the scenery.

But he was a meteorologist. He saw many things in those clouds that I couldn't. And, knowing that I was interested in the beauty of the clouds, he started talking about their utility. He analysed a world utterly strange to me.

The burden of his exposition was that without clouds there would be no rain; without rain, no vegetation; without vegetation, no food; without food, no life.

It was all most interesting. What held me enthralled was his monologue about the forces of nature that cause the clouds to dissolve and to pour rain on the earth. It was language strange to my vocabulary. He even talked about the rainmaker the City of New York hired last year when that city had a water famine. He pictured the clouds as carrying terrific powers that would be released when the proper atmospheric influences were introduced in the skies.

This meteorological picture has its counterpart in the financial world. America is blanketed by dense clouds of debt held by individuals, corporations, institutions with myriad interests, commercial and savings banks and insurance companies.

Now some of these clouds may break loose at any time and inundate the country with a terrific flood of dollars. There are plenty of forces in the economic firmament that could bring this about.

Speaking common-place social language, I may say that high-grade, low-yielding bonds do not wear well, take for illustration, a widow with her inheritance $100,000 of 2½ per cent bonds. She gets $2,500 a year in income. It is totally inadequate. She spends some of her principal continually to pay her bills. There comes a day when, in the language of the meteorologist, she is shaken loose from her bonds. A flood of dollars for reinvestment results.

And, as I have said, our country is blanketed by such situations. The sheer weight of statistics is alarming.

Next year, more than $10,000,000 of Series E bonds will mature daily—Sunday and holidays included. Thousands of these patient bondholders have held these bonds ten years during which time they have painfully witnessed the steadily declining purchasing power of the dollar.

Today in America there are about $58,000,000,000 of high-grade, low-yielding Series E, F and G bonds outstanding. Income-conscious institutions and individuals hold most of them.

They are like a blanket in the sky. A little more inflation visited upon our country, resulting in higher living costs, will shake billions of them loose and shower the economic soil with rivers of dollars.

What can anybody say to the trustees of any fund which, carrying $500,000 of these obligations and helping to support retired teachers and preachers, fails dismally to give them a decent standard of living?

The huge floating debt of the United States, which is rapidly maturing and easily marketable, is a stern reminder of the monetary clouds in the economic skies. And unfavorable winds in the nature of rising living costs and of a universal desire to get dollars to reinvest can have serious meteorological effects.

During the years from 1952 through 1961, $34,000,000,000 Series E bonds mature. In 1953, $5,214,000,000 of them will fall due; in 1954, $5,750,000,000.

Tell me where this money will go and I will attempt to predict what influence it will play on the stock market. With bonds yielding 3 per cent a year and sound stock 6 and 7 and 8 per cent, we might have a bull market in the good equities.

The money clouds might cause a stock market upsurge.

When explorers reached the new world they found Indians cultivating corn and worshiping it as a sacred crop.

The pay of town assessor is reported to have been raised to $700 in Olive, representing an increase of about $500 since waterworks days. The local assessors not only have many more buildings to appraise than formerly but must travel longer distances to attend to their field work on both sides of the reservoir. The new Olive board will be made up of Homer Markle, Jr., Charles Gustavson and Otis Barringer.

Officers elected at the first fall meeting of the Junior Town Citizens' Club were the following local school pupils: Supervisor Rudy Rossman, Clerk Edwin Swenson, Collector Estelle Bundy, Superintendent Robert Wilkins, Assessor James Lawrence, Health Officer Bernice Banks, Judge Peter Wilkins.

'Gas' Light

A candle light "goes out" when you blow it, because you blow away the gases which feed the flame. In lighting a candle, the match must be held to the wick long enough for the wax to begin to melt and form gases.

How to make old roads seem NEW

PICK a road that you know by heart. Not too good a road. One that has some bumps—some unbanked turns—a tough hill or two.

Then get in touch with us, and let us put you behind the wheel of a Buick, with Dynaflow Drive.*

Now you're all set for a new experience. You'll find out this:

Those bumps seem to lose their bobble. You just take them with a smooth and level stride.

Those unbanked turns don't seem so sharp, and those hills seem almost to flatten out.

How come? Well, a lot of things are different when you travel in a Buick.

You're riding on big, soft coil springs that let every wheel dance beneath you, without passing on the jolts to you in the car.

You're driving a car that's plenty inches broader than it is high—a sure-footed road-hugger if there ever was one.

And you're riding behind a Fireball Engine — Buick's time-tested version of a high-compression valve-in-head—an engine that packs more power than most people ever need to use.

With this power — and Dynaflow Drive* — you don't have to "rush" a hill at the bottom to soar serenely over the top. You just feed the power as you need it — climb with a sure, steady swoop without buck or bobble all the way up.

There's a lot more that we could tell you about a Buick. But such things as room, and comfort, the confident way it steers, and the way it shortens the miles are things you can best discover from personal experience.

So why not follow the routine already suggested? You supply the road—we'll supply the car — and let it speak for itself.

ECONOMIC METEOROLOGY

Recently on a transcontinental trip our DC-6 flew at an altitude of around 16,000 feet for hundreds of miles. Mountains of clouds were banked in around us. Finally, we go on top of all the fleecy masses.

My chance companion was a meteorologist. To pass the time away, occasionally I would call his attention to some gorgeously beautiful cloud arrays that, against the brilliant sun, would inspire any poet. He could see that I was fascinated by the scenery.

But he was a meteorologist. He saw many things in those clouds that I couldn't. And, knowing that I was interested in the beauty of the clouds, he started talking about their utility. He analysed a world utterly strange to me.

The burden of his exposition was that without clouds there would be no rain; without rain, no vegetation; without vegetation, no food; without food, no life.

It was all most interesting. What held me enthralled was his monologue about the forces of nature that cause the clouds to dissolve and to pour rain on the earth. It was language strange to my vocabulary. He even talked about the rainmaker the City of New York hired last year when that city had a water famine. He pictured the clouds as carrying terrific powers that would be released when the proper atmospheric influences were introduced in the skies.

This meteorological picture has its counterpart in the financial world. America is blanketed by dense clouds of debt held by individuals, corporations, institutions with myriad interests, commercial and savings banks and insurance companies.

Now some of these clouds may break loose at any time and inundate the country with a terrific flood of dollars. There are plenty of forces in the economic firmament that could bring this about.

Speaking common-place social language, I may say that high-grade, low-yielding bonds do not wear well, take for illustration, a widow with her inheritance $100,000 of 2½ per cent bonds. She gets $2,500 a year in income. It is totally inadequate. She spends some of her principal continually to pay her bills. There comes a day when, in the language of the meteorologist, she is shaken loose from her bonds. A flood of dollars for reinvestment results.

And, as I have said, our country is blanketed by such situations. The sheer weight of statistics is alarming.

Next year, more than $10,000,000 of Series E bonds will mature daily—Sunday and holidays included. Thousands of these patient bondholders have held these bonds ten years during which time they have painfully witnessed the steadily declining purchasing power of the dollar.

Today in America there are about $58,000,000,000 of high-grade, low-yielding Series E, F and G bonds outstanding. Income-conscious institutions and individuals hold most of them.

They are like a blanket in the sky. A little more inflation visited upon our country, resulting in higher living costs, will shake billions of them loose and shower the economic soil with rivers of dollars.

What can anybody say to the trustees of any fund which, carrying $500,000 of these obligations and helping to support retired teachers and preachers, fails dismally to give them a decent standard of living?

The huge floating debt of the United States, which is rapidly maturing and easily marketable, is a stern reminder of the monetary clouds in the economic skies. And unfavorable winds in the nature of rising living costs and of a universal desire to get dollars to reinvest can have serious meteorological effects.

During the years from 1952 through 1961, $34,000,000,000 Series E bonds mature. In 1953, $5,214,000,000 of them will fall due; in 1954, $5,750,000,000.

Tell me where this money will go and I will attempt to predict what influence it will play on the stock market. With bonds yielding 3 per cent a year and sound stock 6 and 7 and 8 per cent, we might have a bull market in the good equities.

The money clouds might cause a stock market upsurge.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Nov. 20 — Gus Cunavalles was numbered among young Kingston businessmen calling in the hub of the reservoir country Friday.

Dolores DeLong, formerly of Ashokan, spent the week-end with her friend, Joan Farrell of the village center. Dolores, a KHS junior, moved to Kingston in October.

Heavy poles have been distributed along the Central Hudson electric line here to replace the lighter poles in use for the past several years. The change reportedly will be made as a result of increased building on this section of the Onteora Trail including the big central school project at Boiceville.

Thursday, November 22 marks another birthday for Richard Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Morris of Brown's. Dick, who has been employed in the roofing business for some time, was married last August to Madeline A. Krum of Kingston.

A large number of raccoons have been taken in the Catskills this fall, the weather conditions having been propitious for the trapping and shooting of these interesting noctural prowlers. Paul Titch and Bruce Weaver of the Beach Hill section of Delaware county bagged a total of 35 ringtails in three nights. Coon carcasses, skinned and dressed for cooking, are being sold for a dollar apiece up around Shavertown. Snow in some parts of the mountains slowed up the take as 'coons dislike to get snow on their footsies.

Zania Patterson of New York has been spending a few days with her sister, Hazel Patterson of the west end.

ELLENVILLE NEWS

Ellenville, Nov. 20—Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mead of Middletown quietly observed their 58th wedding anniversary Friday, Nov. 2. They were married in St. Paul's Methodist Church, Middletown, with the Rev. M. K. Dauwood officiating Nov. 2, 1893. Mrs. Mead is the former Louisa Dow, a native of this village and the daughter of Nicholas and Sarah Dow, early settlers here. She moved to Middletown at the age of 18 and was married when she was 21. The Mead's have a daughter, a granddaughter, and two great-grandchildren.

John J. Carroll, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Carroll, of Summitville, was graduated from Electronics Technicians School at Great Lakes, Oct. 19. He was home on a 10-day leave, and reported for a new assignment at Norfolk, Va., Oct. 31. Upon his graduation from Ellenville High School in June 1950 he enlisted in the navy and reported to Newport, R. I. for his boot training. He was recommended for Officer's Training, but chose electronics, going to the Great Lakes school in February, and receiving his rating as a seaman on July 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Baxter of Wurtsboro celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, Oct. 28. They were married at the Greenfield parsonage Oct. 30, 1901 by the Rev. Charles Alberti and lived in Mountaindale until they moved to Wurtsboro in 1907. Mrs. Baxter is the former Belle Mason of Briggs Highway. They have three children, Mrs. Raymond DeVoe of Ellenville, Mrs. Jay DePuy of New York and Mrs. Herbert Baxter of Glen Sprey. The Baxters celebrated their 50th anniversary by holding open house. People who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond DeVoe and two children, Robert and Mary; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Adna Holmes, all of Ellenville; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gray of Spring Glen; Mrs. Jay DePuy and two daughters, Dorothy and Bernice of New York; Herbert Baxter of Glen Spey; Mr. and Mrs. Walter LeVan, Jr., of Wurtsboro; Miss Vera Holmes of Middletown; and Mrs. George Lybolt and two sons, Francis and Preston, and their cousin, Miss Jenny Lybolt of Mountaindale.

Richard Kelder has taken a position in the MacAuliffe market.

Miss Patricia Gobel is recovering from a sprained wrist which she susttained this past week while playing a piano. An X-ray at the local hospital revealed no break.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Brodhead, of Cleveland, O., visited last week at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Donald Sprague and family, of Nevins street. Mrs. Brodhead, who has returned after a year in England, joined her husband in New York for the National Horse Show. A copy of Mr. Brodhead's recently published book Hoof Prints Over America is available to horse lovers at the Ellenville Library.

Mrs. Max A. Weber, of Clinton, spent a few days last week at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles F. Taylor and family.

Mrs. Frederick Eck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Richard, of Ellenville, left Monday for Frankfort, Germany, where she will join her husband. About 1,100 GI wives sailed aboard the S S Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Horn and son, Ted, who have been living on Hickory street for the past three or four years, recently moved into their newly purchased trailer and are located at North Main street on the Haley property.

The Ellenville Child Study Club at the last meeting decided to increase its membership, and would like persons who have children in the kindergarten or first grade to join the club. Anyone who is interested is asked to call Mrs. Margaret Potter, phone 2285, or Mrs. Rosalyn Siegel, phone 1496.

Trees, particularly of this locality, were brought to the attention of the Garden Club members by Mrs. Keith Smiley of Lake Mohonk, at the final meeting of the club at the home of Mrs. Harold B. Gillette in Ellenville on Monday afternoon. Trees were compared to human beings as they appear to possess like qualities. Specimens shown were largely familiar. One, the Gingko tree, which dates back 4,000 years is today planted, and trives in New York because of its adaptability. Among trees hemlock was favored. The speaker's experience in growing trees at the altitude of Lake Mohonk was stressed. From her study of trees Mrs. Smiley gained a fund of information which she shared with her hearers. She spoke of the plan to begin planting trees in the schools in the kindergarten, and to watch them grow. A question and answer period brought out interesting information. This meeting brought the Garden Club to the close of its 24th year. Organized in the spring of 1927, Mrs. Chester Young was its founder and first president. The Shawangunk Garden Club, with Mrs. Gordon Brown, president, will celebrate its 25th anniversary next year. Besides the president, the officers for 1952 are Mrs. Kenneth Phillips, first vice president; Mrs. Archie Hall Davis, second vice president; Miss Anna T. Henninger, secretary and Mrs. William Coombe, treasurer. The hostess, Mrs. Gillette, observed the occasion by serving refreshments, which closed the meeting in a pleasant way. Mrs. Coombe presided at the tea table.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Miller attended the 20th anniversary dinner-dance of Mr. Miller's graduating class of 1931 of Columbia University College of Pharmacy at the Cocoanut Grove of the Park Sheraton Hotel, New York, Sunday. This was the first reunion in 20 years for the graduates of the 1931 class. Dr. Charles W. Ballard, dean of the college, was the principal speaker.

Ellenville, Nov. 20—Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mead of Middletown quietly observed their 58th wedding anniversary Friday, Nov. 2. They were married in St. Paul's Methodist Church, Middletown, with the Rev. M. K. Dauwood officiating Nov. 2, 1893. Mrs. Mead is the former Louisa Dow, a native of this village and the daughter of Nicholas and Sarah Dow, early settlers here. She moved to Middletown at the age of 18 and was married when she was 21. The Mead's have a daughter, a granddaughter, and two great-grandchildren.

John J. Carroll, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Carroll, of Summitville, was graduated from Electronics Technicians School at Great Lakes, Oct. 19. He was home on a 10-day leave, and reported for a new assignment at Norfolk, Va., Oct. 31. Upon his graduation from Ellenville High School in June 1950 he enlisted in the navy and reported to Newport, R. I. for his boot training. He was recommended for Officer's Training, but chose electronics, going to the Great Lakes school in February, and receiving his rating as a seaman on July 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Baxter of Wurtsboro celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, Oct. 28. They were married at the Greenfield parsonage Oct. 30, 1901 by the Rev. Charles Alberti and lived in Mountaindale until they moved to Wurtsboro in 1907. Mrs. Baxter is the former Belle Mason of Briggs Highway. They have three children, Mrs. Raymond DeVoe of Ellenville, Mrs. Jay DePuy of New York and Mrs. Herbert Baxter of Glen Sprey. The Baxters celebrated their 50th anniversary by holding open house. People who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond DeVoe and two children, Robert and Mary; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Adna Holmes, all of Ellenville; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gray of Spring Glen; Mrs. Jay DePuy and two daughters, Dorothy and Bernice of New York; Herbert Baxter of Glen Spey; Mr. and Mrs. Walter LeVan, Jr., of Wurtsboro; Miss Vera Holmes of Middletown; and Mrs. George Lybolt and two sons, Francis and Preston, and their cousin, Miss Jenny Lybolt of Mountaindale.

The Ellenville Child Study Club at the last meeting decided to increase its membership, and would like persons who have children in the kindergarten or first grade to join the club. Anyone who is interested is asked to call Mrs. Margaret Potter, phone 2285, or Mrs. Rosalyn Siegel, phone 1496.

Trees, particularly of this locality, were brought to the attention of the Garden Club members by Mrs. Keith Smiley of Lake Mohonk, at the final meeting of the club at the home of Mrs. Harold B. Gillette in Ellenville on Monday afternoon. Trees were compared to human beings as they appear to possess like qualities. Specimens shown were largely familiar. One, the Gingko tree, which dates back 4,000 years is today planted, and trives in New York because of its adaptability. Among trees hemlock was favored. The speaker's experience in growing trees at the altitude of Lake Mohonk was stressed. From her study of trees Mrs. Smiley gained a fund of information which she shared with her hearers. She spoke of the plan to begin planting trees in the schools in the kindergarten, and to watch them grow. A question and answer period brought out interesting information. This meeting brought the Garden Club to the close of its 24th year. Organized in the spring of 1927, Mrs. Chester Young was its founder and first president. The Shawangunk Garden Club, with Mrs. Gordon Brown, president, will celebrate its 25th anniversary next year. Besides the president, the officers for 1952 are Mrs. Kenneth Phillips, first vice president; Mrs. Archie Hall Davis, second vice president; Miss Anna T. Marie Decker Wed To Pvt. Roebuck In Walden Church

Wallkill, Nov. 20—Miss Marie Decker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mulford Decker of Wallkill, and Pvt. Russell A. Roebuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roebuck, Sr., of Walden, were married in a double ring ceremony on Oct. 28 at 2 p. m. at the Walden Methodist Church. The Rev. C. Everett Wagner performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin with train and a Chantilly lace yoke and peplum. She wore a Chantilly lace headpiece with orange blossoms with a fingertip imported illusion veil. She carried a white Bible with gardenias, ivy, and feathered carnations.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Edna Davis, sister of the bride, wore a gown of peacock-blue taffeta and carried a matching muff covered with rose mums, and wore a matching headpiece of mums and ivy.

The bridesmaid, Miss Joan Wood, wore a gown of toast taffeta and carried a matching muff covered with gold mums and wore a matching headpiece of mums and ivy.

Fred Roebuck, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Jack Conklin and George Davis, Jr.

The church was decorated with white gladioli. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home for about 75 guests. After the reception, the couple left for a trip to New York. As her going away ensemble, the bride wore a beige checked suit with black accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Mrs. Roebuck is a graduate of Wallkill Central School and is employed by the Lester Lines Bus Company of Wallkill. Pvt. Roebuck attended Walden schools and is serving with the United States Army.

Miss Christie Engaged To Medical Student

Mrs. Felicie L. Christie of Goshen announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Aubrey Adele Christie, public health educator with the Ulster County Health Department, to William J. Waddell, medical student, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Waddell of Hendersonville, N. C.

Miss Christie was graduated from Cortland State Teachers College and served an apprenticeship of one year with the New York State Department of Health in the office of Public Health Education and in various county health departments in the state. For the past year she has attended the school of public health at the University of North Carolina and last August completed the requirements leading to a Master of Science degree in public health with a major in public health education. She is now associated with the UC Health Department.

Mr. Waddell was graduated from the University of North Carolina with the degree of Bachelor of Arts with a major in chemistry. He is now attending the School of Medicine at the University in Chapel Hill, N. C.

Olive Auxiliary Collects Gifts

Mrs. D. Bishop, president, Mrs. W. Stevens, child welfare chairman, and Mrs. G. Von der Osten, rehabilitation chairman, recently attended the third district conference of the American Legion Auxiliary in Albany, and reported with regard to the collection of gifts for hospitalized veterans, at the recent meeting of their unit of the Olive Memorial Post 1627.

Although many units in the third district have been assigned to the new Veterans Hospital in Albany, the Olive group will provide gifts for the shop at Castle Point Veterans Hospital. Many gifts were received at the last meeting but since the shop is to be opened earlier than usual this year, it will be necessary for members who were not present to send their gifts before the next regular meeting.

In order that the gifts might be mailed to the hospital in time for the shop opening, Mrs. Von der Osten, chairman, has requested that all donations be received before Nov. 24. She also invites non-members to participate in this fine work and suggests that they might give their packages to the auxiliary members. The gifts must be new, unbreakable, and have a value of at least one dollar.

Besides sending the packages to the gift shop, the Legion auxiliaries also give each hospitalized veteran in the state one dollar at Christmas time.

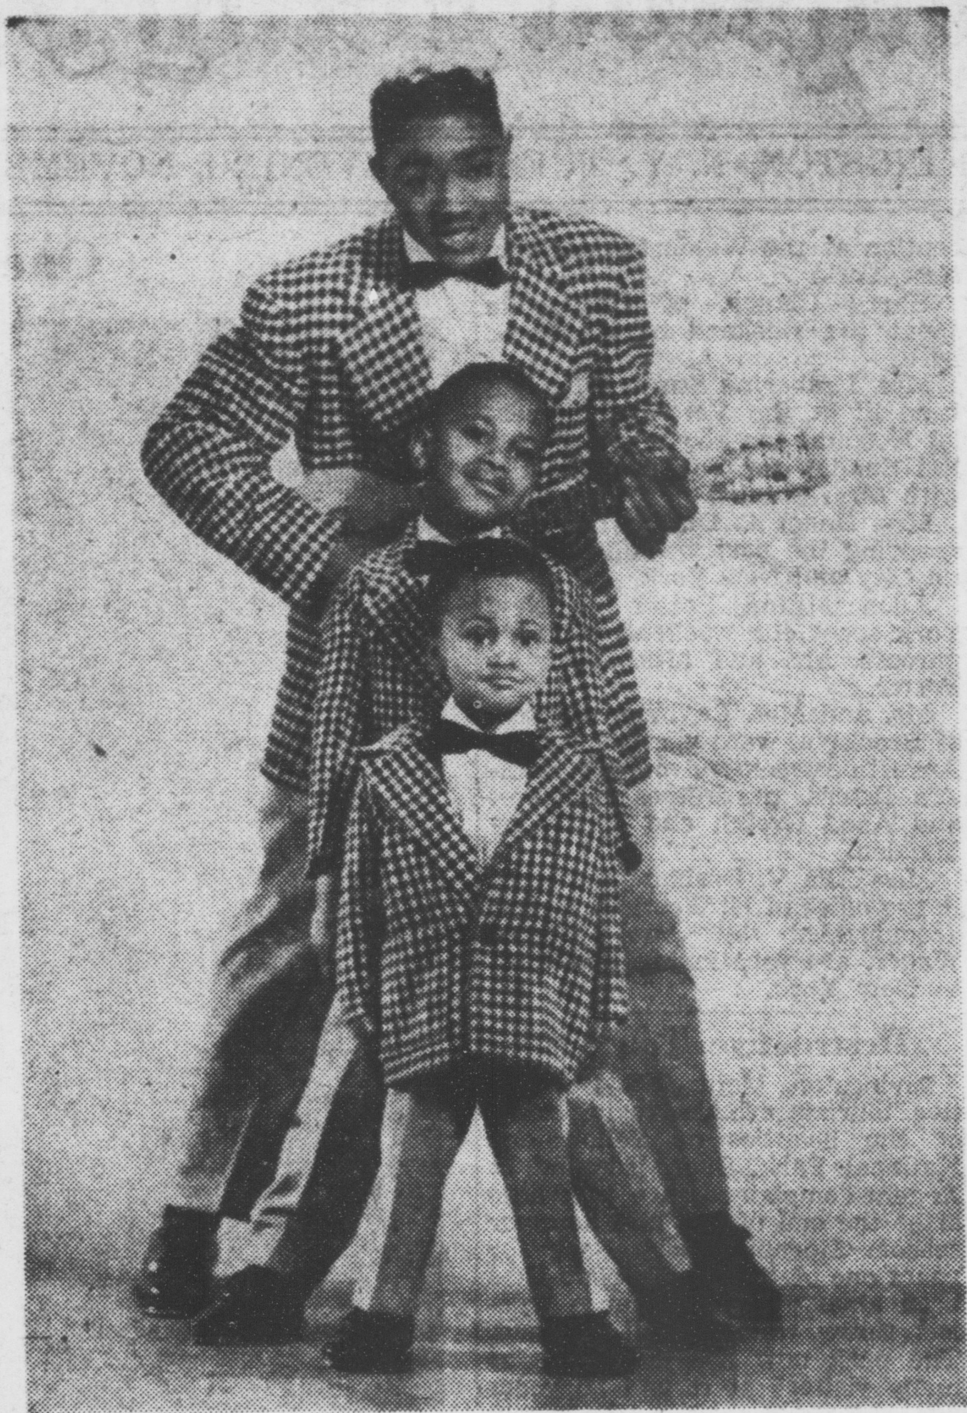
Plans for Wedding

The wedding of Miss Betty Jane Clark, formerly of this city, now residing at 121 West 97th street, New York, to Ernest Nelson Farrington, 215 East 25th street, New York, is scheduled to take place on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, in the St. George Episcopal Church, New York. The Rev. Mr. Holmes will perform the ceremony.

The couple obtained their license to wed at the Municipal Building in New York city on Nov. 19.

Miss Clark is the daughter of Howard N. and Catherine Schutte Clark. Her prospective husband, son of Clarence Thorpe and Alice Dupuch Farrington, was born in the Bahamas.

Musical Family Will Be Feature at Ball



Billy Graves and his two sons, a musical novelty attraction will be one of the foremost features included in the brilliant array of stars to be presented during the entertainment part of the program at the 15th annual Thanksgiving Eve Ball sponsored by the Ahavath Israel Congregation at the municipal auditorium on Wednesday evening, Nov. 21. The trio was recently featured at the Paramount Theatre. The father plays the uke, his seven year old son plays drums and the four year old plays the cello. They have also been featured on top TV shows and in leading theatres. The doors to the auditorium will be open to the public at 7:15 p. m. The overture will be played at 8:30 p. m. and the show begins at 9 p. m. Dancing to the music of Xavier Cugat and his nationally famous orchestra will follow the entertainment and continue until 1:30 a. m.

Former Bloomington Teen-age Club Members Represented in All Branches of Military

The Bloomington Teen-age club points with great pride to the large percentage of its members now serving in the various departments of the armed services. Mrs. Frank McElrath was advisor for the group which is now inactive but which she states was the first of its kind in the county.

Former members in service include Ralph Donnelly and Philip Gromoll both in the Marine Corps. Philip Gromoll is now stationed in Korea. George Fredericks and Harvey Terpening are in the air force, and Earl Mack, Jr., is serving with the army in Korea. In the navy are Rudolph Beyersdorfer, Robert Kappell, John Maschino, Franklin Miller, Robert Quinn, Wilbur Whitman and Thomas McElrath. James Rockwell is a veteran of World War 2.

The girls came in for their share of praise, too, from Mrs. McElrath who told of the number who are now or are studying to become nurses. The Misses Mildred Whitman and Edith Fatum are now graduate nurses while the Misses Beverly Peterson, Jane Johnson and Eileen Levintan are in training to become nurses. Robert Levintan and James Flanigan are in college and several members of the club are now married.

Home on leave recently were Thomas McElrath, who is in school at the Philadelphia Naval Base, Rudolph Beyersdorfer, USN, and George Fredericks, U. S. Air Force. Thomas McElrath had as his guests, also on leave, Joseph Westley, Woodridge, N. J., and James Richardson, Yonkers.

A letter which Mrs. McElrath received from one of the boys in service described the fire-fighting drills which he described as "pretty rough" but then recalling days in the club said, "I guess we must have what it takes."

Leaders Honored By Home Bureau

One hundred fifty local leaders were honored by the Ulster County Home Bureau at a special program presented Friday afternoon, Nov. 16, at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

Mrs. William Powers, county chairman, paid tribute to the leaders for their generosity in serving in that capacity and for the high standards maintained in their teaching. Miss Hazel Reed, assistant state leader of home demonstration agents, brought greetings and commendations to the leaders from the New York State College of Home Economics.

Mrs. George Hudler of Kingston and Mrs. Robert DeGroff of Ellenville introduced women from their units who presented entertaining skits illustrating experiences common to the average family.

A discussion on leadership was led by James White, specialist from the College of Agriculture. He told those present, among other things, that "a newly selected leader chosen for her special resources, deserves certain aids from her group. She should know the specific individuals who will help her develop new skills, who will provide her with the information or materials and who will share with her their experiences in leadership. By providing such aids, the group becomes the nucleus of support she needs to make her leadership a pleasant and successful experience."

Edward Pope, specialist in child development and family relationships agreed with Mr. White and stated that the philosophy of leadership practiced in the extension service is to work with people rather than on people to build the society we want and that this philosophy brings out the best from both the leader and her followers.

Tea was served following the meeting.

B'nai B'rith Holds Membership Teas

To acquaint new and prospective members with the objectives of the B'nai B'rith organization, a series of teas have been held at the homes of Mrs. Ben Chipman and Mrs. Herbert Powell. Similar teas will be given in the near future.

Those in attendance at the teas were told that the organization this year is celebrating the 108th anniversary of its founding, and that membership in B'nai B'rith means not only affiliation with the oldest and largest Jewish service organization in the world but in one which has increasingly demonstrated its vision and leadership in every field of human endeavor and that it offers an opportunity for self expression in behalf of Jewry and mankind.

The hostesses at the teas were assisted by Miss Blanche Kirchenblum and Mrs. Samuel Gally. The next meeting will be held at the Jewish Community Center on Monday, Nov. 26. An interesting program has been arranged for this meeting.

Hurley Parents Announce Proceeds

Mrs. Harry Gersback, chairman, Hurley Parents Club cooperative exchange sale, held at the town hall on Nov. 12, announced today that the sale grossed $121.45, 20 per cent of which was withheld by the club and the balance turned over to the various consignors.

The committee assisting Mrs. Gersback included the Mmes. Ackerman, Basch, Campbell, Goetchius, Hutton, Messenger, Myer and Schenck. Appreciation was expressed to the committee and the YWCA for its cooperation.

Marie Decker Wed To Pvt. Roebuck In Walden Church

Wallkill, Nov. 20—Miss Marie Decker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mulford Decker of Wallkill, and Pvt. Russell A. Roebuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roebuck, Sr., of Walden, were married in a double ring ceremony on Oct. 28 at 2 p. m. at the Walden Methodist Church. The Rev. C. Everett Wagner performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin with train and a Chantilly lace yoke and peplum. She wore a Chantilly lace headpiece with orange blossoms with a fingertip imported illusion veil. She carried a white Bible with gardenias, ivy, and feathered carnations.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Edna Davis, sister of the bride, wore a gown of peacock-blue taffeta and carried a matching muff covered with rose mums, and wore a matching headpiece of mums and ivy.

The bridesmaid, Miss Joan Wood, wore a gown of toast taffeta and carried a matching muff covered with gold mums and wore a matching headpiece of mums and ivy.

Fred Roebuck, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Jack Conklin and George Davis, Jr.

The church was decorated with white gladioli. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home for about 75 guests. After the reception, the couple left for a trip to New York. As her going away ensemble, the bride wore a beige checked suit with black accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Mrs. Roebuck is a graduate of Wallkill Central School and is employed by the Lester Lines Bus Company of Wallkill. Pvt. Roebuck attended Walden schools and is serving with the United States Army.

Miss Christie Engaged To Medical Student

Mrs. Felicie L. Christie of Goshen announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Aubrey Adele Christie, public health educator with the Ulster County Health Department, to William J. Waddell, medical student, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Waddell of Hendersonville, N. C.

Miss Christie was graduated from Cortland State Teachers College and served an apprenticeship of one year with the New York State Department of Health in the office of Public Health Education and in various county health departments in the state. For the past year she has attended the school of public health at the University of North Carolina and last August completed the requirements leading to a Master of Science degree in public health with a major in public health education. She is now associated with the UC Health Department.

Mr. Waddell was graduated from the University of North Carolina with the degree of Bachelor of Arts with a major in chemistry. He is now attending the School of Medicine at the University in Chapel Hill, N. C.

Olive Auxiliary Collects Gifts

Mrs. D. Bishop, president, Mrs. W. Stevens, child welfare chairman, and Mrs. G. Von der Osten, rehabilitation chairman, recently attended the third district conference of the American Legion Auxiliary in Albany, and reported with regard to the collection of gifts for hospitalized veterans, at the recent meeting of their unit of the Olive Memorial Post 1627.

Although many units in the third district have been assigned to the new Veterans Hospital in Albany, the Olive group will provide gifts for the shop at Castle Point Veterans Hospital. Many gifts were received at the last meeting but since the shop is to be opened earlier than usual this year, it will be necessary for members who were not present to send their gifts before the next regular meeting.

In order that the gifts might be mailed to the hospital in time for the shop opening, Mrs. Von der Osten, chairman, has requested that all donations be received before Nov. 24. She also invites non-members to participate in this fine work and suggests that they might give their packages to the auxiliary members. The gifts must be new, unbreakable, and have a value of at least one dollar.

Besides sending the packages to the gift shop, the Legion auxiliaries also give each hospitalized veteran in the state one dollar at Christmas time.

Plans for Wedding

The wedding of Miss Betty Jane Clark, formerly of this city, now residing at 121 West 97th street, New York, to Ernest Nelson Farrington, 215 East 25th street, New York, is scheduled to take place on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, in the St. George Episcopal Church, New York. The Rev. Mr. Holmes will perform the ceremony.

The couple obtained their license to wed at the Municipal Building in New York city on Nov. 19.

Miss Clark is the daughter of Howard N. and Catherine Schutte Clark. Her prospective husband, son of Clarence Thorpe and Alice Dupuch Farrington, was born in the Bahamas.

Musical Family Will Be Feature at Ball

Billy Graves and his two sons, a musical novelty attraction will be one of the foremost features included in the brilliant array of stars to be presented during the entertainment part of the program at the 15th annual Thanksgiving Eve Ball sponsored by the Ahavath Israel Congregation at the municipal auditorium on Wednesday evening, Nov. 21. The trio was recently featured at the Paramount Theatre. The father plays the uke, his seven year old son plays drums and the four year old plays the cello. They have also been featured on top TV shows and in leading theatres. The doors to the auditorium will be open to the public at 7:15 p. m. The overture will be played at 8:30 p. m. and the show begins at 9 p. m. Dancing to the music of Xavier Cugat and his nationally famous orchestra will follow the entertainment and continue until 1:30 a. m.

Former Bloomington Teen-age Club Members Represented in All Branches of Military

The Bloomington Teen-age club points with great pride to the large percentage of its members now serving in the various departments of the armed services. Mrs. Frank McElrath was advisor for the group which is now inactive but which she states was the first of its kind in the county.

Former members in service include Ralph Donnelly and Philip Gromoll both in the Marine Corps. Philip Gromoll is now stationed in Korea. George Fredericks and Harvey Terpening are in the air force, and Earl Mack, Jr., is serving with the army in Korea. In the navy are Rudolph Beyersdorfer, Robert Kappell, John Maschino, Franklin Miller, Robert Quinn, Wilbur Whitman and Thomas McElrath. James Rockwell is a veteran of World War 2.

The girls came in for their share of praise, too, from Mrs. McElrath who told of the number who are now or are studying to become nurses. The Misses Mildred Whitman and Edith Fatum are now graduate nurses while the Misses Beverly Peterson, Jane Johnson and Eileen Levintan are in training to become nurses. Robert Levintan and James Flanigan are in college and several members of the club are now married.

Home on leave recently were Thomas McElrath, who is in school at the Philadelphia Naval Base, Rudolph Beyersdorfer, USN, and George Fredericks, U. S. Air Force. Thomas McElrath had as his guests, also on leave, Joseph Westley, Woodridge, N. J., and James Richardson, Yonkers.

A letter which Mrs. McElrath received from one of the boys in service described the fire-fighting drills which he described as "pretty rough" but then recalling days in the club said, "I guess we must have what it takes."

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

OWN FAULT IF HUNGRY

A letter explains: "Just as I was about to have lunch the other day, a friend came to see me. I asked her to join me, but she declined saying that she was on a diet. I accepted her refusal and proceeded to have my lunch. My husband arrived shortly thereafter and thought I was very rude to sit there eating while she watched me. He thinks I should have insisted that she share my lunch. I have always considered it bad taste to insist after someone refuses. I would greatly appreciate your opinion in this matter."

I agree with your husband only to the extent of saying to her when you began to eat, "Won't you have a little of something?" But I do not agree with him that you should have insisted upon her eating when she evidently didn't want to.

New Engagement

Dear Mrs. Post: My engagement was announced about a year ago in the local papers. Six months later it was broken but this never was announced. As I'm now engaged again may an announcement be sent to the same paper?

Answer: Yes, certainly! But do not mention the broken engagement. If you can include the date for the wedding, so much the better.

Not Improper

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been dating a certain boy for about three months and have grown very fond of him. He will be having a birthday very soon and I was wondering if it would be proper for me to give a surprise party for him at my house?

Answer: If you are sure he'd like it, I see no reason why not.

Introducing Members of Family

Dear Mrs. Post: When introducing (a) a mother and a young friend, how is this done? (b) a stepmother.

Answer: (a) My mother—Alice Brown (or John Green). (b) My stepmother — Alice Brown (or John Green).

V. Lubrano Becomes Bride in Newburgh

Wallkill, Nov. 20—Miss Virginia Lubrano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Domonick Lubrano, RD 3, Newburgh, became the bride of Norfe Esposito, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Esposito of Wallkill, in the Sacred Heart Church, Newburgh, Oct. 28, at 4 p. m. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph Adamo.

The church was decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and Miss Rita Gozza, vocalist, sang the Ave Maria.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a nylon tulle formal gown with satin, velvet and white sequin trim. The coat was of white satin, filled and fashioned with a long train and Queen Anne collar trimmed with white sequin and velvet. Her headpiece was a white satin crown with a fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a white satin muff with a white orchid.

Miss Rose Minutolo of Leptondale was maid of honor for her cousin. Bridesmaids were Josephine Scotto and Sophie Minutolo cousins of Leptondale and Ruth Terwilliger, Eda Coen, Melba Keenan and Lillian Zeth, friends of the bride of Wallkill.

The bridesmaids wore satin gowns with nylon net overskirts. The maid of honor's gown was chartreuse and the bridesmaid's were in rose pink, baby blue and coral. Their headpieces were of satin braid with nylon net trimmed with a flower of velvet. They carried matching muffs of satin adorned with orchids.

Nicholas Dellanno of Forest Road served as best man. Ushers were Samuel Tweek, Gerald Minutolo, John Scotto, Richard Lutch, Joseph Monti and Bernard Dellano.

Mrs. Lubrano wore a beige dress with toast accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink dress with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

Agudas Achim Holds Membership Dinner

The women's group of Congregation Agudas Achim held its annual membership dinner in the vestry of the Synagogue on West Union street, Wednesday evening, Nov. 14. Mrs. George Farber greeted those present.

The entertainment which followed the dinner included a bridal skit entitled Brides of Yesterday and Today, written and directed by Miss Rae Einer and Miss Ida Epstein. Mrs. David Kline was the narrator. Mrs. Robert Abelove gave her interpretation of the popular song, Come-on-a-My-House, and Miss Phyllis Weiner, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Henry Singer, sang several English and Hebrew songs. Mrs. Raphael Klein was the program chairman.

Will Audition

Robert L. Pomeroy of 222 Greenkill avenue, a drummer in the Kingston High School band, has been accepted as a member of the All New York State High School band to be auditioned Saturday, Dec. 1, at the Eastman Conservatory school of Music in Rochester. The band will be under the direction of Morton Gould, famous composer, arranger and conductor. Mr. Pomeroy is a student of Robert McCue, 39 VanBuren street, instructor of percussion instruments.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

OWN FAULT IF HUNGRY

A letter explains: "Just as I was about to have lunch the other day, a friend came to see me. I asked her to join me, but she declined saying that she was on a diet. I accepted her refusal and proceeded to have my lunch. My husband arrived shortly thereafter and thought I was very rude to sit there eating while she watched me. He thinks I should have insisted that she share my lunch. I have always considered it bad taste to insist after someone refuses. I would greatly appreciate your opinion in this matter."

I agree with your husband only to the extent of saying to her when you began to eat, "Won't you have a little of something?" But I do not agree with him that you should have insisted upon her eating when she evidently didn't want to.

New Engagement

Dear Mrs. Post: My engagement was announced about a year ago in the local papers. Six months later it was broken but this never was announced. As I'm now engaged again may an announcement be sent to the same paper?

Answer: Yes, certainly! But do not mention the broken engagement. If you can include the date for the wedding, so much the better.

Not Improper

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been dating a certain boy for about three months and have grown very fond of him. He will be having a birthday very soon and I was wondering if it would be proper for me to give a surprise party for him at my house?

Answer: If you are sure he'd like it, I see no reason why not.

Introducing Members of Family

Dear Mrs. Post: When introducing (a) a mother and a young friend, how is this done? (b) a stepmother.

Answer: (a) My mother—Alice Brown (or John Green). (b) My stepmother — Alice Brown (or John Green).

V. Lubrano Becomes Bride in Newburgh

Wallkill, Nov. 20—Miss Virginia Lubrano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Domonick Lubrano, RD 3, Newburgh, became the bride of Norfe Esposito, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Esposito of Wallkill, in the Sacred Heart Church, Newburgh, Oct. 28, at 4 p. m. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph Adamo.

The church was decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and Miss Rita Gozza, vocalist, sang the Ave Maria.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a nylon tulle formal gown with satin, velvet and white sequin trim. The coat was of white satin, filled and fashioned with a long train and Queen Anne collar trimmed with white sequin and velvet. Her headpiece was a white satin crown with a fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a white satin muff with a white orchid.

Miss Rose Minutolo of Leptondale was maid of honor for her cousin. Bridesmaids were Josephine Scotto and Sophie Minutolo cousins of Leptondale and Ruth Terwilliger, Eda Çoen, Melba Keenan and Lillian Zeth, friends of the bride of Wallkill.

The bridesmaids wore satin gowns with nylon net overskirts. The maid of honor's gown was chartreuse and the bridesmaid's were in rose pink, baby blue and coral. Their headpieces were of satin braid with nylon net trimmed with a flower of velvet. They carried matching muffs of satin adorned with orchids.

Nicholas Dellanno of Forest Road served as best man. Ushers were Samuel Tweek, Gerald Minutolo, John Scotto, Richard Lutch, Joseph Monti and Bernard Dellano.

Mrs. Lubrano wore a beige dress with toast accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink dress with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

Agudas Achim Holds Membership Dinner

The women's group of Congregation Agudas Achim held its annual membership dinner in the vestry of the Synagogue on West Union street, Wednesday evening, Nov. 14. Mrs. George Farber greeted those present.

The entertainment which followed the dinner included a bridal skit entitled Brides of Yesterday and Today, written and directed by Miss Rae Einer and Miss Ida Epstein. Mrs. David Kline was the narrator. Mrs. Robert Abelove gave her interpretation of the popular song, Come-on-a-My-House, and Miss Phyllis Weiner, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Henry Singer, sang several English and Hebrew songs. Mrs. Raphael Klein was the program chairman.

Will Audition

Robert L. Pomeroy of 222 Greenkill avenue, a drummer in the Kingston High School band, has been accepted as a member of the All New York State High School band to be auditioned Saturday, Dec. 1, at the Eastman Conservatory school of Music in Rochester. The band will be under the direction of Morton Gould, famous composer, arranger and conductor. Mr. Pomeroy is a student of Robert McCue, 39 VanBuren street, instructor of percussion instruments.

Avenoo Melodrama

By FRANK TRIPP

At the turn of the century Railroad Avenue, now a shambles, was tailing off a checkered career and was notorious throughout the East. It was Southern New York's and Northern Pennsylvania's Barbary Coast during the lumbering days. Its notoriety predated the Civil War.

Reporters used to determine the stamina of roistering lumbermen by the address of the dive back of which they were found drunk, robbed and often drugged and beaten in the alley. The lower the number, the farther one had progressed down the "avenoo," and the better man he was.

While at one end of the long street were reared many fine citizens, the other end harbored the lowest type of humanity. The district was largely supported by burly lumberjacks who came out of the woods once in three months, rarin' to go.

I caught the avenue assignment near the end of its heyday. One morning my city editor led a sturdy countryman to my desk and said to him, "Tell your story to this man; maybe he can help you." The husky young farmer handed me a picture of a buxom lass and said, "I'm looking for my girl. She has been gone two weeks and her mother is almost crazy."

"He thinks she may be among your playmates up the avenue," my boss, Earl Dean, said to me.

The heartbroken man was avoiding the police, thinking to protect his daughter's reputation. He and his wife came to the city and had spent days of, futile search; then someone told them that the newspaper might help them.

THAT NIGHT I took the picture up the avenue with me. In about the third place I found the girl. She was seated at a table with an old-time female denizen of avenue back rooms.

"See that young girl back there with Pansy?" I said to the greasy proprietor of the dump. "You better get her out before you're stuck with her. Here's her picture. Her father wants her."

"He can have her. She'll never be any good to me," was his reply.

"Been around here long?" I asked him.

"In and out for a couple of weeks," he said, "and she ain't turned over a nickel for the place."

"She don't know what it's all about," he declared.

"Okay, then do this," I told him. "At exactly 11 o'clock tonight push her through the back door into the alley, and lock her out."

"So's you can have her, eh?" sneered the skunk.

"Cut the wisecracks," I fired back. "Put her out or I'll turn the heat on your grand palace."

I phoned the father to be on hand at five minutes to 11, with a hack. He was, and his wife was with him.

"You've found her?" he entreated.

"You'll have her in five minutes," I told him.

In that five minutes a strange thing happened. The nerve-racked father put his strong hands on my shoulders, then shook and clutched me till it hurt. With all the venom and earnestness a man can muster, he said to me:

"I know what you're going to do. You're going to give me back my girl, then you're going to write one of your stinking stories in the paper and ruin her reputation. By God, if you do I'll kill you and be proud to hang for it. Give me back that picture!"

"Thanks," was all that I could muster to say as I handed over the photograph.

THE PIG WHO ran the brothel came clean. At exactly 11 o'clock the door opened. A protesting girl was thrust into the alley and into the arms of her awaiting father.

From my station in the shadows I saw her led to the hack. Inside two women with arms about each other wept hysterically. The hack drove away.

I walked around to the front door, went inside and said "Thanks" again; this time to the proprietor. At that moment I had more regard for him than for the ingrate who had just misjudged and threatened me.

Within a week there came a letter. It made amends and overflowed with gratitude. All was well in the little farm home up in Steuben County.

Time and "the avenoo" marched on. And then one day Earl Dean dropped a clipping from a county paper on my desk. "Here's word from your girl friend," he said.

The item told of a happy wedding in the village church; and ended, "The popular couple will spend their honeymoon at Niagara Falls."

"A hell of a reporter!" do I hear you say? Maybe. Few of them write everything they can. (Copyright, 1951, General Features Corp.)

Morgenthau Will Wed

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., 60, will marry French-born divorcee Mrs. Marcelle Puthon Hirsch, 47, probably some time this week. The couple obtained a marriage license yesterday. Morgenthau, a resident of Fishkill, gave his occupation as "farmer." His first wife died in 1949. Mrs. Hirsch's marriage to Stephen Hirsch ended in a Virgin Islands divorce earlier this month. An associate of the former secretary said the couple would take a wedding trip to Israel.

Bolivian 'Tin King'

Simon Patino, "tin king" of Bolivia and one of South America's wealthiest men, was fired from a store-clerk job and given a "worthless" tin claim in lieu of back pay.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Nov. 19—The congregations of the Plattekill and Rossville Methodist Churches will conduct combined morning worship service at the Plattekill Church Sunday, Dec. 2. The offering taken at these services will be for the benefit of the Rev. Marion Woods' missionary work in Costa Rica. The Rev. Mr. Woods and family were former residents of this community, occupying the local parsonage previous to the Rev. Mr. Raynis' occupancy.

The Rossville parish held a food sale at the Community House at Savilton during the week.

Miss Mary Harris, daughter of J. Edward Harris and the late Ann Fulton Harris of Plattekill, and Kenneth Birdsall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Birdsall, also of Plattekill, were married Friday, Nov. 9 at the Plattekill Methodist parsonage. The Rev. Edgar Raynis, pastor of the Plattekill-Rossville Methodist Churches performed the ceremony and attendants were Miss Gladys Dempsky and Calvin Birdsall. Mrs. Birdsall is a graduate of the Wallkill Central School and the State Teachers College at New Paltz. Mr. Birdsall attended the Wallkill school and is a farmer by occupation. Both young people are members of the Plattekill Grange.

Mrs. Mildred Warren, 88, widow of Albert Warren of Marlborough, died Friday, Nov. 9, at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie. A native of Plattekill, she was the daughter of the late John and Mary Fowler Baster, and had resided in Marlborough over a period of years.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Joan Baxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Baxter of Middle Hope, to Sgt. Paul W. Mick of Cheyenne, Wyo. Miss Baxter attended Newburgh school, and is employed at the Dubette Bag Co., in Newburgh. Sgt. Mick is stationed at the Stewart Field base in Newburgh. Miss Baxter is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baxter of Plattekill.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perez are the parents of a son, Joseph, born at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, Nov. 2.

Edmund F. Wager, Jr., is convalescing from an appendectomy performed at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, last Wednesday. He is a senior at the Wallkill Central High School.

The first lesson on the ABC's of cooking was demonstrated to members of the Plattekill 4-H Jolly Makers Club held recently at the school. Attending were Carol Campbell, Barbara Dawes, Patricia Ettell, Cynthia Feliciano, Anita Ferreiuolo, Lenore Jacobowitz, Albina and Paula Orlowski, Nerida Perez and Carol Smith. Members will continue the sale of flower bulbs until Dec. 15. Proceeds will augment the annual summer camp fund for 4-H members.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neuwirth and daughter attended services in St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York recently.

Frank Ruggerio is a patient at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, where he underwent an operation last week.

Mrs. Lester Upright and Mrs. Margaret Bilboa were hostesses to about 25 local children at a party recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Baxter are being visited by their daughters, Oleta and Genevieve, of California. They plan to remain over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernard Wager, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Wager and family attended the turkey supper held recently at the New Paltz Methodist Church.

Miss Maureen Fleming, a student at a Providence, R. I. school, is spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. Holly Waller and children were recent visitors of friends in Firthcliffe.

The card party sponsored by the November-December committee of the Plattekill Grange, proved successful. Serving on the committee were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Vandermark, Mrs. May Lozier, Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Lozier, Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Underhill, Mr. and Mrs. Onfrey Orlowski, Mrs. John Klein, Mr. and Mrs. George Sisti, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Huggins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. DeLapp, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Murphy, Mr. and Mrs, Fred Fetter, Mrs. George Lare and Sophie Zirger.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernard Wager will spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bramely and family at Middle Hope.

A recent meeting of the Plattekill Home Bureau included a report on a meeting and dinner of the Ulster County Branch of the American Cancer Society at Kingston by Mrs. Milton Van Duser. Mrs. Alonzo Benedict was project leader and the chairman, Mrs. George Sisti, Sr., presided at the business meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund F. Wager and family are spending the holiday vacation with Mr. and Mrs. William DuBois and daughter, Faye, at Northfield, Vt.

The annual installation of newly elected officers of Plattekill Grange, 923, was held Saturday night in the Grange Hall under the direction of Fred Eckert and his installation team of the Clintondale Grange. Preceding the ceremonies, a supper was served to Grange members and their families under the auspices of the service and hospitality committee with Mrs. Catherine Miller as chairman. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett, delegates to the state grange meeting at Syracuse, gave interesting reports of the session.

Mr. and Mrs. Willet Deyo were visited by relatives from New Jersey last weekend.

Members of the Plattekill 4-H Jolly Makers Club exhibited a window display in Ernest Waite's general store, Nov. 3-10, in observance of National 4-H Achievement Week. The theme of the week was Working Together for World Understanding.

Tone Marriage Sours

Hollywood, Nov. 20 (AP)—The seven-week marriage of Franchot Tone and actress Barbara Payton is on the rocks, her attorney said today. The lawyer, Robert S. Feder, said the couple quarreled bitterly Sunday night and separated yesterday. He said he plans to file a divorce action soon, possibly next week. Feder said he did not know what the quarrel was about. His client has moved out of the apartment she shared with the actor and is staying with friends, he said. Neither Tone nor Miss Payton could be reached for comment.

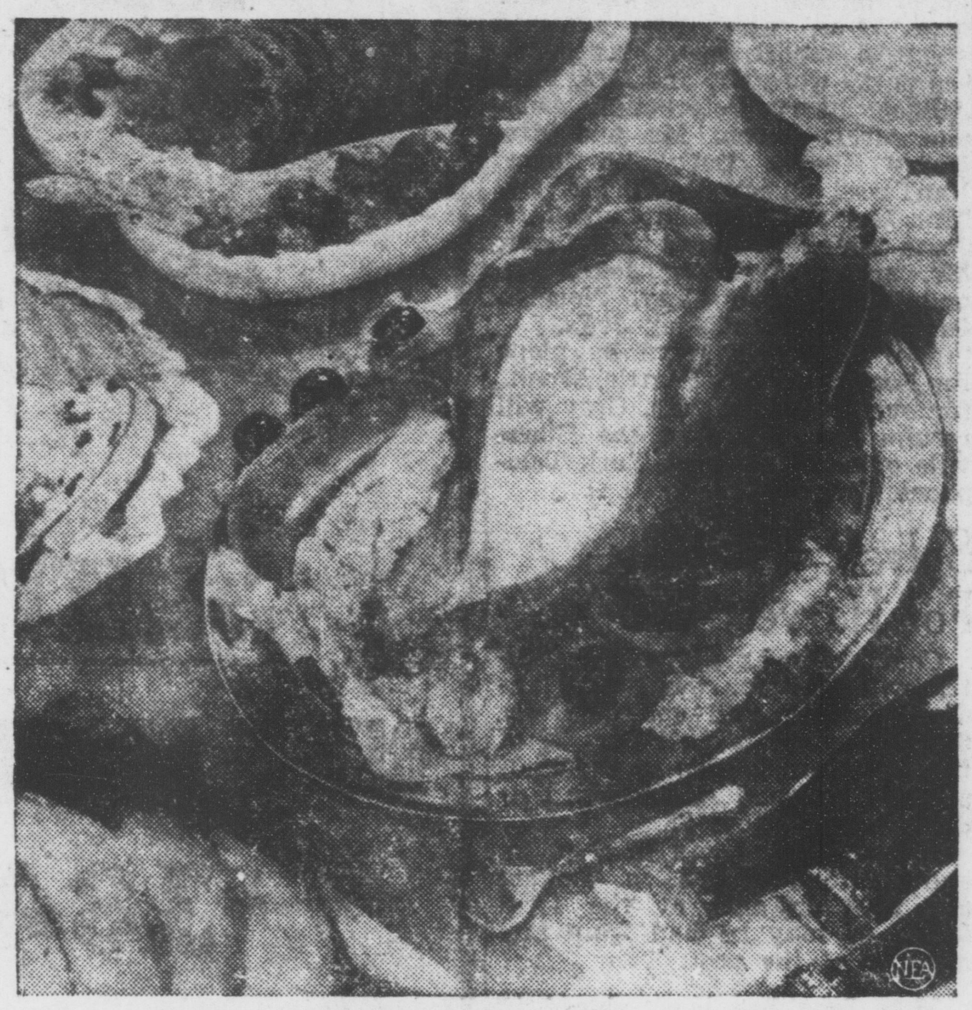
EAT WELL for Less

COLD TURKEY MAKES IDEAL SNACK



COLD TURKEY AND CRANBERRY FIZZ—a delightful treat for a late supper party.

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Market Editor

On Thanksgiving night, long after the big feast, or any other time when guests are hungry, leftover turkey makes a perfect snack. Serve it sliced cold with a variety of interesting breads. Let your guests make their own sandwiches.

Refreshing and delicious with the turkey are bottled soft drinks combined with rich cranberry liquid. Have bottles of ginger ale, lemon-lime and cola carbonated beverage well-chilled; then let your guests make their own surprise Cranberry Fizz.

Surprise Cranberry Fizz

Four cups cranberries, 2½ cups water, 1¼ cups granulated sugar, bottled carbonated beverages, chilled.

Wash and remove stems of cranberries; combine with water and sugar; bring to a boil then reduce heat. Allow to simmer until skins break. Strain through a cheese cloth or fine sieve. Reserve pulp for cranberry sauce. Chill cranberry liquid.

To serve: Fill glasses ¼ to ½ full of cranberry liquid, then add chilled, freshly-opened carbonated beverage. Ginger ale, lemon-lime or cola carbonated soft drinks are all good—and the drinks retain their ruby cranberry color.

If you want to serve a hot version of leftover turkey, try this recipe.

Turkey Puffs
(Serves 6-8)

Two cups all purpose flour, sifted, ½ teaspoon salt, white pepper, few grains, 4 eggs, well beaten, 1 1/3 cups cold milk, 2 tablespoons melted shortening or olive oil, 2 cups cold turkey, in 1-inch cubes, hot fat.

Combine flour, salt, pepper, eggs, and milk until smooth. Then add melted shortening or olive oil. Cube turkey into one-inch squares. Roll each cube in batter and drop separately into hot deep fat about 4 inches deep. (370 degrees F. to 390 degrees F.) Cook a few at a time and keep hot until served. Drain on paper towel or unglazed brown paper.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, ready to eat cereal, scrambled eggs on toast, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Hot tomato bouillon, crackers, cold sliced turkey, relishes sliced buttered bread apple sauce, cookies, cranberry fizz, tea, milk.

DINNER: Canned corn beef hash, catsup, buttered beets, buttered onions, rye bread, butter or fortified margarine, cabbage and apple salad, mincemeat tarts, cheese, coffee, milk.

Broadloom means any carpet wider than 27 inches, the width of the original looms, and does not refer to a solid color.

Volunteers Make Annual Request For Money Help

Captain Charles Brant, officer in charge of the local post of the Volunteers of America, has announced that the annual letters requesting financial aid will be in the mail this week. It is urgently requested that all who receive these requests respond as greatly and quickly as they possibly can, he said.

This organization has had many calls for help from all quarters. Persons have been given shelter, transients have received meals and lodgings. Whenever humanly possible, no request has been denied. A complete report of the work done this year will be published later this week, Capt. Brant pointed out.

In addition, the organization has over a long period of years conducted a day nursery for the children of working mothers. Whenever possible, particularly where very small children were involved, the mother has been assisted in finding a way to keep the children in the home. Often this has been impossible, so the children have been brought to the nursery. Inasmuch as these families are in the small income bracket, this service is essential. If it is to continue, an even greater amount of money must be raised this year, to meet increased costs and higher standards, Capt. Brant said.

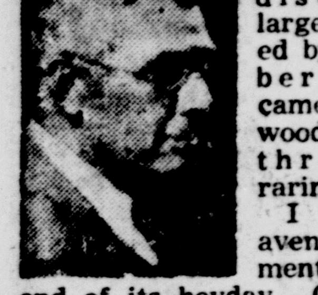
At the turn of the century Railroad Avenue, now a shambles, was tailing off a checkered career and was notorious throughout the East. It was Southern New York's and Northern Pennsylvania's Barbary Coast during the lumbering days. Its notoriety predated the Civil War.

Reporters used to determine the stamina of roistering lumbermen by the address of the dive back of which they were found drunk, robbed and often drugged and beaten in the alley. The lower the number, the farther one had progressed down the "avenoo," and the better man he was.

While at one end of the long street were reared many fine citizens, the other end harbored the lowest type of humanity. The district was largely supported by burly lumberjacks who came out of the woods once in three months, rarin' to go.



I caught the avenue assignment near the end of its heyday. One morning my city editor led a sturdy countryman to my desk and said to him, "Tell your story to this man; maybe he can help you." The husky young farmer handed me a picture of a buxom lass and said, "I'm looking for my girl. She has been gone two weeks and her mother is almost crazy."

"He thinks she may be among your playmates up the avenue," my boss, Earl Dean, said to me.

The heartbroken man was avoiding the police, thinking to protect his daughter's reputation. He and his wife came to the city and had spent days of, futile search; then someone told them that the newspaper might help them.

THAT NIGHT I took the picture up the avenue with me. In about the third place I found the girl. She was seated at a table with an old-time female denizen of avenue back rooms.

"See that young girl back there with Pansy?" I said to the greasy proprietor of the dump. "You better get her out before you're stuck with her. Here's her picture. Her father wants her."

"He can have her. She'll never be any good to me," was his reply.

"Been around here long?" I asked him.

"In and out for a couple of weeks," he said, "and she ain't turned over a nickel for the place."

"She don't know what it's all about," he declared.

"Okay, then do this," I told him. "At exactly 11 o'clock tonight push her through the back door into the alley, and lock her out."

"So's you can have her, eh?" sneered the skunk.

"Cut the wisecracks," I fired back. "Put her out or I'll turn the heat on your grand palace."

I phoned the father to be on hand at five minutes to 11, with a hack. He was, and his wife was with him.

"You've found her?" he entreated.

"You'll have her in five minutes," I told him.

In that five minutes a strange thing happened. The nerve-racked father put his strong hands on my shoulders, then shook and clutched me till it hurt. With all the venom and earnestness a man can muster, he said to me:

"I know what you're going to do. You're going to give me back my girl, then you're going to write one of your stinking stories in the paper and ruin her reputation. By God, if you do I'll kill you and be proud to hang for it. Give me back that picture!"

"Thanks," was all that I could muster to say as I handed over the photograph.

THE PIG WHO ran the brothel came clean. At exactly 11 o'clock the door opened. A protesting girl was thrust into the alley and into the arms of her awaiting father.

From my station in the shadows I saw her led to the hack. Inside two women with arms about each other wept hysterically. The hack drove away.

I walked around to the front door, went inside and said "Thanks" again; this time to the proprietor. At that moment I had more regard for him than for the ingrate who had just misjudged and threatened me.

Within a week there came a letter. It made amends and overflowed with gratitude. All was well in the little farm home up in Steuben County.

Time and "the avenoo" marched on. And then one day Earl Dean dropped a clipping from a county paper on my desk. "Here's word from your girl friend," he said.

The item told of a happy wedding in the village church; and ended, "The popular couple will spend their honeymoon at Niagara Falls."

"A hell of a reporter!" do I hear you say? Maybe. Few of them write everything they can. (Copyright, 1951, General Features Corp.)

Morgenthau Will Wed

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., 60, will marry French-born divorcee Mrs. Marcelle Puthon Hirsch, 47, probably some time this week. The couple obtained a marriage license yesterday. Morgenthau, a resident of Fishkill, gave his occupation as "farmer." His first wife died in 1949. Mrs. Hirsch's marriage to Stephen Hirsch ended in a Virgin Islands divorce earlier this month. An associate of the former secretary said the couple would take a wedding trip to Israel.

Bolivian 'Tin King'

Simon Patino, "tin king" of Bolivia and one of South America's wealthiest men, was fired from a store-clerk job and given a "worthless" tin claim in lieu of back pay.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Nov. 19—The congregations of the Plattekill and Rossville Methodist Churches will conduct combined morning worship service at the Plattekill Church Sunday, Dec. 2. The offering taken at these services will be for the benefit of the Rev. Marion Woods' missionary work in Costa Rica. The Rev. Mr. Woods and family were former residents of this community, occupying the local parsonage previous to the Rev. Mr. Raynis' occupancy.

The Rossville parish held a food sale at the Community House at Savilton during the week.

Miss Mary Harris, daughter of J. Edward Harris and the late Ann Fulton Harris of Plattekill, and Kenneth Birdsall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Birdsall, also of Plattekill, were married Friday, Nov. 9 at the Plattekill Methodist parsonage. The Rev. Edgar Raynis, pastor of the Plattekill-Rossville Methodist Churches performed the ceremony and attendants were Miss Gladys Dempsky and Calvin Birdsall. Mrs. Birdsall is a graduate of the Wallkill Central School and the State Teachers College at New Paltz. Mr. Birdsall attended the Wallkill school and is a farmer by occupation. Both young people are members of the Plattekill Grange.

Mrs. Mildred Warren, 88, widow of Albert Warren of Marlborough, died Friday, Nov. 9, at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie. A native of Plattekill, she was the daughter of the late John and Mary Fowler Baster, and had resided in Marlborough over a period of years.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Joan Baxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Baxter of Middle Hope, to Sgt. Paul W. Mick of Cheyenne, Wyo. Miss Baxter attended Newburgh school, and is employed at the Dubette Bag Co., in Newburgh. Sgt. Mick is stationed at the Stewart Field base in Newburgh. Miss Baxter is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baxter of Plattekill.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perez are the parents of a son, Joseph, born at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, Nov. 2.

Edmund F. Wager, Jr., is convalescing from an appendectomy performed at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, last Wednesday. He is a senior at the Wallkill Central High School.

The first lesson on the ABC's of cooking was demonstrated to members of the Plattekill 4-H Jolly Makers Club held recently at the school. Attending were Carol Campbell, Barbara Dawes, Patricia Ettell, Cynthia Feliciano, Anita Ferreiuolo, Lenore Jacobowitz, Albina and Paula Orlowski, Nerida Perez and Carol Smith. Members will continue the sale of flower bulbs until Dec. 15. Proceeds will augment the annual summer camp fund for 4-H members.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neuwirth and daughter attended services in St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York recently.

Frank Ruggerio is a patient at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, where he underwent an operation last week.

Mrs. Lester Upright and Mrs. Margaret Bilboa were hostesses to about 25 local children at a party recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Baxter are being visited by their daughters, Oleta and Genevieve, of California. They plan to remain over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernard Wager, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Wager and family attended the turkey supper held recently at the New Paltz Methodist Church.

Miss Maureen Fleming, a student at a Providence, R. I. school, is spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. Holly Waller and children were recent visitors of friends in Firthcliffe.

The card party sponsored by the November-December committee of the Plattekill Grange, proved successful. Serving on the committee were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Vandermark, Mrs. May Lozier, Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Lozier, Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Underhill, Mr. and Mrs. Onfrey Orlowski, Mrs. John Klein, Mr. and Mrs. George Sisti, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Huggins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. DeLapp, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Murphy, Mr. and Mrs, Fred Fetter, Mrs. George Lare and Sophie Zirger.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernard Wager will spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bramely and family at Middle Hope.

A recent meeting of the Plattekill Home Bureau included a report on a meeting and dinner of the Ulster County Branch of the American Cancer Society at Kingston by Mrs. Milton Van Duser. Mrs. Alonzo Benedict was project leader and the chairman, Mrs. George Sisti, Sr., presided at the business meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund F. Wager and family are spending the holiday vacation with Mr. and Mrs. William DuBois and daughter, Faye, at Northfield, Vt.

The annual installation of newly elected officers of Plattekill Grange, 923, was held Saturday night in the Grange Hall under the direction of Fred Eckert and his installation team of the Clintondale Grange. Preceding the ceremonies, a supper was served to Grange members and their families under the auspices of the service and hospitality committee with Mrs. Catherine Miller as chairman. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett, delegates to the state grange meeting at Syracuse, gave interesting reports of the session.

The Plattekill Mothers Club held a business meeting Monday night at the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Willet Deyo were visited by relatives from New Jersey last weekend.

Members of the Plattekill 4-H Jolly Makers Club exhibited a window display in Ernest Waite's general store, Nov. 3-10, in observance of National 4-H Achievement Week. The theme of the week was Working Together for World Understanding.

Tone Marriage Sours

Hollywood, Nov. 20 (AP)—The seven-week marriage of Franchot Tone and actress Barbara Payton is on the rocks, her attorney said today. The lawyer, Robert S. Feder, said the couple quarreled bitterly Sunday night and separated yesterday. He said he plans to file a divorce action soon, possibly next week. Feder said he did not know what the quarrel was about. His client has moved out of the apartment she shared with the actor and is staying with friends, he said. Neither Tone nor Miss Payton could be reached for comment.

EAT WELL for Less

COLD TURKEY MAKES IDEAL SNACK

COLD TURKEY AND CRANBERRY FIZZ—a delightful treat for a late supper party.

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Market Editor

On Thanksgiving night, long after the big feast, or any other time when guests are hungry, leftover turkey makes a perfect snack. Serve it sliced cold with a variety of interesting breads. Let your guests make their own sandwiches.

Refreshing and delicious with the turkey are bottled soft drinks combined with rich cranberry liquid. Have bottles of ginger ale, lemon-lime and cola carbonated beverage well-chilled; then let your guests make their own surprise Cranberry Fizz.

Surprise Cranberry Fizz

Four cups cranberries, 2½ cups water, 1¼ cups granulated sugar, bottled carbonated beverages, chilled.

Wash and remove stems of cranberries; combine with water and sugar; bring to a boil then reduce heat. Allow to simmer until skins break. Strain through a cheese cloth or fine sieve. Reserve pulp for cranberry sauce. Chill cranberry liquid.

To serve: Fill glasses ¼ to ½ full of cranberry liquid, then add chilled, freshly-opened carbonated beverage. Ginger ale, lemon-lime or cola carbonated soft drinks are all good—and the drinks retain their ruby cranberry color.

If you want to serve a hot version of leftover turkey, try this recipe.

Turkey Puffs
(Serves 6-8)

Two cups all purpose flour, sifted, ½ teaspoon salt, white pepper, few grains, 4 eggs, well beaten, 1 1/3 cups cold milk, 2 tablespoons melted shortening or olive oil, 2 cups cold turkey, in 1-inch cubes, hot fat.

Combine flour, salt, pepper, eggs, and milk until smooth. Then add melted shortening or olive oil. Cube turkey into one-inch squares. Roll each cube in batter and drop separately into hot deep fat about 4 inches deep. (370 degrees F. to 390 degrees F.) Cook a few at a time and keep hot until served. Drain on paper towel or unglazed brown paper.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, ready to eat cereal, scrambled eggs on toast, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Hot tomato bouillon, crackers, cold sliced turkey, relishes sliced buttered bread apple sauce, cookies, cranberry fizz, tea, milk.

DINNER: Canned corn beef hash, catsup, buttered beets, buttered onions, rye bread, butter or fortified margarine, cabbage and apple salad, mincemeat tarts, cheese, coffee, milk.

Broadloom means any carpet wider than 27 inches, the width of the original looms, and does not refer to a solid color.

Volunteers Make Annual Request For Money Help

Captain Charles Brant, officer in charge of the local post of the Volunteers of America, has announced that the annual letters requesting financial aid will be in the mail this week. It is urgently requested that all who receive these requests respond as greatly and quickly as they possibly can, he said.

This organization has had many calls for help from all quarters. Persons have been given shelter, transients have received meals and lodgings. Whenever humanly possible, no request has been denied. A complete report of the work done this year will be published later this week, Capt. Brant pointed out.

In addition, the organization has over a long period of years conducted a day nursery for the children of working mothers. Whenever possible, particularly where very small children were involved, the mother has been assisted in finding a way to keep the children in the home. Often this has been impossible, so the children have been brought to the nursery. Inasmuch as these families are in the small income bracket, this service is essential. If it is to continue, an even greater amount of money must be raised this year, to meet increased costs and higher standards, Capt. Brant said.

Voting on Milk Order Amendment Ends November 30

New York, Nov. 20—Dairymen in the six-state New York milkshed have until midnight Friday, November 30, to ballot on a proposed amendment to New York's federal and state milk marketing orders, it was announced here today by Dr. C. J. Blanford, the referendum agent.

Dr. Blanford, who is also Market Administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, said the proposed amendment involves "several minor changes" in the various factors used in the formula for pricing Class III milk. Class III milk is surplus milk used chiefly for manufacturing purposes. The effect of the changes, Dr. Blanford said, would be to increase the minimum price of surplus milk about three cents per hundredweight.

In addition, Dr. Blanford said, the proposed amendment would place concentrated fluid milk in Class 1-A, which is now chiefly bottled milk. Cream entering the marketing area and used for whipped topping mixtures would be grouped in Class III, as would drinking milk sterilized and packed in hermetically sealed containers.

Dr. Blanford explained that all 49,928 producers who supplied the New York market last July are eligible to vote, either individually or through qualified cooperative associations. Approval of the amendment by at least two-thirds of the producers voting is required.

Independent dairymen numbering 17,463 are eligible to cast individual ballots, as are 882 members of seven cooperative associations. Sixty-six cooperative associations with 31,583 members have elected to cast collective ballots.

Dr. Blanford said that an explanation of the amendment and ballots have been distributed throughout the milkshed. He said that any qualified producer eligible to vote individually who had not received a ballot or a copy of the proposed amendment could secure them from the Referendum Agent, Ninth Floor, 210 East 43rd street, New York 17, N. Y.

Separation Is Sought

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Former Olympic swimming star Eleanor Holm is reported seeking a legal separation from her showman husband, Billy Rose. Reports yesterday said the papers were served on the 50-year-old Rose over the weekend. Miss Holm's next step normally would be to move for temporary alimony and counsel fees. Attorneys for the couple declined to comment. And neither Rose nor Miss Holm, 37, would be reached for comment. In New York state, a separation may be sought on grounds of abandonment, non-support or cruelty.

Fishing by Remora

The Chinese use the remora, or sucking fish, for catching turtles. A string is attached to the tail of the fish and it is released in the water. When it attaches itself to a turtle by means of the suction cup on top of its head, the fisherman pulls both up.

Buys First TB Yule Stamps

Yule Seal Sale Is Biggest Help in Fight Against TB

A jolly, pixy version of the ageless Santa Claus—from red, fur-trimmed cap to copious white beard—peers out engagingly from the 1951 Christmas Seals, which Ulster county residents received in the mail Monday, according to Ulster County Christmas Seal Sale chairman, James L. Rowe.

Conducted by the Ulster County TB and Health Association, the 1951 Christmas Seal Sale, to raise funds for the anti-tuberculosis work of the association during the coming year, opened November 19 and will continue until January 1.

"Santa Claus, the traditional bearer of gifts, is a particularly fitting motif for the Christmas Seal," Chairman Rowe said. "Although we still have a tremendous job ahead of us before tuberculosis is under control, the gifts of the American people in the form of Christmas Seal purchases through the years have made possible great progress against the disease.

"Santa Claus on the Christmas Seal also points up the fact that with the purchase of Christmas Seals, each one of us is actually giving ourselves a certain measure of health insurance, for with Christmas Seals we help finance services which are offered to protect us against the dread disease, tuberculosis."

The "Christmas Seal Santa" was designed by Robert Stephens, commercial artist of Newark, N. J., from the likeness of a Santa Claus which he had sculptured in clay for his little daughter.

Santa's face, with its apple-red cheeks and cherry nose, is set against a green-blue background. The Christmas Seal also bears the year, "1951," the letters "USA," and the red double-barred cross, international symbol of the campaign against tuberculosis and registered insignia of the National Tuberculosis Association and its 3,000 affiliates.

Stating that the spirit of unselfish giving "has always characterized the people of Ulster county," Chairman Rowe said he was "confident that the Christmas Seal Sale will be a success because the people of the community are actively behind the tuberculosis association as it works to halt the spread of a disease which kills more people than all other infections diseases combined."

"The TB and Health Association is working for us the year 'round," Chairman Rowe pointed out, "through their promotion of the chest X-ray survey, mental health program, services to patients at the Ulster County TB Hospital, medical research and health education thru the distribution of films, pamphlets, and talks."

A true and interesting fact is that unless it had proven value and merit, no amount of advertising could possibly have built up the reputation that FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE has earned and maintained since 1855 for the relief of coughs due to colds by its soothing effect on the throat.

Girl Scout News

Troops 5, 7 and 11

Girl Scout Troops 5 and 7 held a meeting and party recently at St. John's Parish hall with 23 girls participating. Relay races and a marshmallow eating contest were included in the evening's fun. A horseshoe ceremony was held during which Carolee Leware was awarded the tenderfoot pin she earned last spring but was unable to attend the Spring Court of Awards when similar pins were given.

On Sunday, Oct. 28, 13 girls from the three troops attended services at St. John's in honor of the birthday of girl scouting.

Groups have been formed to assist with the work of preparation for the mailing of the TB Christmas seals.

Those attending the Halloween party given by Troop 11 included Esther Schaeffer, Melinda Odell, Ann Dugan, Ruth Finkle, Susan Hook, Jacqueline Peterson, Jacqueline Jansen, Dorothy Jean Scott, Ruth Albright, Jay Hook, Pierce Barley, Robert Shellenberger, Jr., Robert Powell, Roger Squire, Edwin Strong, Jr., Richard Strong, Ronald Nash, Roger Snyder, and Roger Dykes.

Awards were made to the successful contestants in several games played.

Leaders Meeting

A meeting of the Girl Scout Leaders of this area was held Nov. 12, at St. Joseph's church hall with Mrs. Robert T. Shellenberger presiding in the absence of Mrs. Phoebe Van Wagenen, president.

Lt. William Leonard of the Kingston Police Department was guest speaker. He reflected on traffic problems, and hazards in regard to children, especially with regard to their coming and going to church and school, and in their leisure hours of play. He offered numerous suggestions for the elimination of many of these hazards.

He spoke of traffic entanglements around the church and school, the dangers caused by early morning frost and steam condensation on car windows which obstruct a clear view for the driver and others.

Lt. Leonard suggested that the trailer truck be given a wide berth. He stated that the drivers of such vehicles are the finest on the highway today but that frequently passenger car drivers do not allow sufficient clearing space when passing the trucks.

He stressed the need for good brakes, strong horn and adequate lights for the children's bicycles, and urged the parents to continually coach the children in their own homes with respect to traffic signals.

An announcement was made that Miss Jane Lounsberry of Girl Scout national headquarters office would speak at a gathering in the Governor Clinton hotel Nov. 19.

The annual troop leaders' Christmas party will be held Dec. 10 at St. John's Parish Hall. Mrs. Marian Martin was appointed chairman and will be assisted by the Mmes. Otto Havlin, Clifford Rifenburg and Richard Holbrook. Each leader was requested to bring a small Christmas gift to exchange with another at the party. The group decided to postpone the investiture service, usually held at the Christmas party, until the January court of awards.

Smallest Bible

Halifax, N. S. (AP)—James William Bradley has what he believes is the world's smallest Bible. Measuring only five-eighths of an inch square, with 500 thin pages, it was printed for the Oxford University Press in 1859 and presented to Bradley for good school attendance in 1897.

Grange News

Hurley Grange 963

The regular meeting of Hurley Grange, 963, was held last week with Walter Stauble, master, presiding. All officers were in attendance. Mrs. Walter Pilz, service and hospitality chairman, reported plans for the annual Christmas party to be held the first meeting in December. Mrs. Claude Palen gave a brief account of her trip to the State Grange in Syracuse. At the sessions, Mrs. Palen was presented a $50 bond and plaque by State Master Henry Sherwood for Hurley Grange's 1951 community service project. The bond and plaque were turned over to the Grange at the meeting. Hurley Grange was the only Grange in Ulster county to receive the award. Mrs. Charles Lockwood, chairman of the 1951 community service project, was given a rising vote of thanks for her work. The master appointed Mrs. Winfred Snyder as the chairman for the coming year. Mrs. Roger Ten Eyck, lecturer, presented the following program: Armistice Day, prayer by Mrs. L. C. Dixon, chaplain; Justin Bell talked on World War 1 from the day of his induction until the day he returned. Mrs. Frank Ten Eyck recited In Flander's Field; a song, Over There by Matt Tryon, Justin Bell, Winfred Snyder, Chet Decker and Vernon Goetchius; song, My Buddy, Harriet Tryon, chorus; song, acted by Chet Decker and Justin Bell, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning; song, Roses Are Shining in Picardy, Harriet Tryon and chorus; song, Red Cross Nurse, acted by Chet Decker and Helen Snyder, sung by chorus; Smile Awhile and Beautiful Katie, songs by entire group. Refreshments were served after the meeting by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kruetzfeldt. A social hour followed.

Thanksgiving

Yes, that great American holiday, Thanksgiving, will roll around again this Thursday. On that day we all give thanks for the great blessings which have been bestowed upon our nation through the years.

Thanksgiving is a great American tradition—an institution. Your Home-Seekers Savings and Loan is another institution—of a different sort, of course. It has been serving the people of Kingston and vicinity for years as a place to save and a place to earn.

As this Thanksgiving rolls around, we in Home-Seekers can be thankful for the farsighted people in Kingston who have chosen it as a place to put their earnings. The hundreds who have accounts in Home-Seekers can attest to the wisdom of "SAVE AND EARN THE HOME-SEEKERS WAY."

Thanksgiving

Yes, that great American holiday, Thanksgiving, will roll around again this Thursday. On that day we all give thanks for the great blessings which have been bestowed upon our nation through the years.

Thanksgiving is a great American tradition—an institution. Your Home-Seekers Savings and Loan is another institution—of a different sort, of course. It has been serving the people of Kingston and vicinity for years as a place to save and a place to earn.

As this Thanksgiving rolls around, we in Home-Seekers can be thankful for the farsighted people in Kingston who have chosen it as a place to put their earnings. The hundreds who have accounts in Home-Seekers can attest to the wisdom of "SAVE AND EARN THE HOME-SEEKERS WAY."

I think there are folks still around who used to "work on the ice." Have a newspaper of Thursday, January 7, 1886, of Kingston which tells about the trials and tribulations of those days during ice harvest. "There are from five to 7 inches of ice back of Ridgewood Island and in Schodack Creek. It is spoiled by the lack of snow on the ground, which allows every high wind to carry sand and leaves from the land to the ice, where it lodges and swelts its way down in the ice causing it to be gritty. In the main channel, above Catskill, where the Hudson River is closed, ice averages 4 inches in thickness. The ice in many places contains air holes. In fact, the ice is so poor in localities that ice-men have not taken the trouble to stake out their fields. They consider it unfit to use, and there are many wishes made for a general break-up."

I remember still back in the 20's when the men worked on the ice. They would go away for several weeks at a time and living quarters would be arranged for them near their work. Although they worked in the open on the river, in their living quarters they wanted it very warm. When they would hang their damp clothes around the hot fires to dry, they told my father, it really was something. That was before air-conditioning. But they always came back looking strong and healthy and usually weighed more for the food seemed to be excellent after their work outdoors. In those days very young boys were sent to work on the river. It is said, that a boy of slender build and light weight left but after several weeks working on the rugged ice and those heavy meals, he became a man with big muscles.

Harry Rigby, Jr., loaned me a book called Tulipomania which is full of information on the tulip, which links with our coming 300th anniversary in 1952. The book goes way back in the 1600's—when such bulbs as the Viceroy were paid for with the following merchandise: two loads of wheat; four loads of rye; four fat oxen; eight fat pigs; 12 fat sheep; two hogshead of wine; four barrels of eight-florin beer; two barrels of butter; 1,000 lb. of cheese; a complete bed; a suit of clothes and a silver beaker, the entire lot valued at 2,500 florins for just one tulip bulb. A Semper Augustus bulb fetched nearly twice that much, together with a fine new carriage and a pair. Even as late as 1836 a new bulb, Citadel of Antwerp fetched 650 sterling pounds. It got so out of hand, that laws were passed pertaining to the selling and buying of tulips.

To those who wish to further study the tulip before the coming spring when it will flourish in many gardens of Kingston try and read this little illustrated book. It tells so much about the tulip in the 17th Century when tulips were the chief object of financial speculations in Holland and fortunes were won and lost over mere tulips. The colorful plates are reproduced for the first time from newly discovered originals by Alexander Marshal in the Royal Library at Windsor. I have never read the like of it before.

SPCA Officials To Meet With E. A. Steuding

At the regular meeting of the directors of the Ulster County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals held Thursday night in the Court House, it was learned that the society had received several complaints concerning the care, welfare, and treatment of animals housed in the Forsyth Park Zoo. A letter was forwarded to Ernest A. Steuding, superintendent of public works requesting a meeting with officials of the SPCA at the park "to work out ways and means of improving the situation." Steuding said that he would be glad to comply with this request and expects to meet with the group in the near future.

The resignation of Dr. Henry L. Bibby as director was accepted with regret during the meeting. Mrs. Bibby will fill her husband's unexpired term. Dr. Bibby gave as his reason for resigning, the work he has undertaken in connection with the Cerebral Palsy Center.

In an effort to raise money for the SPCA program, it was announced that a letter had been sent to the radio and television program Strike It Rich, produced over a national hook-up, requesting that representatives of the SPCA be permitted to participate in the program in an effort to earn the weekly award of $500 given away during that program.

Other business discussed during the meeting was the dance to raise funds for the general operating purposes and it was decided to hold this event in February, time and place to be announced. The animal ambulance is being prepared for operation with wire partitions.

Mrs. J. Dunbar, Port Ewen, treasurer, reported gratification in the number of membership applications being received and requested that dues be paid promptly.

Mrs. Herbert Cutler, president, stated that she was looking forward to enrolling thousands of school children in the project for youth before this program was completed. The SPCA is enlisting the aid of the children in the county as a means of preventing cruelty to any animals. This is being accomplished through an educational program presented where requested in the schools. To date, several hundred children have been reported as participating in the program.

Mother Who Screams Is Warning to All Parents

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

"I am not interested in why my mother screams at me," the teenage girl said, smiling at me. "I am not interested in my mother—period. I live with her because I want my education. When I've got it, I'll get out and stay out."

"When a woman screams at a child," I said, "she is not really screaming at him, you know. She is screaming at things that often have nothing to do with children—at something or someone else that has frightened her."

The girl laughed. "If my mother's frightened, that's her business," she said. "Frankly, my mother and her business just bore me."

This is a real and disturbing conversation I recently had with a young girl not yet 16 years old. I am commenting on it, not because I can advise on such deeply entrenched problems as those that exist between her and her mother, but because her deep contempt for the parent who "screams" at her contains a warning to us all.

She is not the only child who bitterly resents being made the butt of uncontrolled bursts of anger. Not long ago, a group of delinquent children chose "a quiet voice" as the fourth most desirable trait in parents. They thought it so important that they gave it precedence over "affection."

Instead of berating Johnny for angrily resisting a violent expression of our annoyance with him, we should be most grateful to him. His resistance to our lack of control is his resistance against the temptation to feel contempt for us. His refusal to accept our exaggerated anger is his way of informing us that he wants to respect what we have to say and that if we insist on incoherence and excitement, he won't be able to manage it.

If we've got the idea that we scream at Johnny because we are disturbed by his defiance, we ought to get rid of it fast. We scream at him, not because of what he's done, but because his resistance to us excites a feeling of discouragement and helplessness that already exists,

WINNING OUR SKIRMISH WITH SELF-CONTEMPT

If we have recently been reacting to Johnny's defiance with a loud voice and that choked feeling in the throat, inventory time has come.

Sure as we're alive, we'll find we have been wresting with an impression that we are not appreciated the way we deserve to be. The louder our voice, the more hurtful has been our encounter with slight, criticism or humiliation.

Johnny's defiance isn't our problem at all. Our problem is winning our little skirmish with self-contempt. When we win it, we will be able to deal with Johnny.

"Self-contempt and bad conduct stand in the most frightful mutual relation," writes Thomas Mann, the world-famous novelist. "They feed on each other; they play into each other's hand . . . ."

Most of us—and we shouldn't forget it either—cannot afford to accept even the most casual slights and humiliations without dealing with them at once, consciously. We simply cannot allow anyone—friends, relatives, even strangers on a bus, to make us feel unworthy and foolish without taking immediate steps to repair the breach in our dignity.

Though we may not find it either wise or convenient to defend ourselves by words or physical action, we will judge the value of what has been said to us, use what is true in it, and dispose of the rest.

Quietly and invisibly, just as the healthy red blood corpuscles rush to reject infection in a physical wound, we will apply antiseptic to the infection contained in criticism, disapproval and aggression.

That is how we gradually build up immunity to infection of our emotional health.

Screaming at children is evidence that we have not been giving proper antiseptic care to the wounds dealt us by others.

Even Experts Can Make Mistakes

The bidding is a little peculiar in today's hand, but it's very hard to criticize it. All four players at the table have won several national championships, and if you'd like to tell them what palukas they are, you can find them at this year's nationals in Detroit during the first week of December.

As for myself, I would hardly call any of the players a paluka, but I could observe that North and South wobbled a bit as they reached the contract of three diamonds. What's more, West managed to foozle the defense.

West opened the ace of spades, about as good a choice as any, considering the nature of his hand. He continued the suit, and South won with the king of spades.

Declarer led a club, West played low, and dummy won with the king. Declarer next laid down dummy's ace of diamonds and led another diamond from dummy, finessing the ten from his hand. West won with the king of diamonds and had to find the right continuation.

It certainly does no good to lead a spade. South wins and leads his last club. If West wins, he must then lead hearts—and therefore might just as well lead the suit earlier. If West fails to take his ace of clubs, dummy wins, South ruffs a club, gets to dummy with the ace of hearts, and ruffs another club.

West saw all this very clearly without looking at the entire hand. The only chance to set the hand was to attack the hearts.

So West led a small heart, which rode around to South's queen. Now South could afford to lay down the queen of diamonds and lead his remaining club. Nothing could stop him from getting to dummy with the ace of hearts to discard a heart on the queen of clubs. East could ruff with his good jack of diamonds, if he liked, but the contract was safe.

West should have led the king of hearts. Dummy would have to win; and dummy would have to return a heart to South's queen for a club continuation. That would enable West to step up with the ace of clubs and cash the ten of hearts. East would eventually get a diamond trick to set the contract.

While you're chuckling at the champion's error, tell the truth. Would you have found this defense?

"When a woman screams at a child," I said, "she is not really screaming at him, you know. She is screaming at things that often have nothing to do with children—at something or someone else that has frightened her."

The girl laughed. "If my mother's frightened, that's her business," she said. "Frankly, my mother and her business just bore me."

This is a real and disturbing conversation I recently had with a young girl not yet 16 years old. I am commenting on it, not because I can advise on such deeply entrenched problems as those that exist between her and her mother, but because her deep contempt for the parent who "screams" at her contains a warning to us all.

She is not the only child who bitterly resents being made the butt of uncontrolled bursts of anger. Not long ago, a group of delinquent children chose "a quiet voice" as the fourth most desirable trait in parents. They thought it so important that they gave it precedence over "affection."

Instead of berating Johnny for angrily resisting a violent expression of our annoyance with him, we should be most grateful to him. His resistance to our lack of control is his resistance against the temptation to feel contempt for us. His refusal to accept our exaggerated anger is his way of informing us that he wants to respect what we have to say and that if we insist on incoherence and excitement, he won't be able to manage it.

If we've got the idea that we scream at Johnny because we are disturbed by his defiance, we ought to get rid of it fast. We scream at him, not because of what he's done, but because his resistance to us excites a feeling of discouragement and helplessness that already exists,

WINNING OUR SKIRMISH WITH SELF-CONTEMPT

If we have recently been reacting to Johnny's defiance with a loud voice and that choked feeling in the throat, inventory time has come.

Sure as we're alive, we'll find we have been wresting with an impression that we are not appreciated the way we deserve to be. The louder our voice, the more hurtful has been our encounter with slight, criticism or humiliation.

Johnny's defiance isn't our problem at all. Our problem is winning our little skirmish with self-contempt. When we win it, we will be able to deal with Johnny.

"Self-contempt and bad conduct stand in the most frightful mutual relation," writes Thomas Mann, the world-famous novelist. "They feed on each other; they play into each other's hand . . . ."

Most of us—and we shouldn't forget it either—cannot afford to accept even the most casual slights and humiliations without dealing with them at once, consciously. We simply cannot allow anyone—friends, relatives, even strangers on a bus, to make us feel unworthy and foolish without taking immediate steps to repair the breach in our dignity.

Though we may not find it either wise or convenient to defend ourselves by words or physical action, we will judge the value of what has been said to us, use what is true in it, and dispose of the rest.

Quietly and invisibly, just as the healthy red blood corpuscles rush to reject infection in a physical wound, we will apply antiseptic to the infection contained in criticism, disapproval and aggression.

That is how we gradually build up immunity to infection of our emotional health.

Screaming at children is evidence that we have not been giving proper antiseptic care to the wounds dealt us by others.

The bidding is a little peculiar in today's hand, but it's very hard to criticize it. All four players at the table have won several national championships, and if you'd like to tell them what palukas they are, you can find them at this year's nationals in Detroit during the first week of December.

As for myself, I would hardly call any of the players a paluka, but I could observe that North and South wobbled a bit as they reached the contract of three diamonds. What's more, West managed to foozle the defense.

West opened the ace of spades, about as good a choice as any, considering the nature of his hand. He continued the suit, and South won with the king of spades.

Declarer led a club, West played low, and dummy won with the king. Declarer next laid down dummy's ace of diamonds and led another diamond from dummy, finessing the ten from his hand. West won with the king of diamonds and had to find the right continuation.

It certainly does no good to lead a spade. South wins and leads his last club. If West wins, he must then lead hearts—and therefore might just as well lead the suit earlier. If West fails to take his ace of clubs, dummy wins, South ruffs a club, gets to dummy with the ace of hearts, and ruffs another club.

West saw all this very clearly without looking at the entire hand. The only chance to set the hand was to attack the hearts.

So West led a small heart, which rode around to South's queen. Now South could afford to lay down the queen of diamonds and lead his remaining club. Nothing could stop him from getting to dummy with the ace of hearts to discard a heart on the queen of clubs. East could ruff with his good jack of diamonds, if he liked, but the contract was safe.

West should have led the king of hearts. Dummy would have to win; and dummy would have to return a heart to South's queen for a club continuation. That would enable West to step up with the ace of clubs and cash the ten of hearts. East would eventually get a diamond trick to set the contract.

While you're chuckling at the champion's error, tell the truth. Would you have found this defense?

Eleven Varsity Gridders Play Final Game for Maroon Thursday

Five Backfield Regulars Among Those Departing

Only Three Veterans To Return for 1952

Eleven members of the 1951 Kingston High School football varsity will play their last game in a Maroon uniform in the climactic Thanksgiving Day battle against undefeated, untied, once-scored-on Newburgh Free Academy at municipal stadium.

These young men who have sweated through an indifferent season don't have to be reminded of the significance of an upset victory over the Goldback horde that has been trampling opposition by margins ranging from three to five touchdowns.

The eleven who will step out on the gridiron for the last time includes six players from the first string line—Bruce Hinkley, Al Kurdt, Chris Rienzo, John Barmann, Harry Craft and Charlie Tiano. The backfield losses are Al Carpino, Don Murphy, Frank Fiore, Big Jim Ferraro, the "arm" of the Maroon aerial attack, and Don Jones.

Massa Stays

Gene Massa, perhaps the outstanding freshman halfback in KHS football history, will be around for three more years. Pat Manfro, who has been used sparingly this season, will be back in 1952, along with Bob Engle, a tackle. Around these three will be built the Maroon hopes for the future.

Sending the Maroons through their final paces, Coach Bill Burke has maintained characteristic poise and calm.

"We're capable of playing the kind of ball that will give Newburgh plenty of trouble," he said yesterday. "We have more information on Newburgh than ever before and if we play the kind of game we are capable of, I think we'll give a good account of ourselves."

"Like any other club, Newburgh has some weak spots," the Maroon mentor continued, "and we will try to exploit them. Our team is physically sound and the boys will be 'up' for this one."

Want Perfect Season

Although Newburgh has already assured itself of nothing worse than a tie for first place in the DUSO conference, it needs Thursday's game to complete the greatest season in its history. A loss to thrice-beaten Kingston would be a galling calamity for the proud monarchs of the DUSO firmament.

The task confronting Coach Burke's gridders is not being minimized. It's a big one. The Goldbacks, with a staunch, unyielding line; a flashy runner in Don Jackson and adequate passing from Richie Spreer are the best schoolboy team since Kingston's 1948 juggernaut which rolled over Newburgh by scores of 32-0 and 26-7. That was in the days of the double round robin.

Newburgh holds a commanding edge over Kingston in the long series that started in 1922, when Kingston won the opener 9-7 and the Goldbacks retaliated with a 20-0 victory the second time they met that season. NFA then proceeded to win six straight before the Maroons gained a 6-0 tie in 1930.

The Burke Record

Since Bill Burke was lured from the Highland High campus to Burke Hill on Broadway, the Maroon fortunes against the traditional foe from the Hill City have been sweet and rewarding. In 10 outings against NFA, Burke's squads have won eight times, lost once and tied once.

That NFA will shut the gates of mercy if it is able to disorganize Kingston in the early moments of the game goes without saying.

But in the Kingston camp, the young men who have flashed hot and cold throughout the season, do not seem particularly terrified by the prospect of meeting the unbeaten Goldbacks.

"I think we are due for one big game with everybody clicking," one of the backfield aces said recently. "If we can play that kind of a game, we can beat those guys."

So, the die is cast and municipal stadium, between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. on Thursday, should be the scene of the greatest excitement in recent years.

Tennessee Reclaims Lead in Grid Poll

Michigan State Drops to Second

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Tennessee reclaimed No. 1 position in the Associated Press football poll today, pushing Michigan State back into the runnerup spot.

The Sugar Bowl-bound Volunteers, who meet Kentucky Saturday in one of the top games of the day, received 60 of the 166 first-place votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters across the nation.

The Vols won their eighth straight game last week-end, smashing Mississippi, 46-21. Michigan State's Spartans, meanwhile, had a tight squeeze with battered Indiana before prevailing, 30-26.

Tennessee and Michigan State have staged a nip-and-tuck battle for national honors from the very start of the campaign.

The Spartans led the first two weeks, California barged in for a single week on top and then Tennessee took over for a three-week reign. Michigan State shot to the front a week ago after a rousing 35-0 victory over Notre Dame.

The Spartans lost some lustre against Indiana and drew 38 first-place votes compared with 55 in the previous poll. They get another chance to impress the experts against Colorado Saturday.

There was no change in the personnel of the top ten, but the order of standings underwent a slight shakeup. Illinois, held to a scoreless tie by Ohio State, was the only member of the elite not to win its game.

Illini Sixth

The Fighting Illini tumbled from third to sixth place while Stanford and Maryland, impressive winners over formidable rivals, pushed to the front of contention.

Stanford leaped to third place on the strength of its 35-14 triumph over Oregon State. Maryland, already named as Tennessee's opponent in the Sugar Bowl, smothered North Carolina State 53-0, and won fourth place.

Princeton, working on football's longest current winning streak of 21 games, also moved up a notch, from sixth to fifth. Georgia Tech finished seventh and Wisconsin, Kentucky and Baylor held firm to their positions of 8-9-10.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

For eight exciting minutes Sunday, the Polo Grounds teemed with more than 52,000 excited professional football spectators who confidently expected the Cleveland Browns and the New York Giants to stage an all-time pro classic.

Alas, it was not to be.

During the last 52 minutes of a sometimes drab and weary battle of behemoths between two unyielding lines, the biggest stir was created when the public address man made an announcement that carried terrible implications.

"Attention, Gus Olen," boomed the solemn voice. "Your mother-in-law is waiting in front of the press gate. She says you have her ticket. . . ."

The stadium rocked with laughter and for a few fleeting seconds the football game was completely forgotten.

"Heaven help Gus, if he sold that ducat," said one of the pressbox denizens.

Bill Van Aken, the local golf wizard who was watching his second pro football game, thought it was quite terrific. Moving slowly among the mass of humanity jammed around the exit gates, somebody spotted Mr. and Mrs. Gus Brinnier of Kingston.

Being a Yankee rooter at heart, Gus was obviously satisfied with the results and was wearing a smile that wide.

Mel Allen, who addressed the Little League dinner here Tuesday night, was bundled up in a half dozen sweaters and huge overcoat about the middle of the baseball pressbox.

"That cold still bothering you?" the man inquired.

Mel smiled heartily and admitted:

"You folks don't know how close I came to cancelling out Tuesday night. It was quite an effort to get up there but you folks put on a real, swell show. I was glad to be there."

Allen flatly predicted that the Browns would win, "maybe by a big score." His prediction looked good in the first eight minutes and then you know what. Eventually, the famed sportscaster found the combination of a dreary game and cold weather too much and he departed well before the end of the contest.

George Palmateer and John White, the Poughkeepsie outboard expert, a steady twosome at the pro games, were of the opinion that the Giants were "slightly stinko."

Do you remember Father John Brown, the priest with the beautiful tenor voice at St. Joseph's a few years ago? He was soaking up the pre-game excitement with a group of friends.

Father Brown was saddened to hear about the death of Carl Husta and recalled several happy outings with the late basketball star on the golf course.

"Say hello to Dick McCarthy," he said.

If you like professional football, the game had its moments of frenzy. Lou Groza's 34-yard field goal was as routine as a shave and haircut. But Dub Jones' spectacular 64-yard sprint through the whole Giant team for a TD was something else. It developed out of a short pass from Otto Graham. Jones zig-zagged through the Giant team, eluded at least four tacklers and cat-walked the last 20-yards unmolested. Horace Gillom, the Browns' great Negro punter who makes a production of every punt, got off a booming 70-yarder. Cleveland's two stalwart defensive linemen, end Len Ford and tackle Bill Willis were tremendous.

If Paul Brown wins the National Football League crown this time, it will be his sixth crown in six years in the pro field. He will have run out of gridiron worlds to conquer unless he wants to tackle those Russian teams that are supposed to be playing rougher football than the American version.

"Bo" Gill, the eminent gridiron strategist, must have been lurking somewhere in the crowd. At least for the day he disdained the role of assistant water boy he essayed for the Los Angeles Rams in the Fresh Air Fund game in August.

He was probably too busy worrying about that upset Kingston High is going to pull at the expense of his vaunted Goldbacks on Turkey Day at the municipal stadium.

YMCA Trophy To Chet Dolson

Chet Dolson was presented with a "true sportsmanship" trophy by members of the YMCA business and professional men's gym class, last night at the annual banquet held at the Y.

Dolson was the unanimous choice of a three-man committee appointed at the last annual banquet to designate such a selection.

Lou Schafer, Y physical director, made the presentation after delivering a short talk on sportsmanship. Dolson made a brief acceptance speech.

A former basketball star, Dolson has been a continuous member of the local Y since boyhood. After quitting basketball, he established a reputation as a volleyball player and is now rated a standout paddle ball player.

Following a few remarks about the volleyball and paddleball schedules ahead, the group adjourned to the paddleball courts for informal games.

No Bowling

The Commercial League will not bowl on Thursday night because of the holiday.

Cambridge, Mass.—William J. Bingham resigned as chairman of Harvard's newly organized faculty committee on athletics.

Philadelphia — Princeton's Dick Kazmaier was selected as football player of the year by the Maxwell Memorial Club.

Dallas—Kentucky was named to play the winner of the Southwest Conference title in the Cotton Bowl.

New York—Dick Shea of Army won the IC4A cross country championship for third straight year. Penn State beat Army by one point for team title.

Cincinnati—Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star pitcher of New York Yankees, and 16 other minor league players were drafted by 11 major league teams at a cost of $159,000.

Bevens, Schmees Top Draft Picks

Cincinnati, Nov. 20 (AP) — A brisk trading winter was predicted today as a result of yesterday's "lean pickin's" in the annual major league draft that brought promotion to only 17 minor league players, the lowest number in years.

E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, effervescent vice president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who has spent practically every waking hour of the two days that he's been here talking over possible deals with rival club representatives, didn't bother to conceal his pleasure and relief over the termination of the draft.

"Maybe now we can settle down and do some business among ourselves," he sighed.

Only 11 of the 16 big league clubs participated in the draft. The busiest bargain hunters were the Reds and Cubs who selected three players each. The biggest name of the lot was Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star righthander of the Yankees. Bevens, shunted to the minors in 1948 because of a "dead" arm, gave evidence of complete recovery with a 20-12 record at Salem (Ore.) in the Class B Western International League. He was picked by the Reds.

The selection of No. 1 draft choice George Schmees, hard-hitting Brooklyn owned outfielder by the Browns from Montreal, caused mild annoyance in some quarters. It was charged by one club owner, off the record, that the Dodgers purposely had stocked their Montreal farm with their best prospects, knowing full well that only one could be selected. Under the rules, Bavasi explained, such a maneuver is permissable as long as the club roster is under the player limit.

In sacrificing Schmees for the $10,000 waiver price, the Dodgers were able to retain possession of such promising minor league hot shots as pitchers Bob Alexander, Tom Lasorda, Mal Mallette, Dan Bankhead, Jim Hughes, outfielder Walter Moryn, third baseman Bob Hoak and catcher Charley Thompson.

There was no change in the personnel of the top ten, but the order of standings underwent a slight shakeup. Illinois, held to a scoreless tie by Ohio State, was the only member of the elite not to win its game.

Illini Sixth

The Fighting Illini tumbled from third to sixth place while Stanford and Maryland, impressive winners over formidable rivals, pushed to the front of contention.

Stanford leaped to third place on the strength of its 35-14 triumph over Oregon State. Maryland, already named as Tennessee's opponent in the Sugar Bowl, smothered North Carolina State 53-0, and won fourth place.

Princeton, working on football's longest current winning streak of 21 games, also moved up a notch, from sixth to fifth. Georgia Tech finished seventh and Wisconsin, Kentucky and Baylor held firm to their positions of 8-9-10.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Freeman Sports Editor

For eight exciting minutes Sunday, the Polo Grounds teemed with more than 52,000 excited professional football spectators who confidently expected the Cleveland Browns and the New York Giants to stage an all-time pro classic.

Alas, it was not to be.

During the last 52 minutes of a sometimes drab and weary battle of behemoths between two unyielding lines, the biggest stir was created when the public address man made an announcement that carried terrible implications.

"Attention, Gus Olen," boomed the solemn voice. "Your mother-in-law is waiting in front of the press gate. She says you have her ticket. . . ."

The stadium rocked with laughter and for a few fleeting seconds the football game was completely forgotten.

"Heaven help Gus, if he sold that ducat," said one of the pressbox denizens.

Bill Van Aken, the local golf wizard who was watching his second pro football game, thought it was quite terrific. Moving slowly among the mass of humanity jammed around the exit gates, somebody spotted Mr. and Mrs. Gus Brinnier of Kingston.

Being a Yankee rooter at heart, Gus was obviously satisfied with the results and was wearing a smile that wide.

Mel Allen, who addressed the Little League dinner here Tuesday night, was bundled up in a half dozen sweaters and huge overcoat about the middle of the baseball pressbox.

"That cold still bothering you?" the man inquired.

Mel smiled heartily and admitted:

"You folks don't know how close I came to cancelling out Tuesday night. It was quite an effort to get up there but you folks put on a real, swell show. I was glad to be there."

Allen flatly predicted that the Browns would win, "maybe by a big score." His prediction looked good in the first eight minutes and then you know what. Eventually, the famed sportscaster found the combination of a dreary game and cold weather too much and he departed well before the end of the contest.

George Palmateer and John White, the Poughkeepsie outboard expert, a steady twosome at the pro games, were of the opinion that the Giants were "slightly stinko."

Do you remember Father John Brown, the priest with the beautiful tenor voice at St. Joseph's a few years ago? He was soaking up the pre-game excitement with a group of friends.

Father Brown was saddened to hear about the death of Carl Husta and recalled several happy outings with the late basketball star on the golf course.

"Say hello to Dick McCarthy," he said.

If you like professional football, the game had its moments of frenzy. Lou Groza's 34-yard field goal was as routine as a shave and haircut. But Dub Jones' spectacular 64-yard sprint through the whole Giant team for a TD was something else. It developed out of a short pass from Otto Graham. Jones zig-zagged through the Giant team, eluded at least four tacklers and cat-walked the last 20-yards unmolested. Horace Gillom, the Browns' great Negro punter who makes a production of every punt, got off a booming 70-yarder. Cleveland's two stalwart defensive linemen, end Len Ford and tackle Bill Willis were tremendous.

If Paul Brown wins the National Football League crown this time, it will be his sixth crown in six years in the pro field. He will have run out of gridiron worlds to conquer unless he wants to tackle those Russian teams that are supposed to be playing rougher football than the American version.

"Bo" Gill, the eminent gridiron strategist, must have been lurking somewhere in the crowd. At least for the day he disdained the role of assistant water boy he essayed for the Los Angeles Rams in the Fresh Air Fund game in August.

He was probably too busy worrying about that upset Kingston High is going to pull at the expense of his vaunted Goldbacks on Turkey Day at the municipal stadium.

YMCA Trophy To Chet Dolson

Chet Dolson was presented with a "true sportsmanship" trophy by members of the YMCA business and professional men's gym class, last night at the annual banquet held at the Y.

Dolson was the unanimous choice of a three-man committee appointed at the last annual banquet to designate such a selection.

Lou Schafer, Y physical director, made the presentation after delivering a short talk on sportsmanship. Dolson made a brief acceptance speech.

A former basketball star, Dolson has been a continuous member of the local Y since boyhood. After quitting basketball, he established a reputation as a volleyball player and is now rated a standout paddle ball player.

Following a few remarks about the volleyball and paddleball schedules ahead, the group adjourned to the paddleball courts for informal games.

No Bowling

The Commercial League will not bowl on Thursday night because of the holiday.

Sports of the Day

(IN BRIEF)

(By The Associated Press)

Cambridge, Mass.—William J. Bingham resigned as chairman of Harvard's newly organized faculty committee on athletics.

Philadelphia — Princeton's Dick Kazmaier was selected as football player of the year by the Maxwell Memorial Club.

Dallas—Kentucky was named to play the winner of the Southwest Conference title in the Cotton Bowl.

New York—Dick Shea of Army won the IC4A cross country championship for third straight year. Penn State beat Army by one point for team title.

Cincinnati—Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star pitcher of New York Yankees, and 16 other minor league players were drafted by 11 major league teams at a cost of $159,000.

Bevens, Schmees Top Draft Picks

Cincinnati, Nov. 20 (AP) — A brisk trading winter was predicted today as a result of yesterday's "lean pickin's" in the annual major league draft that brought promotion to only 17 minor league players, the lowest number in years.

E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, effervescent vice president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who has spent practically every waking hour of the two days that he's been here talking over possible deals with rival club representatives, didn't bother to conceal his pleasure and relief over the termination of the draft.

"Maybe now we can settle down and do some business among ourselves," he sighed.

Only 11 of the 16 big league clubs participated in the draft. The busiest bargain hunters were the Reds and Cubs who selected three players each. The biggest name of the lot was Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star righthander of the Yankees. Bevens, shunted to the minors in 1948 because of a "dead" arm, gave evidence of complete recovery with a 20-12 record at Salem (Ore.) in the Class B Western International League. He was picked by the Reds.

The selection of No. 1 draft choice George Schmees, hard-hitting Brooklyn owned outfielder by the Browns from Montreal, caused mild annoyance in some quarters. It was charged by one club owner, off the record, that the Dodgers purposely had stocked their Montreal farm with their best prospects, knowing full well that only one could be selected. Under the rules, Bavasi explained, such a maneuver is permissable as long as the club roster is under the player limit.

In sacrificing Schmees for the $10,000 waiver price, the Dodgers were able to retain possession of such promising minor league hot shots as pitchers Bob Alexander, Tom Lasorda, Mal Mallette, Dan Bankhead, Jim Hughes, outfielder Walter Moryn, third baseman Bob Hoak and catcher Charley Thompson.

Closed Entrance

A bullet was found in an ivory billiard ball which had no hole in its surface. The bullet had been shot into the tusk of an elephant, and the ivory had closed over the hole, leaving no trace of the bullet's entrance.

Worst Famine

One of history's worst famines occurred in 1770, in Bengal, India, when a third of the population of 10,000,000 perished, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Charlotte Lapine Blasts 605 in Major; John J. Provenzano's 618 Tops Males

Charlotte Lapine, one of the city's top keglerettes since the post-war period, asserted herself with a 605 blast in last night's Women's Major League at the Bowlodrome.

John J. Provenzano, one of the many bowling Provenzanos, turned in the best male triple with 188-198-232—618 in the Tavern Association circuit.

Mitzie Arlensky led the Good Neighbor circuit with 178-221-194—593. Ray Roux's 165-212-189—566 was high in the Independent wheel, while Tom Sickler toppled 209-147-179—535 in the Electrol Night Shift. Joe Maurer shot 180-236-175—590 for high scoring honors in the City Minor and Fred Schryver toppled 225-212-166—603 in the Central Rec Mixed League. Kay Roosa scored a neat 182-187-147—516 to top the distaff department.

Frederick Rolls 524

Reta Frederick was runnerup to Charlotte Lapine in the female major with 524. Beverly Port clouted 511; Dot Rawding 510 and "Scootch" Schoonmaker kept her average above the "170" mark with 507, Sportsmen's Park holds high team single and triple with 739 and 2073, while Rose Schatzel's 254 single, 663 triple and 197 average are tops in the individual department.

Jimmy Secreto rapped 205-201—589 in the Tavern loop, with Warren Sickler hitting 209—584; Ed Cunningham 226—564; Ferrell McElrath 229—561; Tommy Orr 205—559; Eltinge S. Auchmoody 234—546; Claude Markle 536; Joe Heidcamp, Jr. 201—529.

Also, R. Enright 524; W. Harder 517; Bob Shelightner and Don Riehl 515; P. Bielinski 201—511; Milt Tompkins 505; Bill Johnson 504 and Pres Knight 206—503.

G. Goldfarb 573

George Goldfarb's 573 was second best in the Good Neighbor, with Rube Leventhal hitting 530; Moe Lazarowitz 526; and Irving Wilpan 202-521. Joe Singer 202-518 and Herman Arlensky 510 rounded out the "500" shooters.

Charlie Raible bagged the second "500" in the Electrol with 203-531. Bill Nuylassy rolled 496; Jim Moss 490; C. Tobias 475; George Barringer 474; F. Zimmerman 473 and Mike Milano 471.

Other good pinfall in the Central Rec Mixer included Joe "Bush" Sangi's 211-562; Ken Radel 253 (high solo in Kingston for the night)-561; Jack Houghtaling 559; John Sangi 539; Don Peterson 519; V. LaRocca 512; Charlie Gildersleeve 498 and J. Lester 484. Jennie Spada's 469 was runnerup among the women. Edna Peterson had 448; Marie Grimaldi 420; V. Smith 419.

Nellie Alverson and Alice Zimmer emerged as divisional leaders in the BYA. Alverson posted 148-157-179-484 while Zimmer was shooting 129-135-148-412. Fritzi Davis accounted for 466; Nell Glennon 444 and Luella Port 409.

Schatzel Rolls 590

Schatzel cracked a 225 middle solo. Otto Schaller Jr. led off with 233 and wound up with 588. Ken Powell, the KBA treasurer, knocked off 215-576; Ed Dasher 214-564; Jerry Secreto 561; Tom Amato 200-560; Bill Murray 214-559; Tom Parker 545; Roy Geisler 247 (high single)-537; Tony Amato 206-534.

Also, Joe Mahar 202-533; Harry Peterson 529; Hank Dart 206-528; H. Baltz 525; Joe Fautz 523; Jim Chick 523; Hank Grube 522; Ralph Dumenigo 517; Joe Misasi 517; Joe Watzka 200-516; Jim Pruden 200-514; Vic Nerone 510; Pete Tiano 510.

Scottish Saver

Shea Retains IC4-A Title

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Dick Shea of Army, a 24-year-old ex-GI, won the individual title for the third straight year and Penn State barely squeaked through to a successful defense of its team crown in the IC4-A cross-country championship yesterday.

Except for the first mile of the five-mile grind over the hills and dales of Van Cortlandt Park, the race was all Shea—just as eight previous harrier runs this season have been.

He was caught in 24:55-1 at the finish, about 220 yeads ahead of Ray Osterhoudt of Syracuse. Charles Capozzoli of Georgetown was third, Lamont Smith of Penn State, fourth and Bill Irland of Syracuse, fifth.

In the team scores, though, it was a different story. Penn State had 67 points to 68 for Army, and it was a long time before the scorers decided on an official count. To make matters worse in the freezing cold, one of the runners got placed wrong, which necessitated more checking.

Syracuse finished third with 91 points and Michigan State fourth with 146. Manhattan was fifth with 161. These five teams pretty well dominated the preceedings and were the only ones to score less than 200 points, something of an oddity.

Shea was lost in the pack when the bulky field of 212 harriers got started. But going into the woods, out streaked Shea and he kept opening up more and more daylight as the race progressed.

Barksdale Finds Scoring Range

(By The Associated Press)

Now that Don Barksdale, the former AAU standout, has found the scoring range in the National Basketball Association, the Baltimore Bullets might prove troublesome as the season progresses.

The widely-heralded 6-6 center, who had been averaging a mere 4.5 points per game, caged 14 in the Bullets' 71-70 victory over the Milwaukee Hawks last night in the only game played.

Frank Kudelka of Baltimore was top scorer with 16 points. Dike Eddleman topped Milwaukee with 15.

Chez Emile Keglers Shade Woodstock

Woodstock led 1603 to 1518 at the end of two sets. Ray Houghtaling anchored the winners with 540 and Bill Johnson shot 206-519. Joe Holdridge Jr. of Woodstock was the indivdaul scoring leader with 569.

Czechs Reach U. S.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two Czech railroad workers, who made their flight for freedom on a "stolen" train, have arrived in the United States in quest of American citizenship. Jaroslav Konvalinka, 40-year-old engineer, and Karel Truksa, 35-year-old dispatcher, arrived here yesterday by plane from Frankfurt, Germany. They commandeered a train with 108 passengers last September and highballed it out of Red Czechoslovakia into western Germany. The two men and their families will make their home in Irvington, N. J., where they go on the pay roll of the Lionel Electric Train Corporation today. Lionel's president, Lawrence Cowen, greeted them at Idlewild Airport.

AWARDED SPORTSMANSHIP TROPHY

Chester Dolson, veteran member of the Y.M.C.A., right, accepts a trophy for outstanding sportsmanship in Y.M.C.A. activities during the past year. The award was made by the professional business men's gym class. Lou Schafer, physical director, extends the gladhand and congratulations to the winner. (Freeman Photo)

PIGGY-BACK—Temple's Roger White appears resigned to go along for the ride as Roger Franz of Fordham picks him up and carts him back toward the direction he was coming. White had just caught a pass and reeled off 15 yards before the Ram quarterback nailed him. Fordham won, 35-6, in a game played at Philadelphia. (NEA)

HIGH MAN—The missus, Lucille, smiled and the children applauded as the Yankees' Gil McDougald leaped for joy at his Belleville, N.J., home upon learning that he had been named the American League's Rookie-of-the-Year. The youngsters are, left to right, Ted, 1; Gil, Jr., 2, and Christine, 3. (NEA)

Kerhonkson P-TA To Dedicate New Quarters Dec. 13

Kerhonkson, Nov. 20—Tentative plans are being formulated by the P-TA for the formal dedication of the newly-constructed addition of the local Kerhonkson Union School on Thursday night, Dec. 13.

Present plans now call for the appearance of Amy Bull Crist, the well-known educator of the Rondout Valley. A dance orchestra will be provided through the courtesy of the Local AFL Musician's Union. Refreshments will be served.

Francis L. McCauley, president of the local P-TA has extended a special invitation to everyone to attend the program.

In a recent issue of the NEA Journel the State Congress of Parents and Teachers listed the following five reasons why all are needed to help in the work of the P-TA and its benefit to a community:

Help raise the standards of mental, emotional and spiritual health.

Put into practice the findings of those who have made a life work of understanding young people and their development.

Open the door of educational opportunity to all children and to all adults as well who seek knowledge.

Take an active part in doing something practical and effective about juvenile delinquency.

Add a voice to 6,167,079 other voices that demand and enforce laws protecting children and youth.

A spokesman for the local P-TA, in conjunction with the Dec. 13 program, said "through the P-TA, leaders in all fields can join together for the well being of the youth. Only as we unite our efforts locally with those throughout this country can ideas, ideals and attitudes be built."

Two Ulster Girls Are in Chicago at 4-H Club Congress

Two Ulster county girls are among the 17 who will represent New York state at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 24 to 29.

Miss Hilda Sauer of Kyserike, state girls' achievement winner, and Miss Joan Ortmann of Hurley, dress review winner, will leave from Poughkeepsie for Chicago this Friday afternoon.

Edmund R. Bower, Ulster county 4-H Club agent, has been selected as the lone county agent to accompany the state group. The entire Empire state contingent consists of 17 girls, 11 boys, one county agent, three assistant state leaders and one district agent.

This year is the 30th anniversary session of the Congress, held in Chicago each year in conjunction with the International Livestock Exposition. The 43 states and all the possessions are represented.

The local group will stay at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. Large companies, such as Marshall Field, Montgomery Ward, and Thomas E. Wilson, rival each other in providing entertainment for the group. Miss Ortmann has been invited as a guest of honor at a supper given by Simplicity, one of the nation's largest pattern firms.

Movies Aid Mate Selection

Munich, Germany (AP) — A Munich marriage agency makes talking movies of persons seeking a mate. These films are shown to applicants of the opposite sex, instead of the usual still photographs. The films are much more persuasive, the agency finds. They also help to avoid the disappointments which often result from artistically re-touched photographs. The agency plans to promote exchanges of such films with lonely heart services in America.

Charlotte Lapine Blasts 605 in Major; John J. Provenzano's 618 Tops Males

Charlotte Lapine, one of the city's top keglerettes since the post-war period, asserted herself with a 605 blast in last night's Women's Major League at the Bowlodrome.

Rolling 28 out of 30 closed frames, the former Kaye Sportwair star posted scores of 180, 226 and 199 for high series honors by a wide margin.

John J. Provenzano, one of the many bowling Provenzanos, turned in the best male triple with 188-198-232—618 in the Tavern Association circuit.

Mitzie Arlensky led the Good Neighbor circuit with 178-221-194—593. Ray Roux's 165-212-189—566 was high in the Independent wheel, while Tom Sickler toppled 209-147-179—535 in the Electrol Night Shift. Joe Maurer shot 180-236-175—590 for high scoring honors in the City Minor and Fred Schryver toppled 225-212-166—603 in the Central Rec Mixed League. Kay Roosa scored a neat 182-187-147—516 to top the distaff department.

Frederick Rolls 524

Reta Frederick was runnerup to Charlotte Lapine in the female major with 524. Beverly Port clouted 511; Dot Rawding 510 and "Scootch" Schoonmaker kept her average above the "170" mark with 507, Sportsmen's Park holds high team single and triple with 739 and 2073, while Rose Schatzel's 254 single, 663 triple and 197 average are tops in the individual department.

Jimmy Secreto rapped 205-201—589 in the Tavern loop, with Warren Sickler hitting 209—584; Ed Cunningham 226—564; Ferrell McElrath 229—561; Tommy Orr 205—559; Eltinge S. Auchmoody 234—546; Claude Markle 536; Joe Heidcamp, Jr. 201—529.

Also, R. Enright 524; W. Harder 517; Bob Shelightner and Don Riehl 515; P. Bielinski 201—511; Milt Tompkins 505; Bill Johnson 504 and Pres Knight 206—503.

G. Goldfarb 573

George Goldfarb's 573 was second best in the Good Neighbor, with Rube Leventhal hitting 530; Moe Lazarowitz 526; and Irving Wilpan 202-521. Joe Singer 202-518 and Herman Arlensky 510 rounded out the "500" shooters.

Charlie Raible bagged the second "500" in the Electrol with 203-531. Bill Nuylassy rolled 496; Jim Moss 490; C. Tobias 475; George Barringer 474; F. Zimmerman 473 and Mike Milano 471.

Other good pinfall in the Central Rec Mixer included Joe "Bush" Sangi's 211-562; Ken Radel 253 (high solo in Kingston for the night)-561; Jack Houghtaling 559; John Sangi 539; Don Peterson 519; V. LaRocca 512; Charlie Gildersleeve 498 and J. Lester 484. Jennie Spada's 469 was runnerup among the women. Edna Peterson had 448; Marie Grimaldi 420; V. Smith 419.

Nellie Alverson and Alice Zimmer emerged as divisional leaders in the BYA. Alverson posted 148-157-179-484 while Zimmer was shooting 129-135-148-412. Fritzi Davis accounted for 466; Nell Glennon 444 and Luella Port 409.

Schatzel Rolls 590

Jack "Daisy" Schatzel, the veteran first sacker in baseball, was just a pin behind Joe Maurer in the bumper crop of "500" triples in the City Minor wheel.

Schatzel cracked a 225 middle solo. Otto Schaller Jr. led off with 233 and wound up with 588. Ken Powell, the KBA treasurer, knocked off 215-576; Ed Dasher 214-564; Jerry Secreto 561; Tom Amato 200-560; Bill Murray 214-559; Tom Parker 545; Roy Geisler 247 (high single)-537; Tony Amato 206-534.

Also, Joe Mahar 202-533; Harry Peterson 529; Hank Dart 206-528; H. Baltz 525; Joe Fautz 523; Jim Chick 523; Hank Grube 522; Ralph Dumenigo 517; Joe Misasi 517; Joe Watzka 200-516; Jim Pruden 200-514; Vic Nerone 510; Pete Tiano 510.

Scottish Saver

Shea Retains IC4-A Title

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Dick Shea of Army, a 24-year-old ex-GI, won the individual title for the third straight year and Penn State barely squeaked through to a successful defense of its team crown in the IC4-A cross-country championship yesterday.

Except for the first mile of the five-mile grind over the hills and dales of Van Cortlandt Park, the race was all Shea—just as eight previous harrier runs this season have been.

He was caught in 24:55-1 at the finish, about 220 yeads ahead of Ray Osterhoudt of Syracuse. Charles Capozzoli of Georgetown was third, Lamont Smith of Penn State, fourth and Bill Irland of Syracuse, fifth.

In the team scores, though, it was a different story. Penn State had 67 points to 68 for Army, and it was a long time before the scorers decided on an official count. To make matters worse in the freezing cold, one of the runners got placed wrong, which necessitated more checking.

Syracuse finished third with 91 points and Michigan State fourth with 146. Manhattan was fifth with 161. These five teams pretty well dominated the preceedings and were the only ones to score less than 200 points, something of an oddity.

Shea was lost in the pack when the bulky field of 212 harriers got started. But going into the woods, out streaked Shea and he kept opening up more and more daylight as the race progressed.

Barksdale Finds Scoring Range

(By The Associated Press)

Now that Don Barksdale, the former AAU standout, has found the scoring range in the National Basketball Association, the Baltimore Bullets might prove troublesome as the season progresses.

The widely-heralded 6-6 center, who had been averaging a mere 4.5 points per game, caged 14 in the Bullets' 71-70 victory over the Milwaukee Hawks last night in the only game played.

Milwaukee barely missed winning the game as Kevin O'Shea's last-second shot rolled around the rim and finally off as the final buzzer sounded.

Frank Kudelka of Baltimore was top scorer with 16 points. Dike Eddleman topped Milwaukee with 15.

Chez Emile Keglers Shade Woodstock

Chez Emile keglers came up with a big 823 game in the stretch to nose out Woodstock by two pins, 2341 to 2339, in a special bowling match Sunday at the Saugerties Bowling Academy.

Woodstock led 1603 to 1518 at the end of two sets. Ray Houghtaling anchored the winners with 540 and Bill Johnson shot 206-519. Joe Holdridge Jr. of Woodstock was the indivdaul scoring leader with 569.

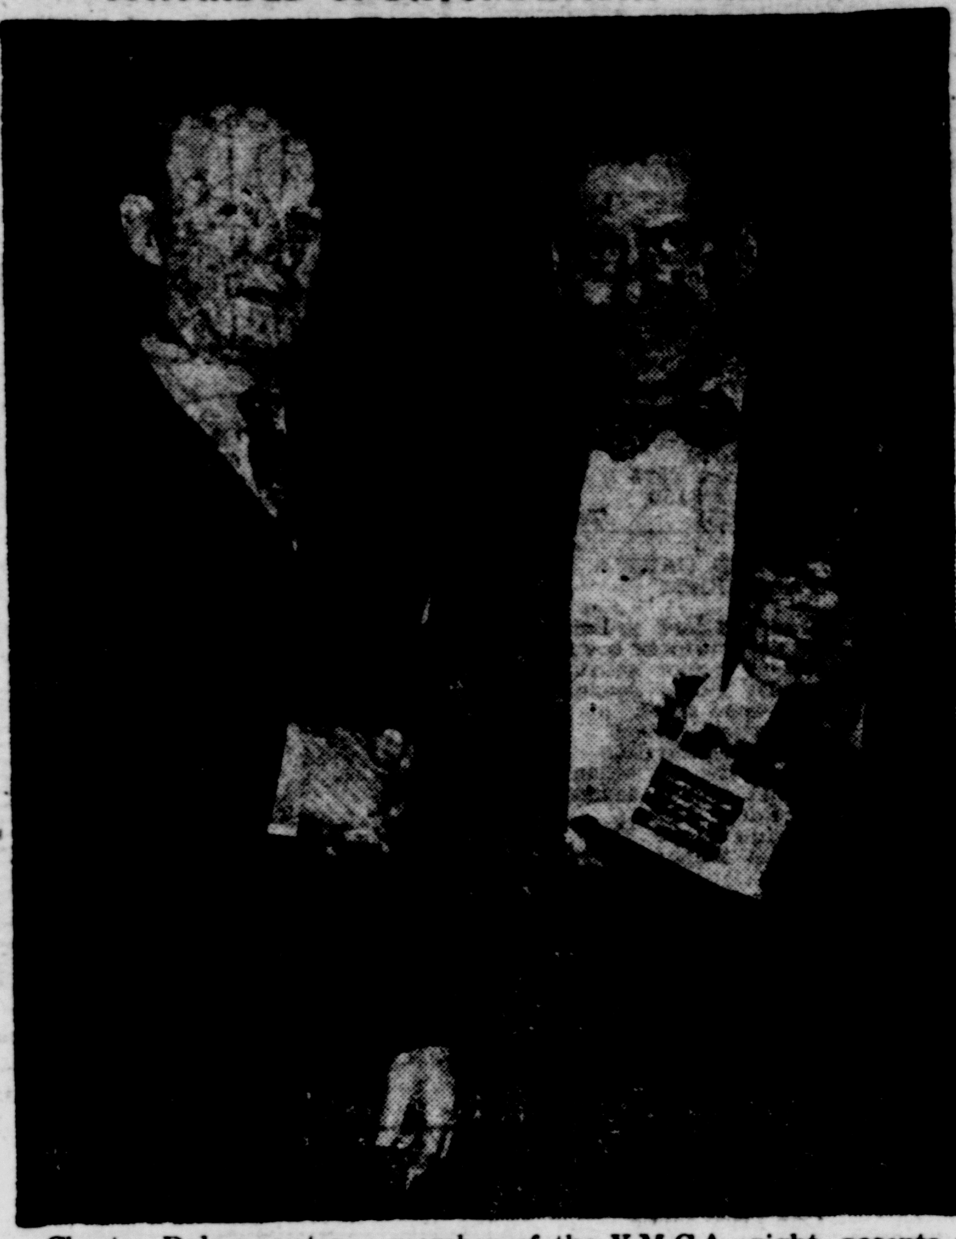
Czechs Reach U. S.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two Czech railroad workers, who made their flight for freedom on a "stolen" train, have arrived in the United States in quest of American citizenship. Jaroslav Konvalinka, 40-year-old engineer, and Karel Truksa, 35-year-old dispatcher, arrived here yesterday by plane from Frankfurt, Germany. They commandeered a train with 108 passengers last September and highballed it out of Red Czechoslovakia into western Germany. The two men and their families will make their home in Irvington, N. J., where they go on the pay roll of the Lionel Electric Train Corporation today. Lionel's president, Lawrence Cowen, greeted them at Idlewild Airport.

AWARDED SPORTSMANSHIP TROPHY



Chester Dolson, veteran member of the Y.M.C.A., right, accepts a trophy for outstanding sportsmanship in Y.M.C.A. activities during the past year. The award was made by the professional business men's gym class. Lou Schafer, physical director, extends the gladhand and congratulations to the winner. (Freeman Photo)

PIGGY-BACK—Temple's Roger White appears resigned to go along for the ride as Roger Franz of Fordham picks him up and carts him back toward the direction he was coming. White had just caught a pass and reeled off 15 yards before the Ram quarterback nailed him. Fordham won, 35-6, in a game played at Philadelphia. (NEA)

HIGH MAN—The missus, Lucille, smiled and the children applauded as the Yankees' Gil McDougald leaped for joy at his Belleville, N.J., home upon learning that he had been named the American League's Rookie-of-the-Year. The youngsters are, left to right, Ted, 1; Gil, Jr., 2, and Christine, 3. (NEA)

Kerhonkson P-TA To Dedicate New Quarters Dec. 13

Kerhonkson, Nov. 20—Tentative plans are being formulated by the P-TA for the formal dedication of the newly-constructed addition of the local Kerhonkson Union School on Thursday night, Dec. 13.

Present plans now call for the appearance of Amy Bull Crist, the well-known educator of the Rondout Valley. A dance orchestra will be provided through the courtesy of the Local AFL Musician's Union. Refreshments will be served.

Francis L. McCauley, president of the local P-TA has extended a special invitation to everyone to attend the program.

In a recent issue of the NEA Journel the State Congress of Parents and Teachers listed the following five reasons why all are needed to help in the work of the P-TA and its benefit to a community:

Help raise the standards of mental, emotional and spiritual health.

Put into practice the findings of those who have made a life work of understanding young people and their development.

Open the door of educational opportunity to all children and to all adults as well who seek knowledge.

Take an active part in doing something practical and effective about juvenile delinquency.

Add a voice to 6,167,079 other voices that demand and enforce laws protecting children and youth.

A spokesman for the local P-TA, in conjunction with the Dec. 13 program, said "through the P-TA, leaders in all fields can join together for the well being of the youth. Only as we unite our efforts locally with those throughout this country can ideas, ideals and attitudes be built."

Two Ulster Girls Are in Chicago at 4-H Club Congress

Two Ulster county girls are among the 17 who will represent New York state at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 24 to 29.

Miss Hilda Sauer of Kyserike, state girls' achievement winner, and Miss Joan Ortmann of Hurley, dress review winner, will leave from Poughkeepsie for Chicago this Friday afternoon.

Edmund R. Bower, Ulster county 4-H Club agent, has been selected as the lone county agent to accompany the state group. The entire Empire state contingent consists of 17 girls, 11 boys, one county agent, three assistant state leaders and one district agent.

This year is the 30th anniversary session of the Congress, held in Chicago each year in conjunction with the International Livestock Exposition. The 48 states and all the possessions are represented.

The local group will stay at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. Large companies, such as Marshall Field, Montgomery Ward, and Thomas E. Wilson, rival each other in providing entertainment for the group. Miss Ortmann has been invited as a guest of honor at a supper given by Simplicity, one of the nation's largest pattern firms.

Movies Aid Mate Selection

Munich, Germany (AP) — A Munich marriage agency makes talking movies of persons seeking a mate. These films are shown to applicants of the opposite sex, instead of the usual still photographs. The films are much more persuasive, the agency finds. They also help to avoid the disappointments which often result from artistically re-touched photographs. The agency plans to promote exchanges of such films with lonely heart services in America.

Life With Killer

Mrs. Lillian Reese, 17, told St. Louis, Mo., police about life with her 19-year-old ex-convict husband, Samuel. Police say he confessed two murders. Mrs. Reese said that after the first killing, he cried and raved as he flourished a gun in front of a mirror. (NEA Telephoto).

Institute Planned In County Schools For Mental Health

School administrators and principals in Ulster county will be offered an intensive institute in mental health next April.

The Ulster County Mental Health Committee at a meeting at 74 John street Monday night approved tentative plans for the institute, to be followed by workshops for teachers. The plans are subject to acceptance and approval by the school officials.

The institute will probably consist of two or two and a half days of intensive study of mental health problems as they apply to school children. Psychiatrists and other qualified personnel will be brought here for the lectures, according to the plans as worked out by the committee's executive group in consultation with Dr. Luther E. Woodward, coordinator of community mental health services of the State Department of Mental Hygiene, and Dr. Ruth Andrus, director of the State Education Department's Bureau of Child Development and Parent Education.

The Mental Health Committee, an adjunct of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, also discussed possible future offering of a similar institute for clergymen.

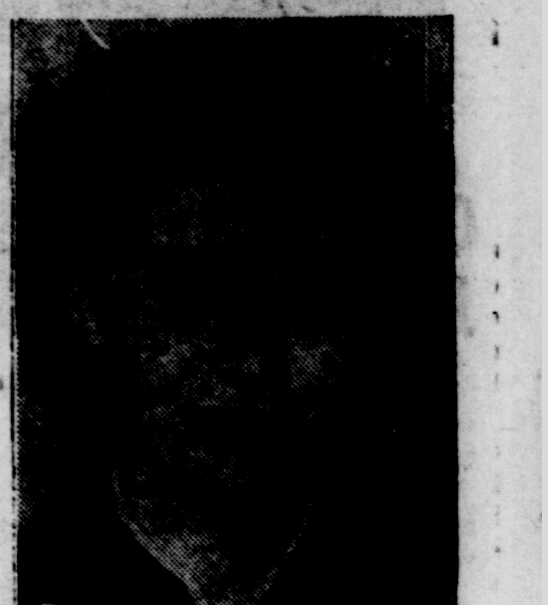
Life With Killer



Mrs. Lillian Reese, 17, told St. Louis, Mo., police about life with her 19-year-old ex-convict husband, Samuel. Police say he confessed two murders. Mrs. Reese said that after the first killing, he cried and raved as he flourished a gun in front of a mirror. (NEA Telephoto).

Institute Planned In County Schools For Mental Health

School administrators and principals in Ulster county will be offered an intensive institute in mental health next April.

The Ulster County Mental Health Committee at a meeting at 74 John street Monday night approved tentative plans for the institute, to be followed by workshops for teachers. The plans are subject to acceptance and approval by the school officials.

The institute will probably consist of two or two and a half days of intensive study of mental health problems as they apply to school children. Psychiatrists and other qualified personnel will be brought here for the lectures, according to the plans as worked out by the committee's executive group in consultation with Dr. Luther E. Woodward, coordinator of community mental health services of the State Department of Mental Hygiene, and Dr. Ruth Andrus, director of the State Education Department's Bureau of Child Development and Parent Education.

The Mental Health Committee, an adjunct of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, also discussed possible future offering of a similar institute for clergymen.

Strike Status Continues Same

There were no new developments reported today in the two-month-old strike of cashiers, ushers, doormen, candy attendants and porters against two local Walter Reade theatres.

The employes, members of Local B-42, IATSE, and AFL affiliate, began picketing Reade's Kingston and Broadway theatres on Sept. 22. Projectionists at the two theatres, members of Local 637 of the same union, have refused to cross the picket lines. according to Mrs. Phoebe Van-Wagenen, Local B-42 president.

Regular shows at both theatres have continued as scheduled during the strike.

The strike was called by the local, which claims a membership of about 25, over the alleged failure of the theatre management to recognize the local as bargaining agent for the employes. Testimony at a State Labor Board hearing showed that the union contended one local should represent all the employes except management and projectionists, which the management—pointing to the complex corporate setup—contended that employes in certain classifications should be represented by separate units. Candy attendants were in the employ of a different corporation than cashiers, for instance, within the same theatre, management pointed out.

A feature of the strike has been the public support given Local B-42 by local units of AFL, CIO and independent unions which have requested their members to observe the picket lines.

Santa Buys First TB Seals in City

Santa Claus paid an advance visit to Ulster county on Saturday. He went straight to the shopping district in Kingston and bought the first two sheets of Christmas Seals from little Sara Jane Palmer, 4-year-old daughter of William Palmer, farm bureau agent, and Mrs. Palmer.

Because "the jolliest teacher," Sy Fersh, was unable to make the pageant, John T. Connolly, health education assistant to Katherine M. Murphy, R.N., executive secretary of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, substituted for Fersh.

Santa Claus came by way of downtown and midtown, Kingston, to the head of Wall street on the big aerial truck of the Kingston Fire Department, headed by an escort of two motorcycle policemen.

"My mission today," Santa Claus said, "concerns the happiness not just of the children of Ulster county but of all the people. It concerns the health of all of you and is very dear to my heart."

After buying the Christmas Seals, Santa said he was on his way to the Ulster County TB Hospital to have a chest X-ray because he wanted to be sure that he did not have tuberculosis.

McCarthy Expects To Close Deal

Rome, Nov. 20 (AP)—Texas oil millionaire Glenn McCarthy left today for Paris, where he expects to close a deal for oil rights to more than six million acres in the Red Sea area of Egypt.

McCarthy confirmed he plans to buy a controlling 51 per cent interest in the National Petroleum Oil Co. of Egypt. The company has oil concessions covering 121 lots of 60 square miles each in Egypt.

Before the deal could become effective, the Egyptian Parliament would have to amend an existing law requiring that Egyptians hold a majority interest in any company exploiting the nation's oil reserve.

A secret meeting of the Egyptian Parliament will be held shortly to consider changing the law, it was learned.

McCarthy said he could not give any details on his meeting later today in Paris with officials of the Egyptian company. Neither would he reveal the amount involved in the deal.

"A lot of money," he said. "How much, I cannot say right now."

Four Are in Custody

Committee Meets In Italo Settting

Rome, Nov. 20 (AP)—The military committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) met today in Rome's Foro Italico, on the banks of the ancient Tiber, to study further plans for defending the west.

As the aggregation of top military leaders of the western allies gathered, the Communist press unleashed an attack against the meeting. Many new signs in chalk on the streets blossomed out during the night, saying "No to war,"

Looming large over the discussion at the NATO meeting was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's scaled-down plans to push first for a combat-ready international force by the end of next year rather than the larger army originally envisioned for 1954.

Will Pore Over Reports

The committee, made up of the chiefs of staff of 11 NATO nations and a civilian representative of Iceland, which has no army, will pore over 13 reports on the tentative plans for western defense. Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff, was among those meeting.

The group will round up their findings on Friday for presentation to the NATO Council, which meets here Saturday.

There was keen speculation among diplomats here that when Gen. Eisenhower presents his progress report to the council on Monday, he may hint how much longer he expects to remain the supreme commander—and thus give a possible clue as to his presidential aspirations.

The general belief here was that few major decisions would emerge from the council sessions. A more important meeting is expected in late January, when the council is expected to decide just what military forces the NATO members can assemble.

Iodine Used Successfully

New Britain, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Radio-active iodine made with material from the atomic pile at Oak Ridge, Tenn., has been used there successfully in treating thyroid gland disorders and certain heart and blood diseases. This was reported today by New Britain General Hospital officials in outlining the progress of a three-year study. Since late in 1948 a total of 48 thyroid and cardiac patients have received radio-active isotope treatments at the hospital with iodine material from Oak Ridge. The results have been excellent in the majority of cases, the hospital reported.

Sears to Handle Cars

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP)—A Kaiser-Frazer built automobile soon will go on sale in Sears Roebuck stores. Initially the new car, to be called the "Allstate," will be sold in 17 cities in the south and southwest, probably before Christmas. Announcement of the project was made jointly last night by Sears and Kaiser-Frazer. Specifications of the new car have not been disclosed, but it is reported to be similar in many details to the K-F Henry J model, although with distinguishing characteristics.

Kennan Is Considered

Key West, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP)—President Truman said today George F. Kennan is being considered for the post of ambassador to Russia. The president said he had discussed the appointment with Secretary Acheson, and that Kennan would "make a good ambassador."

WAC Victim

WAC Pfc. Carol Ann Kierce, 20, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, was the victim of a beating at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., Oct. 4, after testifying in a court martial of a WAC sergeant. The Army has announced that six WAC sergeants were convicted of assault and battery on Carol and sentenced to prison terms ranging from one to two-and-a-half years.

Guardsmen Break Up Demonstration

156th Non-Coms

pole set up to show how Guardsmen are trained as linemen.

There was a demonstration of how well the men are versed in handling all types of arms, and a detail of experts mounted guns and striped them while blindfolded.

Master Sgt. Jack G. Reynolds of the Service Battery had his men dismantle and then re-assemble a motor fleet with amazing speed, showing that the National Guard is well trained to take care of vehicle maintenance.

Judo and Boxing

A Battery put on a demonstration of calisthenics directed by Sgt. DeForest E. Shaver, and Sgt. John C. Roosa and Cpl. Arthur V. Wallot flipped one another all over a large mat in judo tactics.

A three-round boxing exhibition had the visitors on the edge of their seats as two privates, Walter J. Hillje and Walter J. Ellsworth cuffed each other with training gloves. There was no holding back, it was all action.

Sgt. William K. Windram and 20 men put on a special precision drill that reminded observers of West Point.

Reds Test Guardsmen

Sgt. Anthony J. Bellio in civvies rushed to the center of the drill shed, jumped on a soap box and screamed "Comrades, the capitalists must go!"

In a flash 15 "fellow travelers" with a red flag gathered around him for an un-American rally, shot fireworks and conducted themselves like demonstrators in areas where communism prevails.

But, the situation was well taken care of by troops directed by Sgt. Robert J. Gorsline, who rounded them up at gun point.

Giles Handles Review

Then came the review with Master Sgt. Burton F. Giles acting as battalion commander.

Non-commissioned officers on his staff were Sgts. Rudolph Raymond, Richard M. Henebery, Michael W. Cussick, Louis H. Detmer and Ronald J. Deyo.

Mayor Inspects Troops

There was inspection of troops by Mayor Newkirk, Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, President Feuerstein of the Lions Club, Frederick Snyder, lecturer and commentator; John J. Schwenk, former lieutenant of the New York State Guard, and Bob Browning, radio commentator, and World War 1 officer.

Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps led the Guardsmen as they passed in review, closing the military side of the program which was followed by the dance for the public.

Two Are Accused Of 'Jacking' Deer

The Ulster county grand jury will weigh charges that two county men tried to jacklight deer.

Accused by Deputy Sheriff Earl Conro and Game Protector Henry Bernstein of attempting to take wild deer with the aid of a light, Maynard Keefe of Shady and Harold J. Quick of Shady and Port Ewen were ordered to post $100 bail each while awaiting grand jury action after a hearing Monday night before Justice of the Peace Raymond Smith of Phoenicia.

This year is the first that jacklighting has been an indictable misdemeanor.

Deputy Conro said the men were arrested on the Mount Pleasant-Phoenicia road about midnight Nov. 11 while he and Bernstein were on a routine patrol.

Air Force Plane Vanishes

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 20 (AP)—A U. S. Air Force C-47 transport plane with four crewmen aboard vanished yesterday en route from Bavaria to Belgrade. A mammoth air search was organized to comb the northern Adriatic Sea, where it may have crash-landed. The pilot's last emergency message, at 4:16 p. m. (10:16 a. m., EST) yesterday, reported the plane was "low on fuel and I'm not sure I can make Venice or an emergency landing."

Rubbish Catches Fire

Rubbish in a city truck caught fire at Washington and Hurley avenues shortly after noon today. An extinguisher from Excelsior Hose company was used on the blaze and the rubbish was dumped in the municipal stadium grounds to make sure the fire was thoroughly quenched. Wiltwyck equipment responded to a call to the stadium grounds.

Fights Break Out

Marseille, France, Nov. 20 (AP)—Fights between Communists and French volunteer troops for Korea broke out last night in the big port city. Two soldiers were injured. On the previous night about 200 of the soldiers had ransacked a Communist headquarters. The Communists oppose sending troops to Korea.

To Retain Air Line

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 20 (AP)—Cabinet sources said today the government of Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies has decided to retain Australia's government-owned air line despite a general policy to unscramble socialism. The Commonwealth Air Line was set up by the previous labor government.

Collapse Is Feared

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—The French cabinet appeared today in serious danger of collapse.

Gold Rush Loss

John Sutter, on whose property gold was discovered in California in 1848, subsequently lost everything in the gold rush.

Woman Is Booked On Larceny Count

Mrs. Joseph F. Tellier, 34, of 165 Church street, Poughkeepsie, was booked there yesterday on a first degree grand larceny charge for the alleged theft of $1,091 in funds from her employer, the Associated Press reported today.

A bookkeeper and wife of a Kingston department store worker, according to the report, Mrs. Tellier pleaded innocent in Poughkeepsie city court. The case was adjourned, bail was fixed at $1,500 and her attorney, Alexander C. Dow, indicated it would be posted.

Was in Hospital

Employed for the past two years by the Roberts-Boice Paper Co., Inc., the woman was arraigned before City Judge Joseph Hawkins following her release from St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, where she was taken last Tuesday suffering from an overdose of sleeping medicine.

Bought Clothes, Food

Dutchess county Assistant District Attorney Russell Aldrich said Mrs. Tellier admitted to him that she spent company money on clothes and food. Aldrich also said officers of the paper firm allege other cash shortages exist, amounting to some $15,000 during the past year.

Authorities said Mrs. Tellier had previously lived in California and Hawaii.

The information and complaint charged that the $1,091 was taken from the company during a period from Aug. 17 through Sept. 19.

When booked, the woman gave her occupation as bookkeeper, but said she was unemployed. Authorities indicated she had been with the paper firm until about a month ago.

Strike Status Continues Same

There were no new developments reported today in the two-month-old strike of cashiers, ushers, doormen, candy attendants and porters against two local Walter Reade theatres.

The employes, members of Local B-42, IATSE, and AFL affiliate, began picketing Reade's Kingston and Broadway theatres on Sept. 22. Projectionists at the two theatres, members of Local 637 of the same union, have refused to cross the picket lines. according to Mrs. Phoebe Van-Wagenen, Local B-42 president.

Regular shows at both theatres have continued as scheduled during the strike.

The strike was called by the local, which claims a membership of about 25, over the alleged failure of the theatre management to recognize the local as bargaining agent for the employes. Testimony at a State Labor Board hearing showed that the union contended one local should represent all the employes except management and projectionists, which the management—pointing to the complex corporate setup—contended that employes in certain classifications should be represented by separate units. Candy attendants were in the employ of a different corporation than cashiers, for instance, within the same theatre, management pointed out.

A feature of the strike has been the public support given Local B-42 by local units of AFL, CIO and independent unions which have requested their members to observe the picket lines.

Santa Buys First TB Seals in City

Santa Claus paid an advance visit to Ulster county on Saturday. He went straight to the shopping district in Kingston and bought the first two sheets of Christmas Seals from little Sara Jane Palmer, 4-year-old daughter of William Palmer, farm bureau agent, and Mrs. Palmer.

Because "the jolliest teacher," Sy Fersh, was unable to make the pageant, John T. Connolly, health education assistant to Katherine M. Murphy, R.N., executive secretary of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, substituted for Fersh.

Santa Claus came by way of downtown and midtown, Kingston, to the head of Wall street on the big aerial truck of the Kingston Fire Department, headed by an escort of two motorcycle policemen.

"My mission today," Santa Claus said, "concerns the happiness not just of the children of Ulster county but of all the people. It concerns the health of all of you and is very dear to my heart."

After buying the Christmas Seals, Santa said he was on his way to the Ulster County TB Hospital to have a chest X-ray because he wanted to be sure that he did not have tuberculosis.

McCarthy Expects To Close Deal

Rome, Nov. 20 (AP)—Texas oil millionaire Glenn McCarthy left today for Paris, where he expects to close a deal for oil rights to more than six million acres in the Red Sea area of Egypt.

McCarthy confirmed he plans to buy a controlling 51 per cent interest in the National Petroleum Oil Co. of Egypt. The company has oil concessions covering 121 lots of 60 square miles each in Egypt.

Before the deal could become effective, the Egyptian Parliament would have to amend an existing law requiring that Egyptians hold a majority interest in any company exploiting the nation's oil reserve.

A secret meeting of the Egyptian Parliament will be held shortly to consider changing the law, it was learned.

McCarthy said he could not give any details on his meeting later today in Paris with officials of the Egyptian company. Neither would he reveal the amount involved in the deal.

"A lot of money," he said. "How much, I cannot say right now."

Four Are in Custody

Committee Meets In Italo Settting

Rome, Nov. 20 (AP)—The military committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) met today in Rome's Foro Italico, on the banks of the ancient Tiber, to study further plans for defending the west.

As the aggregation of top military leaders of the western allies gathered, the Communist press unleashed an attack against the meeting. Many new signs in chalk on the streets blossomed out during the night, saying "No to war."

Looming large over the discussion at the NATO meeting was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's scaled-down plans to push first for a combat-ready international force by the end of next year rather than the larger army originally envisioned for 1954.

Will Pore Over Reports

The committee, made up of the chiefs of staff of 11 NATO nations and a civilian representative of Iceland, which has no army, will pore over 13 reports on the tentative plans for western defense. Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff, was among those meeting.

The group will round up their findings on Friday for presentation to the NATO Council, which meets here Saturday.

There was keen speculation among diplomats here that when Gen. Eisenhower presents his progress report to the council on Monday, he may hint how much longer he expects to remain the supreme commander—and thus give a possible clue as to his presidential aspirations.

The general belief here was that few major decisions would emerge from the council sessions. A more important meeting is expected in late January, when the council is expected to decide just what military forces the NATO members can assemble.

Iodine Used Successfully

New Britain, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Radio-active iodine made with material from the atomic pile at Oak Ridge, Tenn., has been used there successfully in treating thyroid gland disorders and certain heart and blood diseases. This was reported today by New Britain General Hospital officials in outlining the progress of a three-year study. Since late in 1948 a total of 48 thyroid and cardiac patients have received radio-active isotope treatments at the hospital with iodine material from Oak Ridge. The results have been excellent in the majority of cases, the hospital reported.

Sears to Handle Cars

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP)—A Kaiser-Frazer built automobile soon will go on sale in Sears Roebuck stores. Initially the new car, to be called the "Allstate," will be sold in 17 cities in the south and southwest, probably before Christmas. Announcement of the project was made jointly last night by Sears and Kaiser-Frazer. Specifications of the new car have not been disclosed, but it is reported to be similar in many details to the K-F Henry J model, although with distinguishing characteristics.

Kennan Is Considered

Key West, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP)—President Truman said today George F. Kennan is being considered for the post of ambassador to Russia. The president said he had discussed the appointment with Secretary Acheson, and that Kennan would "make a good ambassador."

WAC Victim

WAC Pfc. Carol Ann Kierce, 20, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, was the victim of a beating at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., Oct. 4, after testifying in a court martial of a WAC sergeant. The Army has announced that six WAC sergeants were convicted of assault and battery on Carol and sentenced to prison terms ranging from one to two-and-a-half years.

Guardsmen Break Up Demonstration

156th Non-Coms

pole set up to show how Guardsmen are trained as linemen.

There was a demonstration of how well the men are versed in handling all types of arms, and a detail of experts mounted guns and striped them while blindfolded.

Master Sgt. Jack G. Reynolds of the Service Battery had his men dismantle and then re-assemble a motor fleet with amazing speed, showing that the National Guard is well trained to take care of vehicle maintenance.

Judo and Boxing

A Battery put on a demonstration of calisthenics directed by Sgt. DeForest E. Shaver, and Sgt. John C. Roosa and Cpl. Arthur V. Wallot flipped one another all over a large mat in judo tactics.

A three-round boxing exhibition had the visitors on the edge of their seats as two privates, Walter J. Hillje and Walter J. Ellsworth cuffed each other with training gloves. There was no holding back, it was all action.

Sgt. William K. Windram and 20 men put on a special precision drill that reminded observers of West Point.

Reds Test Guardsmen

Sgt. Anthony J. Bellio in civvies rushed to the center of the drill shed, jumped on a soap box and screamed "Comrades, the capitalists must go!"

In a flash 15 "fellow travelers" with a red flag gathered around him for an un-American rally, shot fireworks and conducted themselves like demonstrators in areas where communism prevails.

But, the situation was well taken care of by troops directed by Sgt. Robert J. Gorsline, who rounded them up at gun point.

Giles Handles Review

Then came the review with Master Sgt. Burton F. Giles acting as battalion commander.

Non-commissioned officers on his staff were Sgts. Rudolph Raymond, Richard M. Henebery, Michael W. Cussick, Louis H. Detmer and Ronald J. Deyo.

Mayor Inspects Troops

There was inspection of troops by Mayor Newkirk, Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, President Feuerstein of the Lions Club, Frederick Snyder, lecturer and commentator; John J. Schwenk, former lieutenant of the New York State Guard, and Bob Browning, radio commentator, and World War 1 officer.

Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps led the Guardsmen as they passed in review, closing the military side of the program which was followed by the dance for the public.

Two Are Accused Of 'Jacking' Deer

The Ulster county grand jury will weigh charges that two county men tried to jacklight deer.

Accused by Deputy Sheriff Earl Conro and Game Protector Henry Bernstein of attempting to take wild deer with the aid of a light, Maynard Keefe of Shady and Harold J. Quick of Shady and Port Ewen were ordered to post $100 bail each while awaiting grand jury action after a hearing Monday night before Justice of the Peace Raymond Smith of Phoenicia.

This year is the first that jacklighting has been an indictable misdemeanor.

Deputy Conro said the men were arrested on the Mount Pleasant-Phoenicia road about midnight Nov. 11 while he and Bernstein were on a routine patrol.

Air Force Plane Vanishes

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 20 (AP)—A U. S. Air Force C-47 transport plane with four crewmen aboard vanished yesterday en route from Bavaria to Belgrade. A mammoth air search was organized to comb the northern Adriatic Sea, where it may have crash-landed. The pilot's last emergency message, at 4:16 p. m. (10:16 a. m., EST) yesterday, reported the plane was "low on fuel and I'm not sure I can make Venice or an emergency landing."

Rubbish Catches Fire

Rubbish in a city truck caught fire at Washington and Hurley avenues shortly after noon today. An extinguisher from Excelsior Hose company was used on the blaze and the rubbish was dumped in the municipal stadium grounds to make sure the fire was thoroughly quenched. Wiltwyck equipment responded to a call to the stadium grounds.

Fights Break Out

Marseille, France, Nov. 20 (AP)—Fights between Communists and French volunteer troops for Korea broke out last night in the big port city. Two soldiers were injured. On the previous night about 200 of the soldiers had ransacked a Communist headquarters. The Communists oppose sending troops to Korea.

College Leaders Hit

roy Smith, all of LIU; and Norman Mager, Irwin Dambrot, Herbert Cohen, Floyd Lane and Edward Roman, all of CCNY.

All the players were charged with conspiracy to accept bribes.

Cases still are pending against 16 other players.

Judge Streit said the players who received jail terms were "in a special position of guilt" in having lured others into the plot.

The judge gave various reasons for suspending the sentences of the others.

Considers War Record

He mentioned that in one case he took into consideration the defendant's war record and that, in another, the defendant obviously "realized the enormity of his misstep."

"Commercialism and over-emphasis in intercollegiate football and basketball are rampant throughout the country," said Judge Streit. He said the nation's schools are courting an "atomic athletic scandal."

The jurist blamed college authorities, alumni and coaches—labelling as "despicable" the attitude of many big-time coaches. He advised the schools to clean house in a hurry or have Congress or the states do it for them.

Judge Streit singled out Oklahoma, Texas, Texas A & M, Southern Methodist, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky as examples of over-emphasis in football. Kentucky is the only one of the group involved in the basketball point-fixing scandal that has reached more than 30 players from seven schools and a referee.

Called Paid Commercials

The judge called a college athlete a paid commercial and said academic standards for athletes are a laugh.

University of Oklahonma athletes are required to maintain proper scholastic standards, University President Dr. George L. Cross said in answering Judge Streit's statement that one Oklahoma football player was taking introduction to geography and loaded his program with theories of basketball, swimming games and volley ball in his senior year.

"We are interested in having all our athletes make steady progress toward graduation," Dr. Cross said.

The reaction of Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma football coach, was to go into the records and announce that football lettermen have been graduated at a 92 per cent pace since he became coach of the Sooners.

"If Judge Streit will give us the name of the Oklahoma football player he was referring to, we will be glad to make the player's scholastic record public." The judge did not name the player in his lengthy statement.

What's Wrong? Bell Asks

The judge's statement that Southern Methodist awards 154 athletic scholarships annually brought from athletic director Matty Bell a question as to what was wrong with his school granting such scholarships.

"Well, it isn't any of the judge's business in the first place and in the second place these scholarships cover all sports, not just football. * * * these are given to boys, who, in the main, would be unable to attend college without the assistance. * * * I wish this judge would meet some of the fine boys we have in athletics. Our athletes are among the finest young men in the country and it is that way at most of the colleges."

Dana X. Bible, University of Texas athletic director, conceded the collegiate football program "may have gotten off-side a little bit" sometimes but declared the good in football far out-weighs the bad.

"It's just another indication of the need for a committee like this," said Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State and head of a special committee set up by the American Council on Education to look into sports.

Hannah's Statement

That was the only comment on the judge's blast from the committee of seven college presidents but before the jurist made his statement, Hannah told reporters:

"We realize we must be responsible for the total operation of the university. We have a real concern in the protection of the integrity in higher education.

"We start with the assumption that there is much good in college sports. We want to preserve what's good and take the evil out."

Tennessee's rebuttal came from President C. E. Brehm who said in a statement:

"We don't think the athletic department has over-emphasized athletic activities to the detriment of our academic program. We are maintaining high academic standards and the boys who play on the football team have to conform to those standards if they continue in school."

Maryland's answer to Judge Streit's statement that 60 of Maryland's 97 players are from other states was given by Geary Eppley, dean of men and chairman of the athletic council.

"We have always had quite a few from out of the state," he said. "Probably not so many as we now have but the bulk of our students from outside of Maryland and the District of Columbia come from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York."

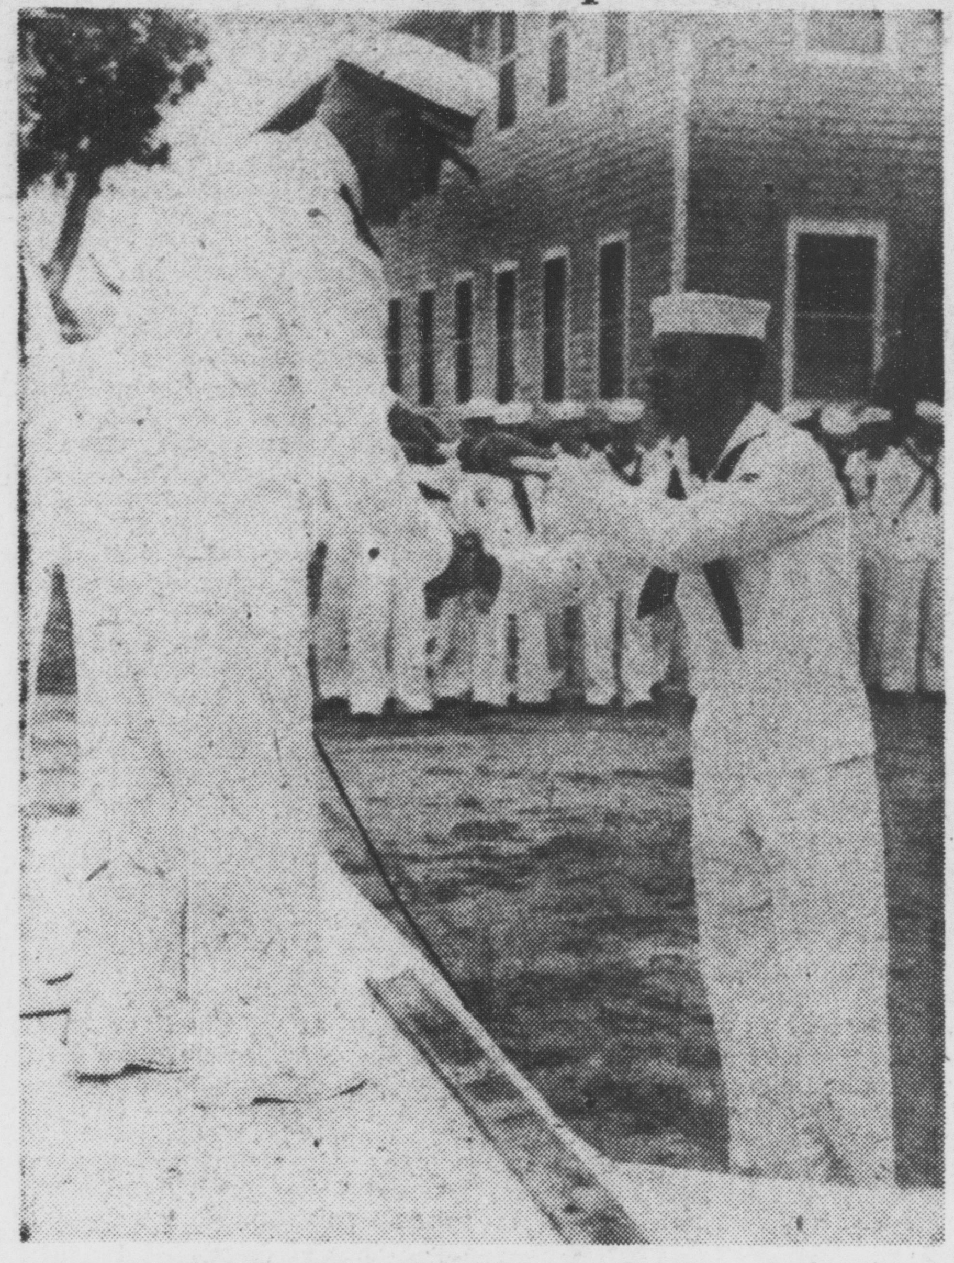
Gets School Diploma



Seaman Apprentice James Gunther, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Gunther of Kerhonkson, is shown receiving his diploma from a naval officer upon graduation Nov. 3 from the Fleet Sonar Military School at Key West, Fla., in which he matriculated following his boot training at Great Lakes. Seaman Gunther, at the time of his admission, was the only one to achieve the honor from his battalion and from the seven graduating battalions, only three men were chosen. Seaman Gunther left Monday for Key West where he has been assigned to the ship, Gilmore.

Cpl. E. Robert Hinkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester A. Wynkoop of Pataukunk, is taking part in maneuvers involving 120,000 men and 200 ships at Onslow Beach, N. C. Cpl. Hinkley is a member of the Second Marine Division.

Before the first assault wave hit the beach, the invades lost a theoretical seven per cent of their force of 20,000 men, according to a Marine news release. The beaching operation climaxed the largest amphibious exercise since the Korean war and one of the largest in the nation's history.

Since September, the exercise has been centered upon Puerto Rico and the island of Vieques. The maneuvers will conclude Nov. 20 and it is expected that Cpl. Hinkley will be home for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Allies Declare . . .

fire line now. This would become permanent if an armistice is signed within 30 days.

Even if the Reds accept, Ridgway said, "there will be no cessation or slow-down of ground operations in Korea."

Lt. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., marine commander in the Padivic, said: "If the cease-fire negotiations break down, we should bend every effort to defeat the enemy. We want to lick them so we can dictate the terms instead of having to argue about them."

There was no hint in the Peiping and Pyongyang broadcasts that the Red atrocity charges would necessarily burst out in Panmunjom truce talks. Allied charges of Red atrocities have not been mentioned in armistice negotiations.

the Fifth Marine Division which helped bear the brunt of battle for capture of the first Jap homeland islands.

Condition Is Good

Mrs. John Gill, mother of the injured man, said today the fingers were severed below the knuckles and only the thumb escaped contact with the moving unit of the machine. His condition was reported as "good" at Kingston Hospital today.

Mrs. Gill said her husband and son were machine-picking field corn in a field along the hillside road extending from Hurley to the Lucas turnpike when the accident happened as the machine operated by her son became clogged sometime after 3 p. m.

Shut Off Machine

The young man's father was near him in the field at the time and ran to shut off the machine as soon as he became aware of the mishap. He was taken first to a house near the field and from there was conveyed by Conner ambulance to the hospital.

Recent unfavorable weather had delayed the picking of field corn, Mrs. Gill said, and her husband and son were attempting to get as much work done as possible during the favorable weather of yesterday.

Jewish Congress Has No-Ambassador View

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The American Jewish Congress has gone on record against an American ambassador to the Vatican. It is the first major Jewish group to do so.

The AJC claims a paid membership of 60,000 Jewish laymen. Its affiliated organizations have 1,200,000 members throughout the nation.

At the close of the AJC biennial convention yesterday, a resolution was adopted urging President Truman to recall his proposed appointment of Gen. Mark Clark, "in the interests of fundamental American democratic principles."

Scattered opposition was registered in the vote that followed a heated debate.

Governor Asks Church Attendance, Prayers

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP)—Governor Dewey urges New Yorkers to attend church on Thanksgiving Day and ask God for moral fortitude "in our great struggle to preserve the liberties of all freedom-loving people."

The governor observed, in a Thanksgiving proclamation yesterday, that Americans today faced conditions as serious as those that confronted the Pilgrims on the first Thanksgiving Day.

"The liberties of free men the world over are threatened by the ruthless forces of world-wide Communist aggression," Dewey declared.

"I urge everyone who can physically do so to attend their respective houses of worship," the governor said. He added:

"I urge all to express gratitude to the Almighty God for all His blessings and to beseech Him for fortitude in our moral strength in our great struggle to preserve the liberties of all freedom-loving people."

College Leaders Hit

roy Smith, all of LIU; and Norman Mager, Irwin Dambrot, Herbert Cohen, Floyd Lane and Edward Roman, all of CCNY.

All the players were charged with conspiracy to accept bribes.

Cases still are pending against 16 other players.

Judge Streit said the players who received jail terms were "in a special position of guilt" in having lured others into the plot.

The judge gave various reasons for suspending the sentences of the others.

Considers War Record

He mentioned that in one case he took into consideration the defendant's war record and that, in another, the defendant obviously "realized the enormity of his misstep."

"Commercialism and over-emphasis in intercollegiate football and basketball are rampant throughout the country," said Judge Streit. He said the nation's schools are courting an "atomic athletic scandal."

The jurist blamed college authorities, alumni and coaches—labelling as "despicable" the attitude of many big-time coaches. He advised the schools to clean house in a hurry or have Congress or the states do it for them.

Judge Streit singled out Oklahoma, Texas, Texas A & M, Southern Methodist, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky as examples of over-emphasis in football. Kentucky is the only one of the group involved in the basketball point-fixing scandal that has reached more than 30 players from seven schools and a referee.

Called Paid Commercials

The judge called a college athlete a paid commercial and said academic standards for athletes are a laugh.

University of Oklahonma athletes are required to maintain proper scholastic standards, University President Dr. George L. Cross said in answering Judge Streit's statement that one Oklahoma football player was taking introduction to geography and loaded his program with theories of basketball, swimming games and volley ball in his senior year.

"We are interested in having all our athletes make steady progress toward graduation," Dr. Cross said.

The reaction of Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma football coach, was to go into the records and announce that football lettermen have been graduated at a 92 per cent pace since he became coach of the Sooners.

"If Judge Streit will give us the name of the Oklahoma football player he was referring to, we will be glad to make the player's scholastic record public." The judge did not name the player in his lengthy statement.

What's Wrong? Bell Asks

The judge's statement that Southern Methodist awards 154 athletic scholarships annually brought from athletic director Matty Bell a question as to what was wrong with his school granting such scholarships.

"Well, it isn't any of the judge's business in the first place and in the second place these scholarships cover all sports, not just football. * * * these are given to boys, who, in the main, would be unable to attend college without the assistance. * * * I wish this judge would meet some of the fine boys we have in athletics. Our athletes are among the finest young men in the country and it is that way at most of the colleges."

Dana X. Bible, University of Texas athletic director, conceded the collegiate football program "may have gotten off-side a little bit" sometimes but declared the good in football far out-weighs the bad.

"It's just another indication of the need for a committee like this," said Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State and head of a special committee set up by the American Council on Education to look into sports.

Hannah's Statement

That was the only comment on the judge's blast from the committee of seven college presidents but before the jurist made his statement, Hannah told reporters:

"We realize we must be responsible for the total operation of the university. We have a real concern in the protection of the integrity in higher education.

"We start with the assumption that there is much good in college sports. We want to preserve what's good and take the evil out."

Tennessee's rebuttal came from President C. E. Brehm who said in a statement:

"We don't think the athletic department has over-emphasized athletic activities to the detriment of our academic program. We are maintaining high academic standards and the boys who play on the football team have to conform to those standards if they continue in school."

Maryland's answer to Judge Streit's statement that 60 of Maryland's 97 players are from other states was given by Geary Eppley, dean of men and chairman of the athletic council.

"We have always had quite a few from out of the state," he said. "Probably not so many as we now have but the bulk of our students from outside of Maryland and the District of Columbia come from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York."

A rock avalanche recently changed the appearance of Mt. Jefferson, Oregon's second highest peak.

Gets School Diploma

Seaman Apprentice James Gunther, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Gunther of Kerhonkson, is shown receiving his diploma from a naval officer upon graduation Nov. 3 from the Fleet Sonar Military School at Key West, Fla., in which he matriculated following his boot training at Great Lakes. Seaman Gunther, at the time of his admission, was the only one to achieve the honor from his battalion and from the seven graduating battalions, only three men were chosen. Seaman Gunther left Monday for Key West where he has been assigned to the ship, Gilmore.

WILLIAM DECKER

William Decker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Decker, is a member of the Seabees, a branch of the navy, and is now stationed in the Province of Zambales in the Philippines.

In Training

DONALD P. OULTON

Pvt. Donald P. Oulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Oulton, 149 West O'Reilly street, has arrived at Fort Dix, N. J., for basic training with the 9th Infantry Division. He was graduated from Kingston High School in 1947.

Is Promoted

CPL. CHARLES TIANO

Pvt. Charles Tiano, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Tiano of East Kingston, was recently promoted to corporal before going overseas with the 28th Infantry Division. Cpl. Tiano is attached to the medical service of the division. The 28th Division is now under the command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in Germany.

Gazlay Graduated

Marine Pfc. Morton E. Gazlay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Gazlay, Route 3, Kingston, was graduated from the Signal School Battalion, Marine Corps School, San Diego, Calif., on Oct. 27. After spending an 18-day furlough with his parents, he will leave for Camp Pendelton, Oceanside, Calif.

Franklin R. Miller, AGAA-USN, who recently spent a 10-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Miller of St. Remy, is now in active duty as weatherman aboard the USS Telfair operating out of San Diego, Calif. Miller, after completing boot training at Great Lakes Training Center, was graduated from Airman School, Jacksonville, Fla., and Airographer's Mate School at Lakehurst, N. J. A graduate of KHS, class of '48, Miller was employed by Electrol Inc. before entering naval service.

On Maneuvers

CPL. E. ROBERT HINKLEY

Cpl. E. Robert Hinkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester A. Wynkoop of Pataukunk, is taking part in maneuvers involving 120,000 men and 200 ships at Onslow Beach, N. C. Cpl. Hinkley is a member of the Second Marine Division.

Before the first assault wave hit the beach, the invades lost a theoretical seven per cent of their force of 20,000 men, according to a Marine news release. The beaching operation climaxed the largest amphibious exercise since the Korean war and one of the largest in the nation's history.

Since September, the exercise has been centered upon Puerto Rico and the island of Vieques. The maneuvers will conclude Nov. 20 and it is expected that Cpl. Hinkley will be home for the Thanksgiving holiday.
